

FOREWORD

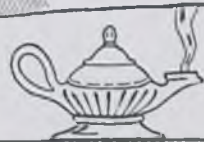

If in the years to come this volume shall cause you to pause in the day's occupations, to sail for a little while on the sea of memories, back to the dear old days at Alleghe, we shall be happy that our efforts have not been in vain.—The Editors.

KALDRON

To
Fred Whitlo Hixson
the new President of Allegheny College, educational builder, minister, lover of his fellow man, counselor and friend of students,
whose vision for the future of Allegheny heralds a new and greater era in its history.

The Kaldron of 1921
is affectionately dedicated in the hope that he may find the embodiment of his ideals in our greater Allegheny

Class History

It's trite to say that time flies by
And yet, four years since we came from High
Have scarcely seemed to be much more
Than time enough to pass the door
Of the college we have come to know,
And now must leave, for we must go.

Another class will be seniors now;
We trust that we have shown them how,
For we have other places to fill
Far from the College on the Hill;
Before we go, we wish to pay
Our parting tribute to Alleghe.

We're supposed to write a history
Some form of verse, blank or free,
Telling all the things we've done,
The work we've had as well as fun;
Dwelling on our virtues many,
Overlooking faults if there were any.

But we would rather have you know
Our history's with us where'er we go;
For its written deep on every heart
And from its charm we ne'er can part.

Our record, too, is left behind
Some good in it, we hope you'll find,
So, of our deeds we'll not write here,
But rather a toast to our college dear.
To the noble spirit which built its walls;
To the Faculty presiding in its halls;
To all those classes that have gone before,
And the classes still to pass its door.

Here's a toast that's given with all our heart,
A toast in which every one has a part;
A pledge that the spirit of Alleghe
Will lead us onward on our way;
And be a guide in all that's done
By the Senior Class—Dear Twenty-one.

Helen isn't a believer in the theory that opportunity is often lost through deliberation, because she believes in keeping "within the law" so far as speed laws are concerned. Her abilities have led her along dramatic and democratic lines for she is a true comrade in every respect. Her infectious giggle is a surprise to those who know her and have heard her drawl, "We-e-l-l, Ah don't know".

If he hit the trail of the Hun with half the pep and perseverance with which he "cross countryed" over large areas of Crawford county it is no wonder the Germans quit. Still he found time for such lighter frivolities as the Chem. and Psych Labs., and the snare drum end of the band, which never had so blithe and care-free a drummer. Luck go with you, Joe.

"Webby" came to Allegheny from the Smoky City district although he doesn't smoke nor talk too much. He has hidden springs which well with friendships. Many of these sprung from "Cussy" canoe trips. "Webby" always had the Campus at the door on Wednesday mornings. Genial, versatile, his activities ranged from the pulpit to the dance. He has only finished the first lap, however, for next year he enters Boston Seminary and it isn't too much to prophecy that he will be the Sunday speaker of a few years hence. While talking on his feet, "Webby" could make the mountains ring even on a Round Top picnic.

Class History

If you have done requirements for every sophomore,
 You know that Poly Sci's a fright and History is a bore;
 Class history's no exception, yet the Kaldron seems to think
 No Kaldron is complete without this form of wasted ink.
 Then, if this history seems to you a little dull at times,
 Remember it's no simple truth but truth put into rhymes.

So here are our statistics and most of them are true,
 We came in nineteen eighteen and we'll leave in twenty-two,
 We were a hundred eighty strong, young and fresh and somewhat green—
 Not as green as most frosh classes—and Old Alleghe has seen
 That same verdant mob of freshmen grow in unity and power
 'Til of all her hundred classes we're the very cream and flower.
 Prominent in student places, varied in proclivities,
 Now we rule in field and classroom—run all school activities.

Of the details of our progress there is little one can write,
 Can you trace the path of genius just in printer's black and white?
 We came to Allegheny mid the wild alarms of war,
 To seek a hero's resting place with the Army Training Corps,
 And after we had won that war we then resolved to stay
 To quell the cocky sophomores in dear Old Alleghe;
 In which, as with the class beneath, our sundry little quarrels
 Left us to walk our rose-strewn way all garlanded with laurels.

'Tis true there are those persons who, envious of our fame,
 Say our politics are rotten and our vanity's a shame;
 That our school work is neglected as the partial teachers keep
 Devoted watch above our heads in classrooms where we sleep;
 But this is always recognized as ignorant fallacy
 From disgruntled sophs and seniors full of green-eyed jealousy.
 Our politics are pure and sweet; we're modest as can be,
 And there never was another class one half so bright as we.

When next year's Kaldron first comes out with pages white and new
 And you find our senior pictures there, all smiling out at you,
 Just take the older Kaldrons and search all the old files through,
 For another class that can compare with the one of Twenty-two.

Class History

Of all the classes whose hist'ries are told
 Since in 1819 the first left the fold;
 The class of nineteen twenty-three
 The very best is, and ever shall be.
 Our freshman year we started out right
 And gained us a name through prowess and might;
 In acting and or'tory, marks and the rest,
 We made it our aim to come out the best.
 We followed the Sophs to Oil City one night,
 And cut off their curls till their bald spots gleamed white.

Our freshman year once past and gone,
 Our highest fame began to dawn.
 The frosh had hardly got unpacked
 Before their hair was sadly hacked;
 For twenty-three produced to art,
 Tonsorial masters who leave "no part".
 The freshies plead but all in vain;
 We shaved their heads to the very brain;
 And of some barbers it may well be said
 That they took all the brains and left only head.
 Then class-day came, on Montgomery Field
 Again, the frosh were forced to yield;
 In races and soccor, tugs-of-war and tieups.
 We "showed up" that miserable race of pups.
 We had a class meeting and at it we chose
 A bunch of class off'cers that never will doze.
 Mort Graham and Dot Mussler will watch every step,
 While "Petie" and Linnie will add to our pep
 The Senior-Soph Banquet came with November
 And Sophomores took part—a part they'll remember
 Their spirits were high—and so were the others;
 Ah, cursed be the censor who such triumph smothers!
 Then came the big banquet on cherry-pie day,
 In gay hula-hulas we Sophs held our sway,
 The girls were in sac cloth, the fellows in white;
 Their faces were brown stained, their sashes were bright;
 When the strains of "Alice Sweeney" first resounded through the crowd
 The Freshmen ceased their singing and in low submission bowed.
 Ah, it was a glorious banquet—one we will never forget,
 The joys of the most happy day which is in memory yet.
 But now that the Kaldron's bubbling, our hist'ry must go in;
 And we must close our story, before we scarce begin.
 We leave old twenty-three in its glory and its prime
 With a lot of things unsaid just because they do not rhyme.

ATHLETICS

To
Rodger Lee Baldwin
Captain of the football team of 1920
a real man, a true friend, an inspiring leader,
a courageous fighter,
an all-round athlete of the highest calibre who was severely injured in scrimmage for his alma mater, this, the Athletic Section of the Kaldrion of 1921
is affectionately dedicated

KALDRON

BALDWIN—CAPTAIN

"Rog" was the keystone of the defense and a dependable ground gainer on the offense up until the time of his injury. Starring throughout the first four games as end and fullback, his absence was keenly felt throughout the remainder of the season. His last game, against Grove City, was his best. Time after time, he broke up the end runs and passes which came in his direction. From the time of his injury the team realized the loss and attempted to fill the gap as best it could. Yet the completion of the season showed the lack of him, as captain and as player.

PROF. C. E. HAMMETT
ATHLETIC DIRECTOR

As supervisor of athletics, "Coach" has fitted into the college life as he did when chief mentor of all sports. The new program of the college permitted the creation of a new athletic office, and Professor Hammett was chosen for that post. As to fitness, his past experience as a coach and a physical director overseas certainly has qualified him. The introduction of the Freshman Varsity team, the Inter-Fraternity, Tri-State, Inter-City Basketball Tournaments, the idea of the skating rink, which, though unsuccessful the past winter, will undoubtedly work out in an average winter, boxing and wrestling as inter-collegiate sports, can all be traced back to him. Indoor training for track has been under the direct supervision of Coach Hammett and this year's track season will be the better for it. He has served to awaken the athletic interests of the college, after a dormant period existing during the World War and for a time afterward. May the awakening be permanent.

MR. C. O. APPLEGRAN
FOOTBALL AND BASKETBALL COACH

Applegran has been able to imprint his own character to a great degree upon his teams. The football team was fast and determined, while the basketball team was equally as fast, clever and good fighters, as the gridiron warriors. His introduction of western plays has, at least in basketball, been very successful. Throughout the football season, he was met by reversals, over which he had no control. Successive injuries proved the undoing of the eleven. But with the five, he had better fortune. Although there were some mishaps, he had a well-developed second team from which to fill the vacancies. That same team was also a power in preparing the Varsity for its games. To the coach must be given the credit of sending out such a Freshman team as he was able to do. He gave them nearly as much time as he did the Varsity, teaching them the same style of play.

Cheerleaders

"SCOOP" TROTTER, '23

When Dick Rowley picked out "Scoop" for his understudy last year, he chose the best man available. As senior member of the "red headed twins", he ranks as the officially elected cheerleader for 1920-1921. His natural pep and activity trace back to the city of his nativity, Youngstown, "Somewhere in Ireland". Just let that wide grin and shock of hair out in front of a grandstand, and listen to the noise. "Scoop" usually managed to sandwich his yells in at the times when both the crowd was ready to give them and the team to receive them. The most unique Freshman parades of recent years were the direct result of his superabundance of ingenuity.

"RED" HAFER, '23

Coraopolis ranks with Youngstown in the production of Gold and Blue yell leaders. The college felt the need of the corporation, and "Red" was given his chance to make good, which he proceeded to do in his own individual way. Although less experienced than Trotter, by the middle of the season, Hafer was handling his share of the leading with evident ability. He, too, contributed his share in directing the Freshman maneuvers, and many were the odd contortions which the victims underwent. Two more years will see this pair with a reputation for cheerleading which will not be forgotten for a number of years.

KRAMER, '22—CAPTAIN-ELECT

A veteran of three year's Varsity and one year of S.A.T.C. experience, "Art" is the man for next year's captaincy. He was in the play every minute of every game of the past year and was the backbone of the defense, besides being ready to make a gap in the opposing line when called upon. He always played hard, was ever alert and his playing, though not always sensational, was always dependable.

In the Colgate game "Abe" played the game of his young life, fighting every yard of the way, he did more than his share toward earning a victory over the big eastern school. In Kramer, the 1921 football team will have a player and a leader that can show the way as surely as Baldy did this year.

PLUMB, '21—ACTING CAPTAIN

Although handicapped at first by injuries, at the loss of Baldwin, "Stan" stepped into Roger's shoes as captain and directed the team as only a veteran could. Even though light, he was able to hold down the halfback's berth in a sensational manner. His best work was done in the Grove City game when he earned the only points of the contest by making a beautiful drop-kick from the thirty-three yard line. But his greatest worth, however, was the reliance which the rest of the team reposed in him. His position will be one hard to fill next season.

NELSON, '21

One of the hardest pluggers on the squad, "Scoots" couldn't be kept out of an end berth. He was always ready for an emergency, and succeeded in breaking up many forward passes, besides being on the receiving end of some good ones. He was one of the hardest tacklers on the team. When he "hit", you heard teeth rattle.

