Dear Miss Tarbell:

I was greatly pleased to read in yesterday's "Times" your Lincoln article giving an outline of the history of the family in this, Monmouth, County. Our traditional history is that the family established, and conducted, an iron works in Phalanx, a small community between Freehold and here, the ruins of which I believe are still in evidence.

If you are further interested in this subject, or in the colonial and revolutionary history of this county, you will find considerable material in the library of the Monmouth County Historical Society at Freehold, opposite the Monmouth Battle Monument.

Very truly yours,

Thomas P. McKenna
