

THREE RECORDS BROKEN IN VARSITY TRYOUTS

Shot, Pole Vault and High Jump College Records Raised.

The 'varsity try-outs in track were held on Montgomery Field last Saturday afternoon before a large number of interested spectators. Although the weather was too cold for the best of time to be made in the sprints and long distance runs, yet the time that was made was creditable considering the weather conditions. From what was done in this meet, the prospects of a winning track team seem bright. Doran in the sprints, "Chuck" Dotterer in the weights, and Wells in the jumps proved that they will more than hold their own against their opponents this year. Wells, '15, broke the college pole vault record with a leap of 10 feet 4 1-5 inches. Zelwiss, '14, also broke the college high jump record by clearing the bar at 5 feet 6 1-8 inches. C. M. Dotterer, '14, established a new record in the shot put with a heave of 38 feet 7 1-8 inches. The distance men and sprinters were too much handicapped by the weather conditions to make the best of time, although it is thought that some of the college records in the sprints will be broken before the year is over. About the prettiest race of the afternoon was the quarter mile, when Fahr, '15, and Van Horn, '13, came up the home stretch running abreast, Van Horn winning the race by a small margin.

This meet was held so as to give the coach a line on the men for the meet with Carnegie Tech on next Saturday. The officials were Dr. Dunlap, starter; Dr. Lee and Prof. Dewey, timers; F. Amon and B. Ball, judges. The events in their order were:

120 Yard High Hurdles—First, Long, '15; second, Fahr, '15; third, Scott, '16. Time, 18 1-5 seconds.

100 Yard Dash—First, Doran, '15; second, Thomas, '14; third, Perley, '13. Time, 10 4-5.

High Jump—First, Zelwiss, '14; second, Wells, '15, and McKay, '16; third, Long, '15. Distance, 5 ft. 6 1-8 in.

Tech Next Saturday

First Intercollegiate Meet of the Season at Pittsburgh.

The initial track meet of the season for Allegheny will be held at Pittsburgh on next Saturday with Carnegie Tech. Although in the Western Pennsylvania Intercollegiate meet held at Sharon last year, Tech had things pretty well their own way, still the loss of several of their best men this year will put them at a considerable disadvantage. On the other hand Allegheny has practically the same team, so that with the addition of experience and coaching a better showing will undoubtedly be made. In the sprints and the weights Allegheny will more than hold their own, while in the hurdles and middle distances the plaid is unusually strong.

Carnegie Tech, although somewhat crippled by the graduation of their older stars, is still confident. The following article, which appeared in the last issue of The Tartan, will show their hopes:

"Under the careful tutelage of Coach Dull, the track team is gradually attaining its proper form, and should be in excellent condition when it meets Allegheny College in the first intercollegiate meet of the season Saturday a week. The team is exceedingly fortunate in having secured the services of Coach Dull in whom Tech has never had a better nor more earnest teacher in any branch of sport. With only four "C" men as a nucleus, he has built up a team which should uphold Tech's championship record on the cinder parth. The loss of Boots, Steinmetz, Waite and Hosey was expected to greatly injure the prospects for this year's team, but from present indications, such men as Mayer, Haseltine, Wright, King and F. Murphy will prove capable successors to those former stars. The inter-school meet furnished some idea of the strength of the team, though in many cases, times have since been considerably improved."

The annual inter-class meet will be held the Friday following this meet. Already a great many men not on the varsity have come out to practice in order to uphold the honor of their respective classes. The cup this year is in the possession of the Sophomore class, but as they have only held it one year, the "Centennials" will have to be successful in two more inter-class meets to become the permanent holders of the cup. Up to this time no class has ever been successful to that degree and consequently the coveted prize is still sought after. The inter-scholastic meet will be held on May 24.

Baseball Games

Local Nine to Oppose Grove City There Next Saturday.

The baseball team will again invade foreign territory on next Saturday when Grove City College is to be opponent of the local nine at Grove City, Pa. The down state college is represented by another fast nine this year and if Allegheny returns with a victory, a first class article of ball will have to be played. With the hard practice the team has been undergoing since the Tech game, a victory at Grove City does not seem at all impossible. During these two weeks of work on the diamond, the fielding of the infield has become more accurate, while there has been some general improvement in the batting department. It has not been officially announced who will be on the mound for the gold and blue, but the chances are that either Captain Hawk or Robinson will do the delivering.