POTTER, '21

The college "hit a streak" when "Zeke" developed into a Varsity man his senior year. A six-footer and heavy, he wasn't afraid of anything; man, the devil or the deep blue sea; hence, his value at left guard and tackle. He cinched his position in the Grove City game, when he gave the Presbyterians something to worry about on his side of the line. The incoming class will have a task to supply a man of "Zeke's" calibre.

RUSSELL, '21

As quarterback, this one hundred and twenty pounds of energy always succeeded in outwitting and outplaying the defense of the rival team. His dexterity in handling the ball enabled many of the trick plays to get off without notice. Because of his aggressiveness and loyalty, he was granted a letter by the Council. Here is a man who gave his best for his Alma Mater throughout his four years.

MURPHY, '22

An old letterman, Dan couldn't be kept off the eleven. Opposite "Abie", he held down the left tackle berth as only one of his experience could. Between Dan and "Rog", the opponents of the early part of the season had a lot to contend with on that one wing. After "Hoppy's" injury, Dan assisted in the punting end of the game. His fourth year should be his best.

DUNDON, '22

At center, Dundon was one of the two men to play every minute of every contest. That should be sufficient to qualify him. Off-center and through-center plays were his specialty, and many were the line-plunges to stop short when they struck this bulwark. "Red's" passing was absolutely accurate as he never made a bad pass the entire season, and thus gave the backs much needed confidence. This accuracy coupled with his ability to open up holes made him invaluable to the team.

KALDRON

PARKER, '22

Parker managed to hold down most of the places on the team; playing successively and successfully, guard, fullback and end. He had the exceptional faculty of being able to adapt himself to any environment. Therein lay his value the past season. A hard tackler and determined fighter Parker made himself invaluable to the team and without a doubt will be found holding down a regular berth next year.

CUNNINGHAM, '22

Playing in hard luck, "Cunny" held down the fullback job, until he was partially incapacitated by an injured knee, which meant he could play only part of each game. When in the game, however, his nerve and his hundred and fifty-five pounds of muscle combined to carry him through the best hole in the line for big gains. He was one of the best "pile drivers" Allegheny ever had. We hope better luck for him next year.

SECOR, '22

Receiving an injury the first part of the season, he was only ready to step into "Hoppy's" position on the latter's injury. As halfback, "Zeke" was snappy and always there with the goods. Though light, his speed was sufficient to make his end runs formidable. In passing the ball, broken field running and forming effective interference, Secor contributed to many long gains. Next year ought to see him going strong.

One hundred one

KALDRON

"HOPPY" Miller, '23

In his second year of Varsity ball, "Hoppy" was making a name for himself at halfback and as punter, when he sustained his injury. Hurt severely in the Dickinson game, his ankle was not entirely recovered at the end of the season. Being the fastest man on the squad, and the best punter, the team felt his loss deeply. Great things may be expected of Miller in the coming two years.

FORD MILLER, '23

Starting out at left guard he was shifted to fullback where he proved to be a back that only Cupid could injure. His close defensive work was outstanding and his hard plunging gave Allegheny many a first down. In the Tech game Ford was more than half of the defense showing all kinds of speed and doing some ferocious tackling. In all probability the Gold and Blue will be deprived of his future services on the gridiron as he is now a married man.

GRAHAM, '23

Graham did not report for football until shortly before the Colgate game where he made the only touchdown against the New Yorkers. "Mort" held down the halfback position for the remainder of the season and was particularly effective in receiving and intercepting forward passes. Like his brother "Osh" of former days, the only thing ahead was the goal posts.

KALDRON

LOOMIS, '23

Long and lanky, this big Soph held down both guards and right tackle, (at different times, of course). Powerful enough to get through the opposing line, alert enough to spot the play, "Hersh" played a big part in the defense for he "hit 'em like a ton o' bricks." The Grove City game found his star in the ascendant and it stayed bright the rest of the season.

MORLEY, '23

Always quick to see the flaw in the opposing defense, Morley's plans seldom went astray. Although this was his first year at the pivot berth, in the Grove City game he was handling the ball with the best of them. His end runs were spectacular, and he often got away for long gains. In his first year at Allegheny, he proved to be a real find, and another season should make him a second Cox in dexterity.

SHULTZ, '24

Clever tackling and speed put Paul on the team at end. Few end runs ever circled Shultz and most of them stopped when they reached him. He was always dependable and with more experience should develop into one of the Gold and Blues' snappiest ends.

KALDRON

WRIGHT, '24

Wright broke into the lineup in time for the Grove City game, and soon became one of the bulwarks of the line at guard. Heavy, active and alert he was as effective on the offense as the defense. Great things can be expected from this young Hercules in the future.

FRANCIS, '21

"Tommy" took over the managerial end of the team after Dickson resigned and handled the team as only "Tom" could. His experience as manager the previous year was a great asset and "Tom" always had the uniforms and everything else "there" when needed. He didn't go up in the air when things didn't go just right, 'cause, "if the train wouldn't come he couldn't make it."

FLINT, '23

As assistant manager Flint worked like a horse. He was always on the job whether his turn or not and even though competition was of the keenest he succeeded in making the managership in the first year of competitive managers. If work by the manager will make a team next year, Allegheny will surely have one.

Resume of Football Season of 1920

There are a thousand and one college annuals this year which will chronicle their football activities—this is the other one.

While the football season of 1920 may be viewed as below par from the black and white records, the cold facts reveal an entirely different aspect on the activities of the Blue and Gold eleven. Facing exceptional and unusual obstacles, Allegheny won from Grove City, tied Colgate, Westminster and Thiel, but lost to Dickinson, Carnegie Tech and Geneva.

In the first place, Allegheny was outweighed in every contest from five to thirty pounds per man, a handicap preventing the perfection of the western style of play, an innovation of the season, which undoubtedly calls for a heavy team. Secondly, the loss of Captain Baldwin in the middle of the season and also of "Hoppy" Miller and Dale were unfortunate circumstances.

Hence, it is evident, that with accidents, insufficient material, stringent eligibility rules and prohibition of financial inducements to promising athletes, Allegheny fared exceptionally well. Truthfully, it may be said that Allegheny bucked the hardest schedule ever attempted before. Although the team was outweighed, outclassed, (and outplayed once), it was never outfought, outgamed, or outnerved. The men gave all they had and if this was not sufficient to make winning record it was not their fault.

Allegheny, 0; Thiel, 0

In the opening contest of the season the Blue and Gold were unable to score against this evenly matched eleven from Greenville, although "Hoppy" Miller went across for a touchdown which didn't register on account of a penalty for holding. Allegheny played a strong game the first half but the "Ironworkers" took on new life and consistently broke up all interference. Miller's sprinting and punting and Plumb's ground gaining were outstanding features of the game.

Allegheny, 7; Colgate, 7

Making eleven first downs to their opponents' eight, Allegheny surprised the New Yorkers whose "Frederick" giants witnessed a defense too strong to break. "Mort" Graham broke into the limelight scoring a touchdown while replacing Plumb at half. Miller's goal from touchdown gave Allegheny the first half 7-0. A little over-confidence during the second half allowed Colgate to tie the score but strong defensive work centered around Captain Baldwin kept the Blue and Gold goal line out of danger.

Allegheny, 0; Dickinson, 7

Although Allegheny was defeated by the eastern school; the large number of alumni and students who witnessed the game were not greatly disappointed at the wonderful display of form and teamwork which proved to be too much for the Blue and the Gold. Pipa, the opponent's quarter, was a whirlwind as a ground-gainer, and "Baldy" was the only man who could drop him. Pipa tasted of "Baldy's" defensive work and directed attacks around right end thereafter which resulted in Dickinson's touchdown.

Allegheny, 3; Grove City, 0

While the old rivals had the advantage of twenty-five pounds to the man in weight over Allegheny's line, superior fight and nerve snatched victory from defeat in the last quarter by a series of long runs and a drop kick from the toe of "Stan" Plumb. "Stan" covered himself with glory, outclassing Putts, who failed to register his goal from the same spot. The entire team played like a machine.

Allegheny, 0; Carnegie Tech, 42

Crippled, uncaptured, Allegheny was decisively defeated by the Plaid warriors at Pittsburgh on November 6. The absence of Captain Baldwin proved to be an irreparable loss to the team; his injury consisted of a fractured vertebra sustained during practice two days prior to the game. The Plaids had no difficulty in scoring against a torn and shattered line. F. Miller's defense was superb.

Allegheny, 0; Westminster, 0

Having had the ball within striking distance of the goal three times, Allegheny was there held by the United Presbyterians to a scoreless tie November 13. Morley featured as a ground gainer throughout the game, netting 112 yards to his credit for his team. Parker held the visitors' star, Ecklund, in check time after time preventing gains through the line.

Allegheny, 0; Geneva, 19

In a sea of mud, outplayed by better conditioned men, the Blue and Gold closed her football season with a defeat. Clever forward passing, eight completed passes out of thirteen attempts, were too much for the substitute, exhausted team. "Red" Schrachran, formerly of Allegheny, starred for Geneva, with his open field running and passing.

Resume of 1920-21 Basketball Season

Breaking into the season with a new style of Western play introduced by Coach Applegran, from Illinois, Allegheny's showing during the past season was really more remarkable than the record indicates. A little over-confidence after the first three games contributed somewhat to the falling off during the middle of the season.

Scoring 387 points against their opponents 403, the Blue and Gold quintet may be said to have broken even on the season though they lost more than half their games. However, there is a balance on the wrong side of the ledger registered by one game only, as a total of seven victories were scored against eight defeats.

The University of Pittsburgh and W. & J. were the only teams that were more than a match for the Allegheny cagers. On several trips the schedule was so arranged that more than two games were played away from home on consecutive nights which was one of the causes which contributed to a few of the defeats.

The Grove City championship team which experienced such a whirlwind success throughout the season actually realized that their two games with Allegheny were practically won in the last few minutes of play when the breaks were with them. At no time were the Crimson champions in the lead, Allegheny giving them the fastest and most spectacular games of the season.

The slump toward the latter part of the season was the result of a tendency on the part of students and team to consider the significant games on the schedule over.

The fact that Dunbar is the only letter man to graduate causes Allegheny boosters to look hopefully toward next season, feeling that the team, which will be again captained by Kofford, will make a showing in keeping with their outstanding records in the past.

The men who won their letters have well earned them, the Coach declares, as each fought his best every minute he was in the game.

KOFFORD, '22

"Rink" Kofford, star forward and captain of the Blue and Gold Quintet, has been re-elected to lead the basketball team next season. Although "Rink" is but a Junior he had the ability and generalship to tactfully keep his team in shape at all times no matter what the circumstances. His playing ability is well known, having been mentioned by several sport critics as an all-State forward.

During the past three years Kofford has steadily improved his floor work until it has well nigh reached perfection, especially this season, when he mastered the pivot turn which placed him in a class by himself. With this one vehicle Kofford time and time again throughout the season cleverly and dexterously put his opponent in the shade. His dodging and guarding were superb and being nimble and fleet of foot he was enabled to register more than his share of the baskets, not mentioning his acute accuracy in scoring the fouls. As a foul shooter Kofford has well maintain his high standard inasmuch as "Rink" never gets "fussed" at the critical moment on the black line.

Allegheny may look forward to Captain Kofford next season as one who can ably lead a team worthy of representing the school on any floor, as he will have five old men together with new material under his leadership.

KALDRON

DUNBAR, '21

PARKER, '22

Dunbar has been one of the chief mainstays of the Allegheny team during his time of play. Last year he led in the number of field goals scored. He is fast and probably the most accurate shot under the basket of the entire squad. His pluck has carried him far. Bothered during the season with a bad heel and ankle, he played his usual fast consistent game.

