Dear Clara:

You will see by the enclosed that your kindness in getting me the information about the Lincoln portrait has come to blossom. I am enclosing a copy of a letter received from Mr. Snyder. The picture itself is here, the one we saw in Mrs. Stricker's maids room. I am most glad to have it for my collection and am saving with it all the correspondence.

I am sending you today for your bazaar four copies of the little Lincoln books, which I have autographed. You ought to get $2.00 or $2.50 for them. Please don't tell your committee I said so.

Also here goes that copy of Owen Young that I promised you.

I spent the week end at the farm. Sara is back-better but far from strong. I am still uneasy about her. However, she is very plucky.

I gave her your presents. She was much pleased and said she was going to write you.

I hope Mrs. Ellsworth will soon be better love to her and to Miss Thoburn.

Affectionately

Miss Clara Walker