On the Wednesday following this trip, the Grove City nine will be seen in action on the local field. Following this game, a hard schedule will have to be completed before the 4th of June, with games at Pittsburgh, Geneva, at Beaver Falls, Alfred University, at Alfred, N. Y., and the Chinese University of Hawaii, at Meadville.

Under the Blauvelt act, which has received the Governor's signature, New York state will provide for seven hundred and fifty scholarships.

"SENIOR SIX" CHOSEN FOR COMMENCEMENT

Announced Following Faculty Meeting Last Saturday Afternoon.

On last Saturday afternoon the Faculty announced the names of the six Seniors, who will speak at the Commencement exercises on Wednesday, June 18. Those chosen on scholarship and excellence in oration were C. V. Sparling, Miss Elizabeth Lord and O. C. McLean, while those appointed by the Faculty were H. J. Wieler, C. A. Eckles and Miss Edna Yost. In the election of those chosen for excellence in oration and scholarship, seventy-five per cent. is given to scholarship and twenty-five per cent. to oration. Consequently, the appointment of these members of Senior Six is largely mechanical. The other three, however, are chosen by the Faculty, who consider college activities and orations.

C. V. Sparling, who was the first one chosen, has written an oration entitled "Our Heritage." As can easily be seen by the subject, this oration deals with a college topic, telling of the founding of Allegheny College and the responsibility of the students of the present day. While in college, Mr. Sparling has been active in several clubs as well as being the manager of The Campus during the past year.

A portion of the motto of the old college seal has been made the basis for the subject of O. C. McLean's oration, "Redeeming the Desert Places." This oration deals largely with the place that the college man should take in the civic affairs of the country as well as in other branches of professional work. At present Mr. McLean is active in the literary work of the college, being a member of the Kaldron board and, until the appointment of the new board, an associate editor of The Literary Monthly. He was also a member of this year's debating team.

The subject of Miss Elizabeth Lord's oration is "The Spirit of the Class." In this oration, she has outlined a better plan of class government, as well as having exposed many of the weaknesses in present methods. At a time when many of the old college classes are being re-organized this oration seems especially appropriate. In addition to work in Klee-O-Kleet and other organizations, Miss Lord is an associate editor of The Campus.

"The Transition of the College" by H. J. Wieler, deals with some of the marked changes which have appeared in American educational institutions. The writer has placed especial emphasis on the possibilities of the American college with its ideals of democracy. Mr. Wieler has been very prominent in college activities. Among other things he has been editor of the Kaldron, president of the Y. M. C. A., and a college debater.

Miss Edna Yost, in her oration, "The Modern Idea," has opened another problem of college life. The main plea of this oration will be for better sanitary conditions in colleges, which will lead to better health for the students. Although Miss Yost has completed her college course in three years, she has found time to engage in several activities, including literary work.

The last member of Senior Six, C. A. Eckles, will deliver as his oration, "The Modern Slavery." This oration deals with the question of child labor and its evils. Mr. Eckles has been prominent in his position as president both of the Athletic Association and of Duzer-Du.

The Intercollegiate Peace Association represented by 15 states in its membership, is planning to hold an oratorical contest next May in St. Louis, while the fourth American Peace Congress is in session. The association will be divided into three groups of five states each, the winners of these groups to meet in finals at Lake Mohonk later in the month.

Yale university has 3,282 students this year.

Summer School

Final Arrangements Being Made for Several New Courses.

Final plans have been completed and courses definitely arranged for the Allegheny Summer School of 1913. Summer school is an institution which is still in its infancy at Allegheny, having been tried for the first time last summer. At that time, however, it proved such a signal success that it will probably become a permanent and important institution of the college.

The courses offered this year will include a number of notable additions to those of last summer and a few changes will be made in courses which were given then.

A practical course will be given in agriculture and agricultural chemistry, and will afford an excellent opportunity to secure valuable instruction along this line. This course has been added in response to the popular demand and need for such instruction by those who are in a position to take a summer course, and will be under the direction of Doctor R. E. Lee, head of the Chemistry department. Dr. Lee has made a thorough study of the practical problems of agriculture and a rare opportunity is offered in this course.