In addition to his value on the offense, he held his man so closely in the scoring of baskets in these days when the guards are one of the big scoring factors of the teams that he was picked by The Pittsburgh Press as a guard on the second Tri-State team.

Of the entire squad, George is the only one who is lost by graduation this year, and his loss will be keenly felt. An all-around floor man, offensive and defensive, he made himself a part of the team to a degree inestimable.

Parker broke into the line-up in the West Virginia Wesleyan game and finished the season with a record that stamps him as one of the most efficient guards and all-around floor performers that ever played for Allegheny. His work at all times was little short of remarkable. It is hard to pick any one game as his best for he seemed to be just where he was needed at all times. His two field goals in the last quarter of the Buffalo game on the local floor were responsible for the hard-earned victory. In the second Geneva game and in both Grove City games his work was largely responsible for the showing of the team. Several sporting authorities have named Parker as all-Tri-State guard, which region includes such teams as Grove City, Pitt, West Virginia, Penn State, Bethany, and others.

KALDRON

MILLER, '23

WISE, 23

"Hoppy" Miller made his first appearance as a genuine first string basketball man this season when his speed, coupled with his ability to jump and shoot unerringly from difficult angles, brought him recognition. Although but a Sophomore with little experience, he improved as the season progressed until he was playing practically all the time. He played equally well at forward or center and in the latter position his size has been a stumbling block for many larger opponents. From present indications, it seems that he will be one of the most polished players that Allegheny ever turned out if his improvement in the remaining time he has to play is as great as that of the last seasons. He followed close on the heels of Kofford and Dunbar in scoring this season, which, with his other abilities brought him favorable mention from writers who have seen him play.

Wise, graduating from the scrubs of the previous year, played a consistent game for the Blue and Gold. He was especially successful in getting the tip-off. An exceptional long shot, he was responsible for many twin-counters from the middle of the floor and beyond. His work in the Wesleyan game where he had three long shots in the first half was exceptionally good. The six points thus made gave Allegheny the all important jump at the start. He also appeared to good advantage in the games with Grove City. Wise has two years more in college and will undoubtedly continue his good work.

DAN ROBINSON, '21

"Mort" is another of the men who played his first varsity basketball during the season just closed when under the system as developed by Coach Applegran he qualified for the stationary guard position. In fact, he was really the whole defense of the team inside the foul circle and the only man on the team who could successfully smother an opponent when guarding. Graham is a hard fighter who is in the game every minute of play with the ability to do the right thing at the right time, heady on giving the signals for play, a fast and accurate passer he was an adept at receiving the ball from the tip-off as the system required it of him. In all, he was a most valuable asset to the team and one of the most proficient guards according to all rules of the game. With his seasoning in the big game now completed, his future years should be more brilliant than this season.

Robinson, as manager for this year's team, proved to be very capable in the handling of business matters in the lines of athletics. He arranged the schedule which proved to be one of the hardest ever attempted by an Allegheny team. He was able to secure games with teams which for several years had not been booked. Dan has served well in the capacity for which he was chosen.

A 2nd Men

In the other five men on the squad who did not get into enough games to make their letter this year Coach Applegran had some material that was of the best. These men contributed as much in the way of time, energy and interest to the success of the varsity team as if they had been playing on the team themselves. Indeed the lot of the substitute player is far from being as happy a one as that of the regular.

In Mountsier, '23, center and guard, the coach had a man that he could use at any time and know that he would give the very best he had. Rush made his letter at the center position last year and was always in the game with lots of fight. In fact, if he could be criticized at all, the criticism would undoubtedly be that he fought too hard and was over anxious.

Parent, 22, at forward, has been on the squad for three years, and has always shown real ability. "Dutch" is handicapped somewhat by his size, for if he were as big as some of the others, he would surely be playing regular. With lots of fight and a natural eye for the basket we hope to see "Dutch" make his letter before he graduates.

Pringle, '22, the tall lanky boy, has finished his second year on the squad. Handicapped somewhat by injuries this year Pringle was not able to do as well as he otherwise would. Being fast on his feet, hard to cover and a good shot Pringle added many baskets to the second team's scores. He should prove a valuable man to the varsity in a year.

Braun, '24, as a substitute guard had to witness most of the games from the bench but those who saw him in action realized that he has the possibilities of being one of the best guards that Allegheny has had for some time. His defensive work is great and as a dribbler few opponents could stop him.

Cleaves, '24, would have been seen in more varsity games had it not been for the fact that he had not fully recovered from an attack of pleurisy. Cleaves' floor work was very fine indeed and his shooting more accurate than almost any other man. He should be a valuable man to the team next year.

Freshman Team

The freshman varsity basketball team by its first and very successful season has practically assured itself as a permanent institution at Allegheny. Needless to say, the almost phenomenal success of the team the past season has been a source of much rejoicing on the part of those who made the organization possible despite strong opposition.

To lose but one game out of eight, a team must have real players, which the freshman team undoubtedly did have. In Captain Braun, at guard, and Cleaves at center, we had men who can hold the best varsity men even. Braun played a stellar game throughout the season and handled the men in a masterful manner. Cleaves, at center, had a remarkable season and was the most consistent shot on the team. Dykes, at the other guard, played well with Braun and scored high in nearly every game. Davis and Carroll, at forward, played together well and rolled up their share of the baskets. Stenstrom, who succeeded Carroll on the team, played a fast game and did much to maintain a long list of victories. Dale took Davis' position in the Franklin game and was the star of the evening getting eight of his team's eighteen field goals. Rider, Houser and Siedle played in a number of games and showed that they had as much real ability as their team mates.

Following is the schedule played:

Tennis 1921

The tennis season opened up in a propitious manner with the defeat of the Grove City team on May 7th at Meadville. Flint and Cochran were able to take every match, losing but one set in the tournament. Although elimination tournaments had been held, they were not completely finished at the time of this meet and but two men comprised the local team.

If the first meet may be taken as a criterion of later contests, Allegheny should finish with colors flying. University of Pittsburgh is scheduled to meet the court men of Allegheny on the local court May 12th. Thiel College at Greenville May 21st, Carnegie Tech and Pitt at Pittsburgh on May 26th and 27th respectively, W. and J. at Little Washington on the day following. Grove City will be played at Grove City May 31st and Carnegie Tech at Meadville on June 10th. With this well adjusted schedule, and a good team Captain-Manager Cochran expects to win most of the matches. How well his expectations may turn out can not be stated at the time this book goes to press.

Track Season of 1921

The first track meet of the 1921 season was held at Pittsburgh, with Carnegie Tech winning by a score of eighty-seven to thirty-nine. As last year, our weakness existed in the running events, for the hurdles were the only ones in which firsts were taken. With three men in the weights, Allegheny was able to better than break even with her opponent. Miller and Crumrine in the pole vault and high jump, respectively, showed that they could be counted on as consistent point-getters. The sprints and runs were lost by Allegheny, all of them being run off at better times than the Blue and Gold had expected. However with but one or two exceptions, our men bettered their records by appreciable amounts. With the training that the candidates will undergo in the two weeks' interim before the Geneva meet, better results can be expected. There is more reason for such hopes than the showing of the men against Tech. In the week previous, on April 31, the Allegheny Relay team ran against the Geneva quartette at the Penn Relays at Philadelphia and won by a good margin. This relay result prophesies the result of the quarter, providing, of course, nothing unforeseen occurs. In addition to the Geneva meet, at Montgomery Field, the Blue and Gold will compete in an inter-collegiate contest at Washington, Pa., on the Saturday of the following week. An inter-fraternity meet on the first of June, in conjunction with Moving-Up Day will close the season.

What the absolute results will be can not be determined at this date, but from indications at Philadelphia and at Pittsburgh, the team can be expected to acquit itself in a manner creditable to the college.

The following men constituted the squad that represented Allegheny at the relays: Wimmer, Bittner, Kinney, Croasmun, with McCreary as alternate. In addition to these men, who ran the dashes and quarter at Schenley Oval, the following took the trip: Bender, Kirschner, Beatty, Corbett, Secor, Bacon, Miller, Crumrine, MacGowan, Cunningham, Potter and Lawhead as manager.

The management has prepared in addition to the inter-collegiate contests, an inter-scholastic meet, embracing the representative schools in this section, to be held on May 14th. As the seventh annual contest of this kind, it should be as interesting as its predecessors.

In the second match with the University of Pittsburgh, Allegheny won 4-2. Flint, Cochran, Bittner and Dunbar playing.

Following are the scores for the two matches to date:

Grove City Match

DOUBLES

Cochran and Flint defeated Green and Beecher.... 1-6, 7-5, 6-1
Bittner and Dunbar lost to Williams and Phiefer.. 4-6, 6-2, 3-6

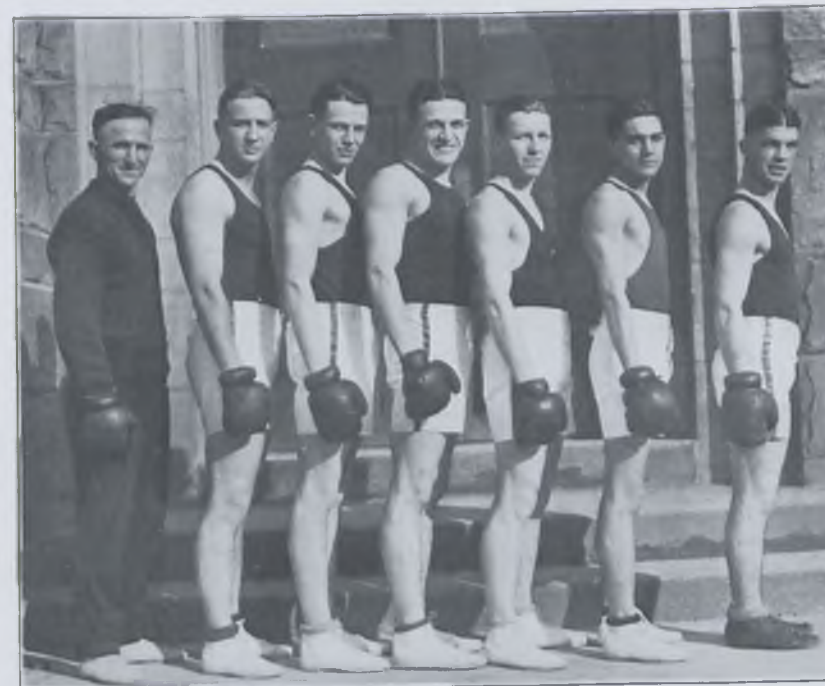

The Tennis Team for the season not having been definitely decided due to the inclement weather delaying the elimination tournament little can be said concerning it.

Cochran, '23, captain and manager; Flint, '23, and Bittner, '22, all of last year's team, are sure of their places. Dunbar, '21, looks like the fourth man, with Clark, '23, Stewart, '21, Melcher, '21, Ellsworth, '21, and Coale, '23, yet to fight it out for fifth place.

Indications are that Allegheny should win most of her matches this year with three very strong players from last year in Cochran, Flint and Bittner who always put up a very fine brand of tennis. Two other men of good calibre will undoubtedly be found among those still in the running in the tournament which will complete the team.

KALDRON

Boxing 1921

The first year of boxing as an inter-collegiate sport, Allegheny established an enviable record. An overwhelming winner of the only meet of the year, the coaches and college feel that Allegheny will stand high in this minor sport in the future.

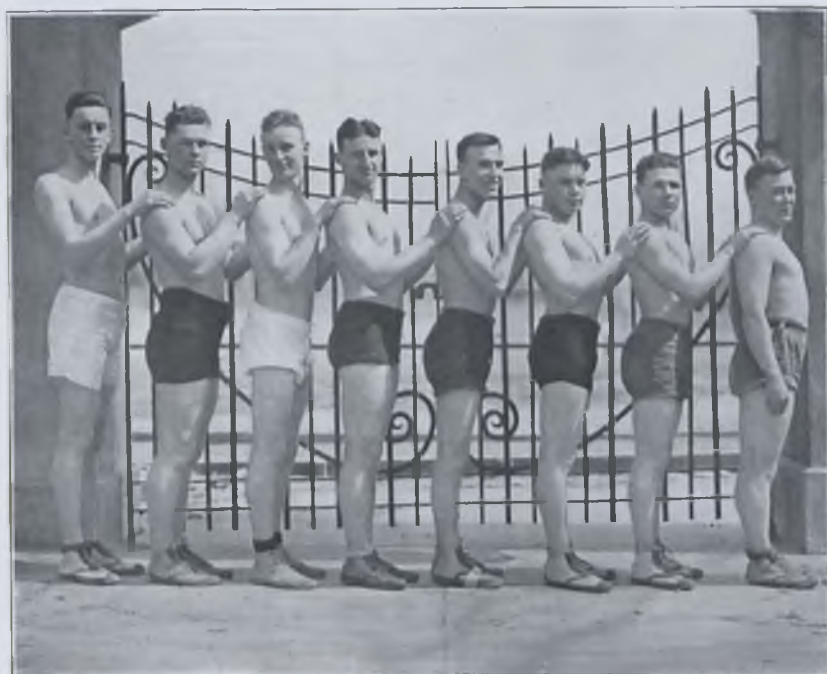

Earl Krotzer, a local boxer and promoter of considerable reputation, was intrusted with the training, and some hard-fought battles were fought, in preparation for the Tech bouts in the middle of March. Tech canceled however, alleging that her season had been closed, and the only other contest was that with Case on April 2nd.

The squad returned from Cleveland with a 5-1 score, Dale in the 175 pound class, experiencing the only reverse. Boxing the full three rounds, the decision was given to his opponent. In the middleweight class, Harold Leffingwell, after being floored in the first round, secured a knockout in the second. Laurens Leffingwell, in the welterweight class, maintained the family reputation by so hopelessly outclassing his opponent in the first two rounds that the latter declined the third. The closest bout of the day was in the 135 pound class, in which Parent secured the decision after going four full rounds with his man. The Case trainer saw it best to withdraw his featherweight champ during his first round with Kirkpatrick. Van Gorder completed the event by receiving the judges' decision at the close of the specified three rounds.

Harold Leffingwell, captain and middleweight on this year's team is the only man to graduate. "B. and O." has had considerable experience in the game, and his absence will be keenly felt.

Wrestling 1921

Under the direction of Coach Dickson, a local wrestler of some renown, the man had acquired much proficiency even before the final tournament on March 12th. The small wrestling room was the scene of many neck-stretching and back creaking arguments before it was finally settled who would constitute the final entries. The Council had authorized the purchase of gold medals to be awarded the winners in the respective classes and there was considerable rivalry in the matches. The final attempts were staged at the close of the Inter-State Basketball Tourney before a mixed audience of college and town fans. The following are the results:

125 lb. Class—Friend, '24, obtained a fall from Luse, '24, in three minutes.
 135 lb. Class—Black, '24, and Dailey, '24—Draw.
 148 lb. Class—Brevoort, '22, threw Smith, '21, in four minutes, twenty-five seconds.
 160 lb. Class—Iffert, '23, threw Shively, '24, in one minute, forty seconds.
 175 lb. Class—Bacon, '23, lost to Shultz, '24, on aggressiveness.
 Referee—Dickson.

Tournaments

Tri-State, Inter-City Tournaments

The athletic powers that be introduced a decidedly new feature into Allegheny sports, when they arranged and carried through successfully the elimination games of this tourney. Although the interscholastic track and field meet has been a custom here for several years, the facilities have never been such as to allow the convention of representative teams of nearby districts in basketball. This year, however, Coach Hammett thought it entirely possible, and with the backing of the college, made the tournament a success.

The first night of games resulted in dropping Lafayette High of Buffalo and Schenley High of Pittsburgh from the race. The following evening saw a game of basketball that has scarcely been rivaled on the home court this season. The phenomenal work of Willett, the colored boy of Cleveland, was the marvel of the contest. In turn, the teamwork of Central High of Erie, at least during the first half, is to be classed with that of Allegheny in some of its best games. Individual playing and foul shooting won out, giving Central High of Cleveland the large loving cup.

Inter-Fraternity Tournament

In a desire to develop and find any material which might have been passed by, the coaching staff held an inter-fraternity basketball elimination contest. Immediately before the Christmas recess, the final games were held. By victories over the Alpha Chi Rho team and the Allegheny Club team, the Phi Delta quintet was stacked up against the Delts who had beaten aggregations representing Phi Gamma Delta and Phi Kappa Psi. The last-named team had in turn defeated the Sig team, so that the final contest was between the winners of the college.

A large audience saw the Delts win the championship by a narrow margin. First one five and then the other took the lead, only to drop behind. The Delts finally won on a foul in the last second of play. The lineup:

Inter-Fraternity Baseball

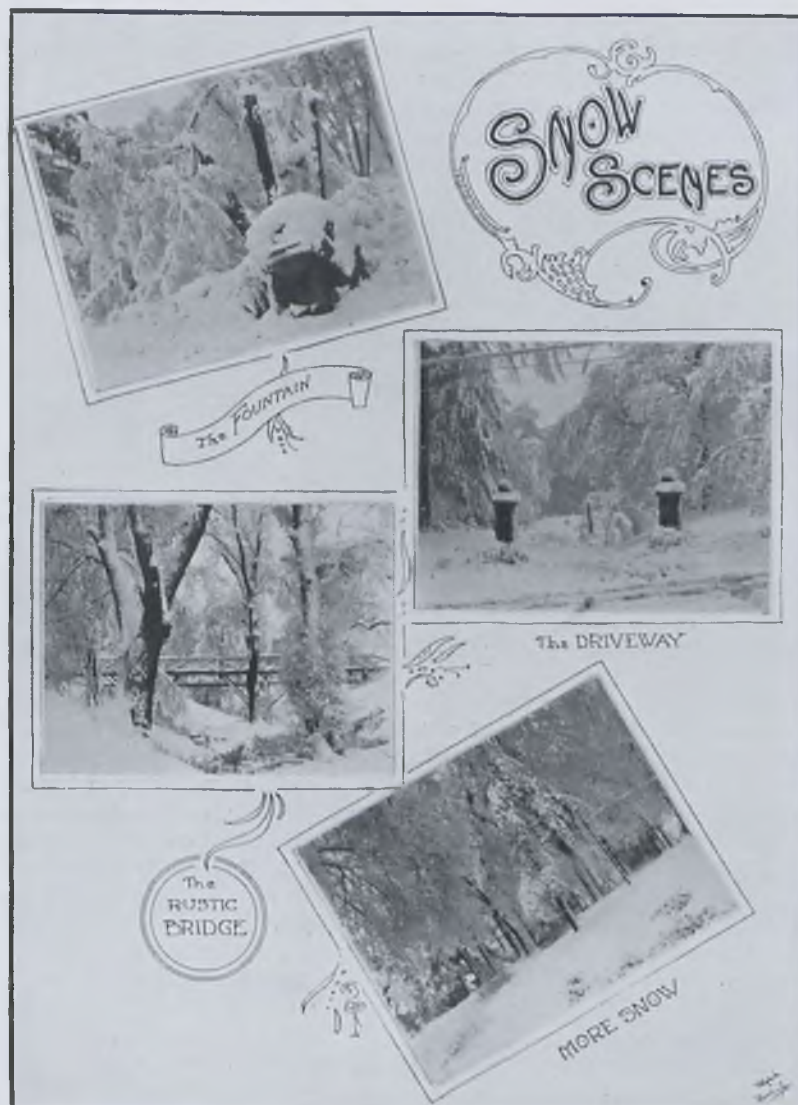

A great deal of interest has been manifested in the inter-fraternity baseball league again this year. The brand of ball displayed by most of the teams gives evidence that there is plenty of material in the school to turn out a representative team. The contests to date have resulted in all teams losing at least one game except the Phi Delts and the Phi Gamms. Either one championship game or a series of three games will be played between the Phi Delts and Phi Gamms Commencement week providing of course that neither suffer any reverses prior to that time.

The college year book, the Kaldron, first made its appearance in 1889. It was first published by the junior class but later taken up by the fraternities. The present budget system under the supervision of the Publication Board has proved very satisfactory. The Kaldron appears once each year usually about the first of June and represents student work entirely without faculty supervision or censorship.

The Literary Monthly was instituted in 1896 to meet the evident need of a publication to encourage and foster the literary talent of the college.

The Literary Monthly had a varied and checkered career until the adoption of the budget system by the Publication Board in 1920. Since that time it has flourished and promises to fill its place as the literary magazine of the college. The Literary Monthly appears seven times each year.

The Men's Senate was organized in 1916 and approved by the Faculty early in 1917. The constitution then adopted provided for a body of seven men; four seniors, two juniors, and one sophomore. The duties of the Men's Senate are to supervise elections, enforce college traditions and the honor system, and to co-operate with the discipline committee of the Faculty in matters of student discipline.

On May 7th, 1921, the men of the student body voted in favor of the proposed amendment to the constitution of the Senate whereby representation on the Senate will henceforth be upon the basis of fraternity groups instead of classes. From each group will be nominated three juniors, one of which will be elected. These men shall compose the Senate during their senior year. In case of the lack of seniors in any group juniors may be substituted. The new basis of representation promises much for the future effectiveness of the Senate.

It is the purpose of the Senate to foster and maintain college customs and traditions, to govern the conduct of the women of the college and to promote the best interests of the students and college alike. Two representatives are sent each year to the Women's Intercollegiate Association for Student Government of which Allegheny is a member.

The Senate consists of six seniors, two juniors and a sophomore.

Bentley, Reuter Hall, the Chapel and finally Cochran Hall have been the successive homes of the Y. M. C. A.

Neighborhood work, Americanization work among the foreigners and Sunday School extension have been the main fields of endeavor outside of the weekly meetings which are for the most part conducted by the students themselves.

The Classical Club, the oldest departmental organization at Allegheny, stands premier in room equipment, number of interesting sessions, and variety of banquets. Established in 1897 at the advent of Dr. Elliott, it has approximated a quarter century service as the incentive and outlet for classical study. Although a recent change in college curricular requirements has reduced the number of Greek and Latin scholars, the club has assumed a heightened zest with the decreased membership. But with its constitution revised, a larger elective membership will be possible, and the only hope extended is that the present increasing interest will be continued when more of those classically inclined are permitted to enjoy the fruits of these two departments.

The purpose of the Biology Club is to further the interests of the biological department and the encouragement of original work along biological lines. The club was organized in 1914 and had as its charter members the students who were especially interested in biology and who were doing advanced work in the department. Meetings are held every two weeks. The first one in the month is devoted to the consideration of a subject of interest to students in the biological field and the second usually partakes of the nature of a hike and study of plant or animal life or of geological formations. Members are elected by ballot and usually from those majoring in the department.

The membership of the club is limited to forty and consists of these young women interested in Political Science and History. Meetings are held every two weeks.