Two courses will be given in the History of Education under the direction of Doctor William A. Elliott. Course A will be a fixed course consisting of lectures and assigned readings. Course B will include text book work, private investigation of special topics, and discussions, which will give a wide range of work suited to the requirements of individual students. Students may enroll in course A or in courses A and B. In connection with these two courses will be given a course on Educational Psychology, the three courses being conducted especially with the purpose of meeting the requirements of the new school code for teachers in Pennsylvania. Dr. Elliott has a wide reputation as a man of authority in educational matters and without doubt these courses will be of intense interest and practical value to all teachers.

A new course will also be given in Physical Geography by Professor Charles E. Decker. This course is planned with special reference to those who expect to teach Physical Geography. Besides the class exercises, it will include training in laboratory and field methods. In the laboratory topographic and geologic maps and folios, the common rock-forming and ore-forming minerals together with some rocks will be studied. Several field trips will be made in an area rich in illustrative material for this subject.

It will be appreciated if any one will send the addresses of teachers and others who may be interested to receive information about the summer courses to the Registrar.

Considerably more interest will be added to the production of the play by the use of the costumes which were used at the first production of this play in New York.

DR. HANNAN PREACHES LAST SERMON IN SERIES

Drew Theological Seminary Professor Brings Good Message.

The seventh and last college sermon of this year's series of addresses was delivered in Ford Memorial Chapel on last Sunday afternoon. The speaker, Dr. F. W. Hannan, of New York City, lived up to the reputation that had preceded his visit here, and presented an inspiring and scholarly address. For several years, Dr. Hannan was the pastor of one of the largest Methodist Episcopal churches in the city of New York. Recently, however, he has become associated with Drew Theological Seminary, where he is teaching in a course which deals with the practical side of the ministry.

Dr. Hannan took as the text for his sermon two verses from the writings of the Apostle Paul,—Romans 1-16, "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation unto every one that believeth," and 1 Corinthians 1-24, "Christ the power of God and the wisdom of God." The substance of his remarks follows:

"In these two passages we have Paul's definition of the gospel, the gospel is Christ's power. Many people have felt that religion is an emotion, something that can be lost or found, some experience that is very much like the experience of somebody else. But here is our definition of religion. Although it may be emotional, it is not emotion; though it may have a creed, it is not a creed; though it may purpose to do something or accomplish a thing, yet it is not a thing,—it is the right relation of the soul to Jesus Christ, a relation of rightness through Christ to God. The gospel being the power of Christ as related to man sustains this rightness of relation.

"It is a long way from the rubbing of two sticks together to our modern blast furnace, from laying the ear to the ground to catch the sound of a distant foot-fall, to wireless telegraphy, from the stone dagger to the machine gun, or from a sailing vessel to an Olympic,—it is a long way from our crudities to our excellencies. Power never becomes so great as when it is merged in a personality. We don't blame the floods for the great loss of property and life which this district recently suffered. The flood did not intend to do it. A man who is struck by lightning while under a tree doesn't blame the lightning because he was struck, but blames himself for standing under the tree during a storm. These powers are not personal. No one is surprised that the great religions of the world have grown up as they have. Men have made offerings and burnt sacrifices in order to keep on the right side of these malevolent powers which are evident to them on every hand. Paul believed that the gospel was a power and that when it seeks us and does us good, it intends to search us out and help us.

"Christ is the magnetic power of religion. The ocean to the ancients was a barrier, to us it is the highway of commerce and communication with other countries. We can board a ship at night, in a fog, in a storm, believing that if nothing happens to that compass which is on board, we will reach our destination safely in spite of storm or wind or fog or iceberg. By putting all our faith in that little mechanism we reach our destination all right and yet the compass does not mean to. Now lift it out of the realm of material things away from ships, ocean, fog, storm,—lift it into the spiritual and trust it. We know that in spite of all, that magnetic power will bring us to the crown of manhood and womanhood, the crown of Christian perfection. Christ is the only one who has this magnetic power and is able to draw men to him.

"On such a beautiful afternoon as this while you are going to worship you might meet people who are going to spend the day out of doors. They will tell you that they can worship and get close to the God of Nature better in this way. In reality the idea

With this issue, competition for positions on The Campus staff for the year 1913-14 closes. The Competition competition together Begins. with the marked copies of the papers for the entire year will be placed in the hands of the committee, which is composed of Mr. Dewey, Professor Ross and a third man to be chosen by these two, and they will render their decision for the new board within ten days or two weeks.