In the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and seven, on the first Friday in October, the Thoburn Club was born. Its infancy began, not in surroundings which were impediments to its growth, but in the idealistic atmosphere created by Dr. Camden M. Cobern.

The club grew by leaps and bounds. C. A. Hastings was elected the first president. Dr. Cobern, who the year previous had been elected to the chair of English Bible, gave his helpful support and the organization came rapidly to the front in college activities.

The purpose of the club is to give the embryo preacher, the missionary volunteer, the Y. M. C. A. worker, an opportunity to gather helpful ideas which sooner or later can be put into practice either at home or on the foreign field. This club also brings to the college every year a number of lecturers in such subjects as would naturally appeal to the young men who are interested in the moral and spiritual uplift of humanity. It works shoulder to shoulder with the Y. M. C. A. and is in close alliance with the Thoburn Chair of English Bible. Since nineteen hundred and seven it has been a very strong force in the religious activities of the college.

The Student Volunteer Movement of North America is represented in Allegheny by the Student Volunteer Band. Members of the movement are students in higher educational institutions who have made it their purpose to become foreign missionaries. The purpose of the Band is to exalt Christian standards in college life, to study the needs and problems of mission fields, and to present to students the opportunity for useful Christian work. The moral ideal of a consecrated life of service is constantly kept in mind. Meetings are held once a week for study, prayer and discussion.

Duzer Du was founded in 1910 for the purpose of furthering the development of the histrionic ability of the men in the college. At this time there were nine members of the club but at present the membership approaches the limit of twenty. Since the inauguration of the organization in the college, it has produced at least one play a year with the exception of the war years. From the casts of the plays and from the students who show managerial ability the members are elected with the result that it is usually composed of a representative group of the college men.

Plays Given

1921—Nothing but the Truth
1920—It Pays to Advertise
1919—Believe Me Zantippe
1916—The Importance of Being Earnest

Klee-O-Kleet was founded in 1911 by 13 young women of the college. It has been the purpose of the organization to foster and maintain an interest in dramatics among the girls of the college. Membership of the club is limited to 15 and is confined to members of the Junior and Senior Classes who have shown marked managerial or dramatical ability. The club traditionally presents one play a year, usually in May. The following plays have been presented to date:

Les Romanesques, 1911
 Pygmalion and Galatea, 1912
 Livig of Thorn, 1913
 Revenge of Shar-Hot-Sun, 1914

The Band was organized during the 1918-19 term and consisted of thirteen men. Last year the membership numbered twenty men, while this year thirty-five men tried out, twenty-eight of which were admitted to membership. The purpose of the organization is to stimulate good music among those so inclined and to allow instrumentalists of some competence to continue their work in ensemble. The band meets throughout the year in preparation for concerts, athletic events and college functions including Commencement programs.

St. Cecilia Club is one of the youngest clubs on the Hill, having finished the first complete year of active work in June, 1920. This club is composed only of Junior and Senior women, not to exceed fifteen in number. As the name implies it is a musical club. Each member is required to be an instrumental or vocal soloist and to be prepared to do solo work at any time. The club meets fortnightly during the school year to study, both with papers and musical programs, various subjects of music and the musical world. In addition, the club gives at least one recital or entertainment during the school year.

In April of this year, the club presented "Nawadaha and His Tribe," an original collaboration of Indian music and legends. It was a work of merit reflecting careful research on the part of the members of the club into this type of American music.

This society was organized at Chicago, on April 13, 1906, by representatives from seven large universities of the middle west. The Allegheny Chapter was instituted in 1913.

The purpose of Delta Sigma Rho is to encourage sincere and effective public speaking, and, being purely honorary, the society is rather formal in character, secrecy being stressed not at all. Membership is limited to upper classmen who have represented the college in an intercollegiate contest in a speaking capacity.

There are at present about 60 chapters, and during the World War the entire membership of the society gave its best support to the government where effectual public speaking was required.

Alpha Chi Sigma is an honorary national chemical fraternity founded for the purpose of binding more closely together its members who are striving for the advancement of chemistry. It is not entirely professional in its intention, but seeks to inculcate that spirit of brotherhood which unites its members in bonds of true friendship. Its members are drawn from students of chemistry who intend to make some phase of chemistry their life work.

Several months ago, some of the advanced students in the Department of Biology felt the need for a Greek society among the men of that department. The field was investigated and since no national society was found, it was decided to organize a local society at Allegheny of such a character that it might prove worthy of expansion. This decision found expression in the efforts of five men, who, aided by the sympathy and advice of the faculty of the department, formed the society of Phi Beta Phi. These five founders are: William E. Severn, H. A. Jones, W. R. Flint, George Booth, and Clifford W. Skinner.

The object of Phi Beta Phi is to encourage sincere effort and study in the field of Biology. Members are chosen from those who follow advanced courses in the department and whose work is of a high character.

Backword

For All That is Contained in the Sections You Have Just Read and for the Manner in Which it is Presented We Assume the Responsibility. If it has Met with Your Approval, a Good Part of Our Work is Done, But if it Has Failed to Satisfy Your Demands Then We can But Say That We are Sorry That Our Best Efforts Have Failed to Please and Add Our Earnest Hope That in the Near Future Some Board Will be Able to Produce to the Satisfaction of All.

Now,—we introduce you to yourself. What follows is but a reflection of what you have said and done during the year insofar as we have been able to find out and as much as we dare publish. For this we assume no responsibility. For what may be found in the sections that follow you are responsible. For what is not there we are responsible for only what we know and dared not print. Enter upon it, therefore, if you dare, and enjoy if you can, the fruits of your follies.

Senior Writeups As They Are and Should Be

AS THEY ARE

PERCY FITZGERALD-RANDOLPH VONBOCKENBERGER

Duzer Du, 1, 2, 3, 4; Chairman Senior Class Commencement Day Ushering Committee, 4; Sergeant-at-arms Philo-Franklin, 2; Chess Team (Varsity), 4; Modern Problems Club, 4.

"Von" is a living ray of Pittsburgh sunshine who has lightened the hearts of all who knew him. He has done his part to wear the hollows in the front steps of Hulings also the hollow on the threshold of the Dean's office. Business is the world that beckons him and his future success cannot be doubted.

AS IT SHOULD BE

Duzer Du, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6; Exiles Club, 3, 5; Delegate Bootleggers Convention, 6; Mail Pouch Brotherhood, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6; Winner Chariot Race Affy's Dance Hall, 5, 6; Winner Pie-Eating Contest at Lunch Wagon, 6; Poker Club, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6.

Percy has the ideal poker-player's face; he looks as ignorant one moment as he does the next. He liked the place so well he stayed six years to get his degree although a hard-hearted Faculty exiled him twice for low marks and drunkenness. Percy's subterranean activities may be found listed at the police court. Percy is now looking for a job and we think it a shame that he should be graduating just when labor's come down to thirty cents an hour.

GEORGE K. DOUTFULLER

"Humpty, Dumpty sat on a wall, Humpty Dumpty had a great fall."
Griper's Club, 1, 2, 3, 4.

George came to college with a wonderful record from his high school; an honor student and well recommended by his teachers. He was valedictorian and janitorian, president of the Tuesday Evening Webster Debating Society, best top spinner in the school and was chief alternate on the shinny team. Needless to say he was rushed hard by all six fraternities, five of which are not sorry. He has been an awful disappointment to his supporters. He told the Kaldron interviewer, in all confidence, that the system of marking is all wrong; the profs are a bunch of boneheads; that it's easier to watch all that goes on in a four ring circus than in the political rings at Allegheny. He admits that if the coach hadn't had it in for him he would have broken several track records.

The recent increase to thirty students and need for an extra prof in his home high school solves his problems of a job.

JOHN L. TUCKLESS

"I've dreamed my dreams as all men do, but never a one came true."
2nd Asst. floor waxer for Senior Hop

"Johnnie" came fresh from a small town with plenty of small town stuff. Born of poor parents he felt that he had a poor start and has been poorly ever since. The poor devil got a poor start in Allegheny. Tried out for the Glee Club but was rescued. Tried out for Duzer Du but failed miserably. Tried out for track team; ran first lap of marathon. Would have run farther but got thirsty. Tried for assaulting officer after Senior-Soph banquet. Profs all think he's a confirmed sot, when, poor fellow, he'd never scarcely left his room before or since except to attend classes. His only success came in his Senior year with his election as second assistant floor waxer for Senior Hop.

We all hope he gets a job somewhere at something or other.

Best of All Accessories

There's nothing like a little car—
The chummy roadster kind;
An engine purring up in front,
A spare tire on behind.

But best of all accessories
(With kisses there to steal)
Is this—a girl beside you who
Can hold the steering wheel.

How tempting is the sweet young miss
Who knows the way to drive!
There's nothing for a boy to do
But sit there and connive—

Of various ways to win her smile,
Her hand, her heart, her mind;
There's nothing like an auto of
The chummy roadster kind.

The theater has allurements;
Some call the dance divine,
Ben Johnson soberly confessed
That he'd not ask for wine—

Could he but find a girl to drink
To him with her blue eyes;
Yet old Ben Johnson missed a lot
In spite of being wise.

He never spun along the road
In a car just built for two;
In the game of love so many things
He never, never knew.

Bill Shakespeare is the chap who said
That love itself is blind;
But Billy never owned a car—
The chummy roadster kind.

Pass the Apples

When every pool in Eden was a mirror
That unto Eve her daily charms proclaimed,
She went undraped without a fear
Or thought she need be ashamed

'Twas only when she'd eaten of the apple
That she became inclined to be a prude
And found that she evermore had to grapple
With the much debated problem of the nude.

Thereafter she devoted her attention
Her time and all her money to her clothes
And that was the beginning of convention
And of modesty as well, I suppose.

Reaction has set in in fashion recent
Now, girls conceal so little from the men
That 'twould seem that in the name of all that's decent
Some one ought to pass the apples round again.

Why Is It

That in college a sorority is as proud as she can be of her girls who are wearing a man's fraternity pin and never fail to point her out as being engaged to so and so while in a fraternity all the men are ashamed of the fellow who has been so weak as to be inveigled into parting with his pin and every time any company comes they hide him down the cellar and speak his name only in whispers.

 18. "Be it ever so humble—"

JANUARY

- The Month of the Galloping Galosh. Press and clergy rise to view the unbuttoned galosh. Judge Palmer pronounces them "vamp galoshes." Funny how women will draw attention to their feet, open galoshes and roll their own and,—
3. A few faithful have arrived.
 - Bill Miller pinched for hoot-leggin'.
 4. Billy Traum plays "The Vamp" in chapel. Ruse stands at attention. (It did sound like the National Anthem.)
 6. Bingham makes, "a hot time in the old town tonite." Please don't blame this on hot air Bingham.
 7. Geneva goes by the board 26-22. Doc English still dragging his S. S. A. around.
 8. A Baron from Russia tells us about it. He sure was a Baron whee's.
 9. Hulings kids itself into a fire drill. Ye gods, why not pad the chapel seats for these 45-minute sermons.
 10. Doc Lee's indigestion gets 'em again.
 11. Doc Henke awakens Dick from slumber.
 12. Frosh wallop varsity. The sailor sells homespun to the boys.
 14. Scoop and Bob instill pep into the coolidge. Niagara's scalp taken 20-18.
 15. Football Banquet a grand success. Henke visits the Academy to study the, "Sike of Theatre Audiences." Poor Doc.
 17. If there are any shows worse than the Academy we hope they never get to Meadville.
 18. The Mason's smoke with the profs.
 19. W. Va. Wesleyan falls for us 36-22.
 - Half Faculty among the missing. Ling Leads Chapel.
 20. Doc, Ling still on the job. He'd make a good preacher. Like —
 21. Orators orate for fifty simoleans. Pitt cleans us 37-22 at the Motor Square.
 22. Wakefield tells us that we are created but little lower than the "imps" in the balcony. Geneva heaten.
 23. Dr. Fast from Akron wears an inner tube vest and preaches a puncture-proof sermon that sure was a humdinger.
 24. Suitatorium changes hands. "A business in creases." We get 'em in our pants instead of our brains.
 25. Learn men and women will be alone at Banquet.
 27. Those — finals. Wet towels, black coffee, self condemnation.
 29. Tech gets first basket ball victory over Allegheny since B. C. 4. Akers flunks 28 of 'em.
 30. Cornell and three of the Phi Alphas awake in time to eat at the Hall. What we call crust.