Just a word to those who contemplate competition for next year. Competition begins with the next issue and the time to begin is with that issue. A good start yet this spring will give a better opportunity to get in the running from the first of next year. Competition is open to as many people as desire to enter it, the only requirement being that the person is willing to give the proper amount of time and care to the work.

The value of the work can hardly be estimated in a practical way. The ability to express one's self in a clear manner and to describe an event in such a way as to make other people really see it, is well worth while. The Faculty has recognized the value of the work also and college credit is given to the first five members of the staff who show that they have worked sufficient time to merit such credit. Any who are thinking of entering the competition should see the editor at once.

MOVING-UP DAY PLANS.

With the election of the class speakers for Moving-Up Day, plans are rapidly being formulated for this important college event. For the most part the exercises will be conducted as in former years, although some changes may be made in the parade or in some of the minor features of the day. The various classes have already appointed committees, who will soon be at work in preparation for the class stunts. The speakers for the formal exercises, held in Ford Memorial Chapel, will be C. A. Eckles, '13, Miss Helen Thomas, '14, Miss Janet Ellis, '15, Donald Dunbar, '15, and W. J. Armstrong, '16.

Plans are already under way for the annual minstrel show, which is held on the evening of Moving-Up Day. Although most of the old end men have graduated, there will undoubtedly be new men for the places, who will rival the fame of their predecessors. The preliminary practices have already been held and the various choruses will be announced in the near future.

TENNIS NOTES.

Another week has witnessed the usual number of tennis matches played off. Although the line-up has undergone considerable change as a result, Brownell and Mates are still heading Class A with little danger of their positions being seriously challenged by others. One of the best matches of the week occurred when Bright undertook to wrest Mates from second place. In the first set Mates was able to win only by the score 12-10. However, the second resulted 6-3 Mates.

The tournament has been a very successful one, having brought out an abundance of excellent material for future teams. Since by now the best men have had time to find the top it is probable the committee will call a close this week in order to give time to the men chosen for the teams to get the best training before the meets which they will enter. Manager Brownell now is practically sure of two dates, the one at Grove City, May 27, and the other here with W. & J., June 3.

Y. M. C. A.

An interesting meeting of the Y. M. C. A. was held last Wednesday evening in Cochran Hall. E. S. Weidie, '14, gave a vocal solo, after which R. D. Mosier, '14, took charge of the meeting. Mr. Mosier based his talk on that familiar verse, "Blessed is the man that endureth temptation, for when he is tried he shall receive the crown of life which the Lord has promised to them that love him." The leader spoke of the temptations of everyday college life and emphasized the fact that temptation is the source of our moral strength and a requisite for the development of Christian faith.

CLASS OFFICERS.

After much correspondence and consultation the officers of the General Alumni Association have been able to secure the appointment of the class officers in the following list. In some cases the old class officers have been retained. In many other cases the choice of new officers have been made by the members of the class.

The presidents and the secretaries in the following list will be relied on to co-operate with the officials of the College and of the Alumni Association and with the Alumni Committee on the Centennial Celebration in arousing the interest and securing the presence and participation of the members of their classes.

of worship never entered their mind until they saw you going to worship. If we will look at nature with both eyes open and with our entire mind attentive we will see that for every beautiful thing and pleasing feature there are a hundred that are not. People will tell you that the fragrance and beauty of the flowers and the sweet song of the birds were made for man alone to enjoy. Then the biologists come along and tell you that the bright petals of the flower are merely part of the plant's struggle for existence. The flower has bright petals to attract the pollen-carrying bee in order that in getting the nectar from the flower the bee may also pick up some of the pollen and so fertilize the next flower which he visits. The flower without the bright petals cannot attract the bees hence it is overcome in the struggle for existence and finally dies. We learn that the song of the bird is its love song and the bird chooses as its mate the one that can sing the best; the other is left to languish and die. Those who look to nature and to nature only to find God, if they look with both eyes open, will find so much of the unpleasantness of life,—the mere struggle for existence, that they can not worship there.

"People love to look to history, to look at the onward march of mankind and worship God there. But if here again they look with both eyes they will find the pitting of nations against each other, battles and bloodshed,—nothing that will draw men to God. The two pillars of the Jewish religion were reverence and obedience and they sought for no direct communication with God but through the mediating power of the priest, their sacrifices and offerings. We knew the hand and mind and will of God before Christ came. He came to reveal to the world the bigness of the heart of God. The exaltation of Jesus showed the great heart of the Father. 'I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto me.' Human love is changeable, a man may be pedestaled today and pilloried tomorrow, but divine love is everlasting and unchanging. Jesus came to make us understand the drawing power of God's love. His first words were 'Come unto me all ye that are weary and heavy laden and I will give you rest.'

"What is the purpose of drawing us unto him? That he may make us over like unto himself. Take a pound of pig iron worth one-half cent, put it through all the delicate processes necessary to become watchsprings and it is worth $2,000. The $1,999.99½ is the human plus what has been added. Take a piece of canvass the size of this desk, buy twenty-five cents worth of brushes and one dollar's worth of paints and give them to me. I'll produce a painting that is worth five cents. Give them to a Millais and he will produce a painting worth $100,000. The power of the gospel depends upon its power to transform human character into the Godlike.

"Timid folks are disturbed lest the undermining that has been going on will not leave enough to readjust, and that our religion will go the way of other great religions. But our religion does not rest on the comparison with but in the contrast to other great religions. It has the dynamic which they have not.

"In 1760 Voltaire prophesied that before the nineteenth century Christianity would be extinct, but it is a peculiar state of irony that from the very room which sent forth this prophecy have been published an exceedingly large number of Bibles that have been sent broadcast over the entire world. It is very strange how, when there is a drought which some wise people say will last for twenty years, the Lord can get up a storm in two hours. A man may hold a sixteen pound shoe up for a time but finally the force of gravity is going to overcome his strength. A man can by sheer will power maintain his rectitude of living, but in the end the power of sin and temptation and the evils that surround him on every side are going to overcome his will power and he will fail.

"If you were living on a street and had built your home there without a porch and afterward all the rest of the people near you built their houses with sandstone porches, what would you do if there was no more sandstone to be found anywhere? You could take wood, cover it over with concrete, and make it look exactly like sandstone. After a few years of storm and hard winters the concrete would fall off and only the shabby boards remain. And again you might have taken your boards, covered them with silica, and placed them under water. Every particle of wood would then have become real stone with each line of the grain showing perfectly. This is likeness by assimilation. The first process was likeness by imitation. The latter was wood metamorphosed into stone.

"There are divine possibilities in us that are not brought out by a flash from Christ, but the steady gazing at Christ will transform the soul into something valuable. He'll pull out of us the wealth of divine character, that Christlikeness which the world needs and must have. Unless we are able to let this power pass through us to the world, to lie on the world's scrap pile, is the best use there is for us."

WORK OF THE UNIVERSITY SENATE.

Following his attendance at the meeting of the University Senate of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Buffalo during Wednesday and Thursday of last week, President Crawford took the Chapel period Friday morning to tell the student body of the purpose and work of the gathering.

The University Senate is composed of the presidents of all the institutions under the care and patronage of the Methodist Church, and its principal purpose is the fixing of the standards of these institutions. Its business, too, is to protect these standards, and at these meetings that are held regularly the most of the time is taken up in investigating and looking into conditions in various institutions that may not be up to the standard set. When delinquencies are found a request is made to the Board of Education to remove such ones from the list of colleges. In this matter the standard set by the Carnegie Foundation is the one used. This requires three things: first, that to be classed as a college an institution must have at least six professors devoting their exclusive time to college work; second, that it cannot offer any courses that are not full four years in length, so that the minimum standard of an institution is four years after the eighth grade in the secondary school and then four years in college; and last, that the institution must have at least $200,000 endowment exclusive of debts and liabilities. $100,000 was allowed to remain the minimum endowment for this year.

STUDENTS IN CONCERT.

Last Thursday evening a double quartet and the Mandolin Club assisted by James Miller, reader, gave a very pleasing concert in the Blooming Valley M. E. Church, of which O. A. Parmenter, '14, is the pastor. A large audience was in attendance and the program was heartily enjoyed by all. Following the entertainment the ladies of the church served refreshments.

The students made the trip to Blooming Valley in automobiles kindly furnished by Dr. R. Edwin Lee, J. H. Pardee, Judge Frank J. Thomas and W. J. Skeels. The double quartette consisted of J. M. Sherman, '15, and Edgar Horner, '16, first tenors; W. H. Wells, '13, and G. D. Rose, '15, second tenors; T. F. Smith, '15, and R. H. Downing, '15, first bass; J. G. Graham, '14, and W. A.