 - Letter comes from Mrs. C. O. Applegran.
 - Doc Brown here.
 - Star gazin' good at Lings. Greenlund takes his mustache off for a day.
 - We hear Vic Leffingwell has joined Ben Turpin's All-Star cast.
 - New catalogue out. Dickson lives at the Delt House.
 - Doc Schultz shoots his usual line.
 - Plumb missed a date at the Hall. Mutt has one at his old stand at the reservoir.
 - Loomis stretches the kinks out of his hard workin' brains.
 - Dates spring up under the trees.
 - Dozie gets his name in the home town paper.
 - Senior Hop finally hopped, a la cobble stone pavement.
 - Wills promoted to chapel monitor for regular attendance.
 - Helmlinger uses tooth paste for shaving soap.
 - Campus dead. No one around to bury it.
 - Dick and Dan "drop a penny on the drum." Beta U pins appear and two heads swell to size 10.

- McClean joins the Akers Market Basket Club. Phi Delt's turn out en masse to YM election.
- Fire in the millinery shop. Shirer gets caught swippin' a hat for his girl.
- Wills gets a hair cut. He needed it.
- Doc Bill donates lawn mower to cut grass in front of Phi Beta Kappa house. Some one donate him a Gillette please.
- Mary Gealy and Sal. McQuiston attend the Phi Gams mothers' party.
- Girls' Glee Club raises so much racket in Phi Psi house that Mansfield can't study.
- Helen and Rev surprised in classical club room. Hy what?
- Salvation Army Tag Day. No one goes to town.
- Riding School opens. She was only a preacher's daughter but all the horsemen knew her. Penn Relays. Relay places third.
- Eleanor Graham's picture found in Ham Eaton's room. We wonder? Who else? Phi Psis have a hot time.
- Cork and Ann find star gazin' fine from the athletic field bleachers.

MAY

- The Month when Fraternity Pins Disappear, lingerie gets lighter if possible, girls begin to give value received on these nice moonlight evenings for all the fraternity parties they have attended.
- Account of Sunday Blue Laws Dick doesn't shoot billiards.
 - Jenkins still pullin' A's. Lucky he has a Phi Beta Kappa Key in the family.
 - Mel Jones dies of embarrassment. He finds a hole in the heel of his sock.
 - Flint has a date. Bound copy of catalogue and alumni register known as "Old Allegheny" is out.
 - Chess team practicing hard.
 - No use Pitt beats them. Tennis team cleans up. Track teams loses at Tech.
 - Chapel—worse luck.
 - Myrtle falls down stairs and breaks her record.
 - Kunselman still tryin'. Track manager this time.
 - Sigs wear a heterogenous mixture of monkey suits gathered up all over town. They look like it. Pitt walloped in tennis.
 - Clips pins it on her at Young's Matrimonial Agency.
 - Interscholastic track meet. Jelbart gets drunk on Whistle. Schadt excuses Guerdon from class to cut poles for the pole vaulters, also Secor to warm up the hurdles.
 - We quit. Goin' to press.

A Snap-shot

The movie down street
Was no good
And neither was the Moon.
So the parlors were full
And also the hall
When Wilma and Al got there
And they looked in
And guessed
They'd stay outside on the porch,
And Clip, who was in the hall,
Took a chair,
Opened the door, and said,
"Here's a chair, Al!"
Which was Good.
But just then
Prexy
And the Dean
Came up the walk
And Miss Spalding
Accused Clip
Of stealing the furniture,
Which was Better.

Co-Eds Flee Flames

(By special dispatch to the Kaldron)
Meadville, Pa.—

Have you ever heard of the Huling's fire
By telegraph, telephone, or town-crier,
By word of tongue or by print or wire?
Making the firemen earn their hire,
Bringing gray hairs to many a sire—
Scaring Miss Spalding into fits,
Frightening Prexy out of his wits!
Oh, you'll never of the story tire!

A snowy night just last November,
As all concerned can well remember,
When Huling's might have burned to an ember,
That was the night when through the gloom
Flames broke into a third-floor room,
Where, wakened from quiet like the tomb,
Two girls thought sure they read their doom.

Being a very strange condition
They didn't even wait for permission
But ran and told the Chief about it.
Then did things happen? Oh, don't you doubt it!

The girls were rounded up for flight,
And all marched out that snowy night.
(Out into the living-room, I mean.
A happy thought. God save the Dean!)
A telephone call down town for aid
Was sent by another dauntless maid,
And lo! the engines were up the Hill
By the time the doors were open, and still Upstairs Madge sought the flames to kill
With chemicals—Oh, what a thrill!
An electric iron through an ironing-board
Had burned it's way until quite floored,
It gave itself to wrath and ire,
And that's what caused the Hulings fire.

The town department started things hoppin'
With hoses going and axes choppin'
Till the Dean grew rather ill at ease
And thus addressed old Dowdell, "Please
Don't use any water to put it out,
It would spoil the other rooms, no doubt!"
And Dowdell swore, as he will do,
With a !!x-?!(:!! and a "You go to —"
That the reason they'd roused the fire-house flivver
Was to make old Hulings look like a river.
(Said they usually put fire out with water.)

While "Forrest County" greatest of s-heroes
Pulled up three flights of a stairs a fire hose,
And half-way up the very last flight
Dowdy howled, "We don't want that." Good night!

Minus a slipper-heel, plus a burn,
Poor Madge thought the end was her'n,
And if a fireman hadn't caught her
"Doc" Stanford might be minus a daughter.
(It was the best-looking fireman, she said.)
He presently asked—"Are you all right?"
"I'm all right now!" Again, good night!
(Anyway, that's the way he tells it.)

Downstairs, huddled in mass formation.
The others waited more conflagration
But didn't get it. But listen, Bless
My soul, the Associated Press
Gave it headlines big and strong,
Wrote out paragraphs vivid and long.
The next day all the world was seein'—
"Allegheny Co-eds Flee in ———"
(Well, practically all the newspapers.)

That's about all to the Huling's fire,
And just because a little wire
Did it's duty and made things hot,
But will we forget it? We will not—
Not so long as there is spring,
As Dowdell cusses and fire bells ring,
As pressing is done in Hiling's Hall—
That is—forever. I guess that's all.

An Invitation

Meadville, Pa., 4-18-'21.

Mr. Fuss,
Allegheny College.

Dear Johnnie:—

Us girls of Gabba Gabba Lina Fraternity are going to have a party May 2 out at the Lake and I'd like to have you come. It's going to cost us $17.68 so you want to come. Of course you've already promised me to come but these here formal invites are quite the thing up here so I'm sending this. Kindly answer and oblige,

Yours proudly,

POCOHANTUS O'RILEY.

P. S.—You'll have to send me flowers either orchids or daffodils.

The Answer

Dear Pokie:—

I do hereby accept your kind invitation with gusto and reckless abandon. I'm not much good at dancing but I'm practising twice a week down at the Moose since I rec'd your invitation. I'll have to pawn my watch to keep it up and buy them flowers but I'll come.

Fearfully yours,

JOHN FUSS.

 Applegran: "Now, in Illinois."
 Spaulding: "Do you remember Sweet Alice Ben Bolt."

Love on the Cussie

or,

Miss Spaulding Keep Your Girls Out of the Moonlight

It was "in the evening by the moonlight". As he gazed into her eyes, he thought he was intoxicated, for they were like two luminous moons. They (not her eyes) were gliding over the gently rippling waters in a "Tippecanoe". She sat in the center facing him and lightly playing her ukelele, while he swung his paddle, "with measured beat and slow", that seemed at times to fairly lift the frail bark from the water and caused purring ripples to break at the bow. She gazed up at him with eyes that were large and luminous and sighed softly, "I think you are wonderful". Then she sang, "You've been more than a daddy to me", with deep throated, sympathetic feeling and tones full of meaning.

The paddle spurned the waves as it cut into the water. Delirious with joy he paddled the canoe all over the rocks and debris, while she continued to play "On the Beach at Waikiki". When he had somewhat regained his mental equilibrium the real moon was still smiling down on them and the same sweet voice was still singing softly from the middle of the canoe. The sweet fragrance of her hair, the joy of having her near thrilled him through and through. "The leaves hung all around", as she sang "Sweet kisses who gave them to me." "What did you say", the poor boob murmured?

She shyly repeated the last verse. He heard it for the second time! As he watched her dainty fingers lightly strumming he wondered whether she was stringing him also.

"Ah", he sighed. That was all. The canoe moved forward from its aimless drifting. Love again surged in his breast for the beautiful ukelele tickler before him. For the first time the darts of Cupid had deeply pierced the big heart of the big fellow in the stern of the canoe. The canoe fairly ploughed through the water as his breath came in gasps. Ah, what love was here,—there.

"May I sit by you and draw you to me and gaze deep into those lovely eyes?" he finally pleaded with passionate eloquence such as he had never known before. Even as he said it he blushed at his boldness, but the kind moon failed to reveal his embarrassment.

"Yes, Love, come here and sit by my side", enticed the hold Hulings maid. It was necessary for her to repeat before he finally overcame his temporary paralysis. Finally, filled with love for this beautiful, fairy like creature before him, he stood up, breathed deeply of the fragrant air and took a step forward. Only one. My what a thrill! He gasped as the cold water closed over his head.

The Eternal Feminine

This tale is sad but very true,
About a damsel loved by two,
Pursued by both about the hill,
They roamed the Phi Psi House at will.
The maiden, sore perplexed was she,
'Twas hard to make a choice, you see;
For when on one she had decided,
The other came and gently chided,
And told her of his love so true,
As lots of fellows often do.
And when she'd fall for this old line,
And would around his neck entwine
Her arms, and on his shoulder lay her head,
He'd wish his rival was quite dead.

They kept this up for quite a spell
From Main Street Tank to Movie Reel,
But at last, by dint of superior cunning
(And fifty week-night dates hand running)
One managed to beat the others time
And seemed to be getting along quite fine.
If you'd ask the geese or the ducks, Oh well
Ducks can't talk, but if they could only tell
Of the touching scenes enacted there
On Phi Psi back-porch in that one lone chair
Of the plans for a bungalow for two,
As they painted their dreams of a rosy hue.
How he'd quit school and go to the city
And save enough, (by dragging the kitty)
Then he'd send for her, his own sweet love,
Then she'd bill and coo like a turtle dove.

What caused the sudden change of this plan,
Will never be known to mortal man.
But she sweetly kissed him good-bye one night
And left with his rival in hasty flight.

Women As We See Them

- The Campus Vamp—Goes especially big the first few weeks of college—Has an appealing air—Generally not so bad as she is painted. (An Alpha Chi Sophomore and an Alpha Gam Frosh.)
The Fluffy Duffy Girl—Is often classed as dear—Which suggests the question whether that signifies that she is swift or merely expensive. (We know two Theta Freshmen.)
The High Brow (we don't have many)—Speaks with cultivated articulation—Very precise in word and deed—Much better at Terathology than Terpsichore, 'tis said. (A Kappa Senior.)
The Athletic Girl—Otherwise classed as a Good Scout—Can ride, swim, play tennis and dance better than you—Makes a great pal but not much on love. (Another Alpha Chi Sophomore.)
The Co-ed Bolshevik—Talks embryo radicalism fluently—Generally bobs her hair—Thinks her neck better looking than her face—Is usually right. (Modesty forbids mention.)
The Butterfly—Certainly is a bird—At least she flies high—As a Good Scout resembles a Gold Digger—Has good lines—One for all occasions. (A Kappa Freshman.)

Bill's Funeral Day

On his death bed old Bill lay
Thinking how they'd have him on display
In a casket in the parlor
On his coming fun'ral day.

I'll have a haircut and a shave,
I'll be all dressed up they say,
And the wrinkles in my suit
Will all be neatly pressed away.

Say, Doc,—you'd better put a sign up
On my coffin, "Here's Bill J",
I'm afraid my friends won't know me
On my coming fun'ral day.

"Puppet"

The following is what we call a very sweet little letter that was picked up on the campus. Modesty prevents our including the names:

Dearest

..... doesn't like any better than I like you. For that matter I don't think she likes him half as well as I like you. Anyway she couldn't like him any better than I like you. How come that he is so much more faithful in answering letters etc. than you?

I'm dreadfully homesick for a date with you but as that cannot seem to be arranged on account of confictions on your part, writing is the next best or—you might phone.

Anything but this awful silence that has existed for two whole days now. Perhaps you intend to make it a permanent silence but you ought to let me down more gently than this, don't you think, dearie?

No kidding I would have given anything to have had you call yesterday. I'm getting homesick ahead of time.

..... would you like a date with me the first week after we come back from Easter Vacation? No hurry of course, only I just wondered. Gwan and answer, please.

At school—Holding hands at the movies, and buying her a couple of sundaes.
At her home—Taking her for a long walk on Sunday.

Real Art

We understand little of the art of kissing on this side of the ocean except the co-educational sort which we learn on North Park Avenue, in the dark movie house and in Cemetery Ravine. The Europeans are very adept. A field marshal can kiss an entire army corps in an hour and a half and never miss a smack or have one explode in the air. They have been at it for many centuries. Postmasters kissed everybody who came for letters. The king kissed his court chamberlain and then tied a can to him the next minute. Kissing in some countries is a good deal like eating breakfast food. It gets so it doesn't mean anything.

To give is better than to receive. That's what every woman thinks about criticism.

Many a girl in all-silk lingerie has only an all-cotton mentality.

Brother I. M. Redeye is recovering from an attack of pneumonia contracted by spending a night in the Water Street gutter after a toot.

The Rev. Frank Gabber, '02, of Pitt Hole, was an unwelcome visitor at the House, Monday night.

Brother Slick pulled that one on the Registrar about his grandfather dying and went home last week to attend the Coon Creek dance.

We are pleased to state that Brother Fire-eater's case of delirium tremens which kept the House in an uproar Saturday night left no bad after-effects.

Brother Front on his return to school from his home at Woods Run, spent an afternoon in Pittsburgh which he claims is his home.

CHEWA WADA GUM

Miss Queena Sheba is recovering from a nervous breakdown which followed being spoken to by a total stranger from the campus last week.

Miss Raisem Higher reports that young Professor Bash can be vamped for a good mark if vamping is properly conducted.

Miss Gladys Livin fell down the second floor stairway Thursday and injured herself.

Miss Vulvia Grub suffered slight convulsions Saturday night as a result of a clandestine fudge party.

Miss Stepout kept a date in Erie Sunday night.

A Sensible Conclusion

He loved her.
 He loved her passionately.
 He could think of no one else in the world.
 She was the sum total of his existence and all that.
 For a long time he wooed her and laid his honest heart at her feet.
 He pictured himself in a bungalow with roses twining over the door and was happy.
 He even thought about the children and how the first two would be named after him and her.
 She loved him.
 She loved him devotedly.
 He had all the manly qualities she admired.
 She had a sense of contentment and safety when he was near.
 The brightest moments of her maiden life were spent with her hero.
 She pictured herself in a bungalow with roses twining over the door and was happy.
 She even planned the delightful trips and vacations they would have after they had been married.

L'ENVOI

But they never married.
 And they are still the best of friends.

Sub Stuff

Slowly the figures
 Flickered
 Across the silver sheet.
 Until at last the hero
 And villain clinched
 At the brink of the precipice,
 While the shero
 Clung to a convenient
 Cactus and registered fear. In
 Very tense excitement
 I clutched tight the edge
 Of my seat.

Capital punishment
 Would be appropriate
 For those who use
 The underside
 Of a seat in
 The movies
 As a parking place
 For gum.

When You Go

When you go to Bentley do not enter the door at the right. That is the Phi Beta Kappa entrance and is reserved for those of that rank. Enter at the center door over which was inscribed in the olden days, "Ye who enter here leave hope behind but bring good excuses." It is the seat of the mighty; your misdeeds are hashed and rehashed, your good deeds are discounted. You are subjected to all the wiles which great minds have conceived; cuts, hills and even the book store is open at times to lure the uninitiated into losing his paternal blessing. Take heed of that building and do not keep to the right after entrance; it leads to trouble.

When you go to chapel take with you not a devout mind but rather a fine purse, for the exercise of the morning may be given over to the Relief of Harmless Dogs in Mexico. A loaded Waterman is required since the slips are to be passed to sign away your life but not your chapel cuts. At the close of each disbursement open the hymnal and fix your cards with "What various hindrances we meet." 'Tis pessimistic but sing out. If at last your funds run out and you are called to reckon before the tribunal for non-attendance, enter the plea of "summa cum laude" and have counsel appointed. Merely say, "I can't afford it."

When you go to Ruter some morning and the first door inside is open, don't give up drinking. Those things are real but they can't move. A definite proof may be obtained by slapping the bull moose under the chin. If you are still in your right mind on departure, they are dead.

Be prepared to meet a K. M. with her blue prints, compasses and range-finders. You may run into a big, sour looking individual but don't stop. He will look down and remark, "That's nice." Proceed on up to higher realms and argue that you wouldn't accept $8,000 without working for it. That's safe; you won't. But remember the motto of this building is U. No O.

If you go to Alden notify us in advance. We will arrange a diet for you, to be followed judiciously during the week previous to the visit. This will enable you to withstand the severe shock coming from first contact with scientific odors and barbarian treatment of cripples. Take care that you do not fall in with a set of hellbenders. They have even been known to eat when the food was forced into their gullets and their mouths sealed. The latter is an attribute of the building. While there, if you are troubled with falling hair, apply to the head of the department. He found a sure cure. Before leaving call the health officer and go through a process of fumigation.

If you go to Carnegie take plenty of Mail Pouch and breakage fees for the assistants enjoy the luscious weed. Write on the tablets of thy heart that T. N. Richards is the patron saint of chemistry and never make the break that Dolomite was an Egyptian Diety. Modern history students should study up on the Milk War so as to vote intelligently on the Farmer's Tariff Bill. Never look at your watch because you don't need to know whether it is the next period or not. What is the fundamental science? Polish your glassware so as to be the envy of your instructor but never mistake the thermostat for a swimming pool. Keep your mouth open, don't be blase.

If you go to Hulings take a hand and a large individual sign. Then get into your black glasses, tin cup, and accordion and present yourself at the door. Your appearance may arouse sympathy among the inmates causing them to crowd around you. Focus all attention on your datee. This is but a simple method of eliminating the long hours of waiting and ads greatly in decreasing the number of stiff necks among the men of the college. It is of great value to people who are hard of hearing and persist in understanding that you said 9:30 instead of 7:30. Never make the awful blunder of saying, "Good evening, Miss Spalding", to the person who answers the bell. You may have to explain.

When you go to Wilcox take a Motion Picture Magazine in which Ben Turpin uncorks some new stuff. Never compare; comparisons are odorous. Train in advance so that your ears may be imperfect to sounds coming from below. They only serve to confuse you in what you do know. Hitch in with an air of perfect resignation, adjust your spurs, place your feet on the other fellow's neck, and peruse the magazine. Don't fall asleep. Rumors from the past have come down to us of men, overcome by drowsiness, falling down into the arena and of the awful fate meted out to them. Remember that although Daniel wasn't afraid of the lions, the lions weren't a bit afraid of Daniel.

When you go to the Library take with you some interesting literature to while away the hours; but if you use the building for its real purpose take rather one of the benighted maidens from the home. Most of the information there is like the statues in the Classical Club room, bewhiskered and unsurpassingly dry. It is also in great demand by the men after house parties because the silence rule enables them to escape the prattling tongue of women.

If you go to graduate, don't feel relieved. There's many a slip twixt cup and lip.

From Their Diaries

Hers

Oct. 12. Went out with J. H. tonight. He's queer. I'd hate to have him hang around much. Poor nut! I kidded him along. So slow—and in college. He can't dance.

Oct. 17. Went to church with J. H.; he wanted to. Sat there like a chump. He listened to sermon. Has a terrible voice. Walked around and back to the Hall—Such an evening.

Nov. 15. John and I tonight. He told me lots of nice things. He's not such a bad fellow. Went to the Academy but he talked to me all the time. I rather like him.

Dec. 25. Seventh letter from John since I came home. And that wonderful ring. I can hardly wait to see him.

Jan. 3. John. He looks so nice. Its great to be back. I couldn't help but—

Jan. 15. Went to the Library—met John. We took a little walk. It was rather cold but I didn't notice it. He's a dear.

Feb. 11. Went to party with John. He's a divine dancer. I think he has wonderful hair and those eyes.

March 7. Sneaked a date—across the campus and around. I just love him.

Mar. 23. John came down to see me—a real date.

April 5. Went to chapel—but didn't. John and I walked. He sang to me. His voice is marvelous. Isn't spring great. "In the Spring," etc.

May 2. John said he loved me and gave me his pin and oh! how he kissed me. Never was a man like him. And to think I loved him from the first.

His

Oct. 12. Date with M. B. Never again. Chatters all the time and giggles. Thought she was kidding me. She's giddy. Acts slow.

Oct. 17. Relented—went to church with M. B. She sat and read the hymnal and she cannot sing! Walked back to the Hall—and I was in my right mind.

Nov. 15. Mary again. Her line isn't so bad after all. She acts real nice and let me hold her hand. I think she likes me. I'll find out.

Dec. 25. Another letter from Mary. Gee! I'll be glad when we get back.

Jan. 3. Vacation's over and saw Mary. Looks great. Went out and she kissed me.

Jan. 15.—We met at Library and walked with our arms around each other. No one saw us though. She's the most wonderful girl I've ever met.

Feb. 11. Party at house—Mary, of course—I like to dance with her. It seems so natural and she's really adorable in a party dress.

Mar. 7. Felt blue—walked with Mary—I can't help myself.

Mar. 23. Went to see Mary. Wish we were there for all our dates. I love her—I love her—I love her. Wonder if I could ask her.

April 5. Met Mary at Dr. Brown's meeting. Weather wonderful warm, moon, she sang to me and it seemed divine. I'm glad it's spring.

May 2. She does! She does! She does? She's mine! Wait till I tell Dad—Da Da Da. And I always knew she was meant for me.

Up Is Down

Interesting women.	And Miss So and So, she's such an old dear.
Seldom keep their appointments.
Forever keeping you up in the air.	And then the phone rang.
They are never on time.	(This is old stuff.)
They are always late—	There's always a phone call.
From ten minutes	Especially in Hulings.)
To the length of your endurance	You see how it is
If they do arrive at all	Don't you?
They rush up breathlessly.	Of course you do
With a soft scent of Jasmine about them.	There I knew you would.
And a swish of silk, and	You're such an angel.
A sweet apologetic smile.	In case you don't.
They touch your arm, and begin	From here she goes on and on.
Each one has her own line, but	She invents brand new excuses.
The usual lingo goes:	And likes them so well herself.
Oh! I am so sorry.	That she makes up others
Honest I hate this like everything.	To use on the victim
I can't begin to tell you	Of her next appointment
How sorry I am.	That she'll be late for.
Have you been waiting long?	For she's always late.
Gracious is it that late?	That's why she has any at all.
How awful of me.	You forgive her—you
But you've no idea.	Always do—you
How many people.	Can't very well
Came to my room.	Do anything else.
One of the girls from town.	For you're such an angel.
And then Jane, Dot or Mary.	Don't you Know.

The Allegheny Credo

(With the necessary apologies)

By one who styles himself the Tail Light

There have been almost as many "credos" modeled after "The American Credo" as there were answers to "In Flanders Fields". The TAIL LIGHT has been immensely interested in reading these. Some are good and some are none too hot. The TAIL LIGHT believes itself to be in close touch with the Allegheny undergraduate, in fact, we're one of the d— fools ourself. After several months of intensive study on the subject of the conceptions of the undergraduate on some of the campus topics we wish to offer th's rather exhaustive statement. Lights, please, and some slow music.

The average undergraduate believes;

—that a bird by the name of Hulings was president when girls were first admitted to the school.

—that each freshman class does not wreck Cochran Hall so completely as did the last.

—that the reason McKinley was kicked out was that he put a cow in chapel and couldn't keep his mouth shut about it.

—that Doc Lee has a hypnotic eye.

—that if a girl is from Hulings she is an angel.

—that Geo. Washington addressed the citizens of Meadville from the steps of Bentley.

—that we're going to knock Pitt for a row this winter.

—that some of the fraternity houses have heavily stocked cellars.
(we believe this ourselves)

—that galoshes are worn open because they look better that way.

—that there's too d— much snow.

—that ALICE SPALDING never was kissed.

—that ALICE SPALDING had a wild time when she was a girl.

—that the four new davenportes at Hulings should give a great impetus to the study of natural science.

—that a Maxim silencer should be tied on the Delt purp.

—that {
Phi Psi parties are best
Phi Gam parties are best
Delt parties are best
Phi Delt parties are best
Sig parties are best
Chi Rho parties are best

—that when a girl says no she never means it.

—that hereafter in case of fire at Hulings alarms should be rung at all the fraternity houses.

—that {
the Thetas love most the Kappas love most the Alpha Chis love most the Alpha Gams love most

(We put this last so the girls wouldn't get jealous and stop reading.)

We thank you.

[Editor's Note: The Kaldron does not claim that the most of the following bursts of humor are seeing the light of publicity for the first time through its columns. They were selected from such college publications as the Punch Bowl, Sun Dial, Michigan Daily, et cetera, et cetera, which had, in turn, culled them from such publications as the Punch Bowl, Sun Dial, Michigan Daily, et cetera, et cetera, until many are of doubtful origin and questionable character. The Kaldron is now making a home for them and attributing them to no specific sources by reason of their nomadic habits.]

MY LADY

Ode To My Lady's Brows

My lady's gently arching brows,—
I love them without doubt.
They make me think of grandma's teeth
For I know just about
One half of those which once grew in
Have lately been pulled out.

Ode To My Lady's Cheeks

My lady's cheeks, her downey cheek,
I wonder why I love it!
Perhaps because like every freak
She sure has plenty of it!

Ode To My Lady's Eyes

My lady's eyes are languid-soft
And dim and mellow-fair;
But oh! the light that leaps to them
When she sees a Bill of Fare!!!

Ode To My Lady's Ears

My lady's ears are just like shells
Of priceless alabaster.
And what goes into one of them
Goes out the other faster.

Ode To My Lady's Voice

My lady's voice is like the brook
So low and silvery.
She babbles just as aimlessly
And as incessantly.

Ode To My Lady's Hair

My lady's hair is just like gold,—
Like fine-spun gold each thread.
In fact, her hair's the only thing
Of value in her head.

A pretty ankle used to attract the eye; but now it's the dimple on the knee that causes the crowd to collect at the Senior hop.

John did not come straight home. Hence he did not come home straight.
The towering form of his wife loomed above him, as his stumbling, shoeless feet sought the steps.

"Drunk again," she said caustically.

"Hooray, m'dear," he replied cheerfully, "so'm I."

"He: "We're coming to a tunnel. Are you afraid?"
She: "Not if you take that cigar out of your mouth!"

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE

I asked her if she rolled them.
She said she'd never tried.
Just then a mouse ran swiftly by
And now I know she lied.

SON, THEY DIDN'T COUNT 'EM

Boak (getting home for Christmas holidays): Canby won't be here until tomorrow. He had to take a 'Bug' examination."

Boak's little brother: "Did they find many on him?"

He Said to Her

I met you on the campus,
With other dames most fast.
I saw you rouge your cheeks one time
As I was going past.
I saw your hair in rags,
To make tomorrow's curl,
And so I'll say "Good bye" to you
And hunt myself a Girl!

And Her Comeback

I met you at the Red Cross,
With other flirting "he-vamps."
I saw you enter Affy's
With a lot of other scamps.
I heard you cuss a time or two,
As only rough-necks can,
And so I'll say, "Good Night" to you
And hunt myself a Man! !

 "But he doesn't beat Doc. Coleman who went out of his office and put a card on the door saying he would be back at three o'clock, and finding that he had forgotten something, went back to the office, read the notice on the door, and sat down on the stairs to wait until three o'clock."

 Had hindered me.
 Alas, I thought, too many girls,
 And study runs away from curls.
 But still I thought, with all my pains
 'Twas rather raw
 For dear papa
 To lay it all to lack of brains.

Two well-known gentlemen riding on a train were both very much intoxicated.
 Skee: "What time is it?"
 Packy: (after extracting a matchbox from his pocket with much exertion and gazing at it intently) "Thursday."
 Skee: "My God! I've got to get off here."

 "I'm sure, sir, I don't getcha."
 "Or may I take you to the ball?"

"JUST MY LUCK"

When all is quiet around the place—
With not a dance in sight—
And my lessons I must study—
'Stead of going out at night;
Although I might do other things,
I'd just' soon work it seems;
It's sure to happen at a time—
When I've money in my jeans;—
But when the place is full of life—
With dances here and there;
And all the fellows seem to go—
The Lord knows only where;—
You'll find me sitting home alone—
Without a pill to smoke;
Because of reasons all my own—
You guessed it—I am BROKE.

"Who told you to put that chart on the wall?" roared Lab Assistant Fix.
"Why, the Doctor," stammered meek Frosh.
Fix, in different voice—"Oh, handy, isn't it?"

He—Yes, that's the only way he could have gotten home.

A kiss on the brow is chaste,
A kiss on the hand is fashion,
A kiss on the cheek is waste,
A kiss on the lips is—held by Doc
Darling to be unsanitary.

Mary: "I hope you rebuked him."

Sal: "I did; I told him to keep it up."

THE RUSHER

A man there was and he met a girl
Even as you and I.
Took her to games and the picture show,
And he didn't care how much coin he'd blow,
For he was rushing this girl you know
Even as you and I.

He said he'd get a bid from this classy
"dame"
Even as you and I.
The time he spent was just a shame,
But the money he spent made the time seem tame
For his lack of sense he's not to blame
Even as you and I.

Oh the time he spent and the sheckles
he spent
For to a hundred things he'd go,
He wished to boast of a formal bid
He bet he could and—he finally did
Though it cost him twelve bucks to go.

'Tis the money we spend—not the men
we are
That measures our power to get by
And a bank account is a better asset
Than the best, best brain we've ever met,
We know it—you and I.

Tourist (gazing at volcano)—"Looks like hell, doesn't it?"
Native—"How these Americans have traveled."

On the front porch: "You look cold. Shall I take off my coat and put it around you?"
"Oh, no, don't take it off."

First Young Thing—Bob kissed me last night.
Second Young Thing—And you let him do it.
First Young Thing—No; that's why he did it.

FAMOUS CLOSING LINES

"A thing of beauty is a jaw forever," he muttered as he listened to the pretty though talkative girl.

SKEPTICAL

Washington, so history says,
In his life ne'er told a lie,
I'll tell the world he was a bird,
I wonder how he got by.

Did he ever pull that good old line
"You're the first I've ever kissed,"
(I told it to a girl last night
She said "Look what you've missed".)

I'd like to know if he fussed a girl
On a night when the moon was bright,
And the flapper looked with wondrous eye
And said—"Sure is some night."

And did he whisper soft and low
And swear by the stars above
And hand out that old moth-eaten tale
That she was his only love?

The dudes who write the history books
Have handed down this fable,
They want us to believe it, too—
Ain't it awful Mabel?

The other night when we were going up to our girl's house we made a hasty inventory and decided that about all we had to spend that night was our time. However, for fear our girl might expect us to take her out somewhere we decided on an air-tight alibi.

So we runs up the steps all breathless and wild-eyed. When our girl asks us what's the matter we told her that on the way up we had been waylaid and held up by two highwaymen who pointed a gun at our head and said:

"Give us your money or we'll blow your brains out."

By this time our girl is setting on the edge of her seat and in a low whisper she asks:

"And what do you say then?"

"Well," we says to them, 'Blow away; if you've got a girl in Meadville it's better to be without brains than to be without money,'"

And our girl, being real clever, took her cue and we held down the sofa that night.

A CHIP OFF THE OLD BLOCK

Baby—I want my bottle.

Mother—Keep quiet. You're just like your father.

Mr. Slow (at the wheel)—Don't you feel a little chilly? Don't you think you'd better have something around you?

Miss Speed—Well, let's wait till we get a little further out Baldwin, anyway.

Peck (reading in English)—"Three times I strove to cast my arms around her neck and—that's as far as I got professor."

Prof. Thomas—"Well, Mr. Peck, I think that is quite far enough."

Bill: "Let me see—was it you that I kissed in the conservatory last night?"
Guess who: "About what time, please?"

"They say Jack is an awful good looker."

"So I noticed as I climbed on the car this morning."

"Do you believe George Washington never told a lie?"

"Well, he didn't after he married the widow, anyhow; he knew he'd never get away with it."

And Now In Closing—

The editors desire to express the hope that their efforts have created something in this book you will deem worthy of the name it bears and the great institution it strives to represent. We have worked hard on it, harder even than we had anticipated. Good times have been sacrificed that its compilation might be facilitated, but without regret. A much more attractive and more complete publication would have been possible had the financial resources been available. In the future with the "Greater Allegheny" that is forthcoming a fuller, better and more complete Kaldron should be made possible.

To you who are going out from the college: When you turn these pages, may your mind and heart go back to your Alma Mater, and may this Kaldron remind you to honor and support the institution as a true Alleghenian should.
