BIG EVENTS OF THE WEEK:
CARL SANDBURG'S LECTURE—BAND CONCERT.

Carl Sandburg Will Lecture Here Tonight

Leading Free Verse Writer Will Render Program of Poetry and Song

Carl Sandburg, the leading free verse poet of America, comes to Allegheny tonight in a recital and reading from his works. The recital is under the auspices of the Quill Club and the English Department and is one of a series of two such affairs, the other being by Vachel Lindsay, March 20.

Sandburg is not unknown at American colleges. He has been heard at the Universities of Chicago, Minnesota, Iowa, Indiana, Arkansas, Kansas State, Mt. Holyoke, Baylor, etc. He has lectured and read before organizations and clubs of all sorts all over the United States. Allegheny is fortunate in being added to the list. His poetry has appeared in leading magazines, and his books of verse have aroused much interest and discussion. His volumes are "Chicago Poems," "Cornhuskers" and "Smoke and Steel."

The poetry of Sandburg has caused more discussion than the work of any other poet since Whitman. In a very free form, its style is unusual and far different from the conventional poetry of other writers. It has been criticized for roughness, the element of jazz and a general lack of form. On the other hand, it also contains much of rare beauty and rugged strength. Such poems as "Prairie, Loam, Cool Tombs, Prayer of Steel and others of that sort are genuine poetry and cannot fail to gain the admiration of all readers. The poems of Sandburg have given him a front rank among our prominent poets, and no student of modern culture can remain ignorant of his work.

Mr. Sandburg's recital tonight will be of a varied entertainment. He reads from his poems, but more than that, he plays a guitar and sings some of the old American ballads, well known on the western cowboy trails. Everywhere he has gone with this program he has been enthusiastically received.

The lecture is to be held in Ford Memorial Chapel at 8:15 this evening. Tickets on sale at the bookstore and by members of Quill Club.

DR. CHURCH HAS ARTICLE PUBLISHED

RECENT 'EDUCATIONAL REVIEW' CONTAINS DISCUSSION OF "THE FUTURE OF SPANISH."

Prof. Henry Ward Church says in his article, "The Future of Spanish," which appeared in a recent issue of the "Educational Review," that of all rises in popularity of any subject taught in high schools and colleges, the most phenomenal has been that of Spanish. The position that Spanish has attained is due to four factors: (1) The presence of a large Spanish-speaking population in the southwest; (2) The acquisition of Latin-American territory by the Spanish-American War; (3) Our growing commercial interests in Latin and South America; and (4) The recent abandon of German from the curricula of many of our high schools and colleges. The question now is whether Spanish will retain its present position, or whether it will fall as rapidly as it rose.

Formerly the illusion was harbored by many youthful Wallingfords that by studying Spanish for a couple of years in a secondary school they would qualify for very remunerative positions in South American companies.

But such training has proven pitifully inadequate, due to the presence of so many language instructors of inferior ability. At the first move to abolish German from the schedule, many teachers of that language took short courses in the then rising language, Spanish, and soon posed as experienced tutors. From their teachings have come many mistakes. However, during the past year or so, much has been done to relieve the situation and better training is becoming assured.

Contrary to the usual conception, Castilian Spanish is not the commercial language of South America. In some places, an idiomatic transcript is in use, but, in general, German is (Continued on page 3)

DR. F. W. HANNAN SPEAKS AT CHAPEL SERVICE

FIVE RULES FOR SUCCESS GIVEN TO STUDENTS IN INSPIRING TALK.

In a brief and pointed speech Dr. F. Watson Hannan of Drew Theological Seminary addressed the student body in the Chapel service yesterday morning.

The speaker set down five fundamental rules of conduct which he said would bring success and happiness to every man. The maxims that he gave are, "Find yourself," "Find your place," "Fit your place," "Fill your place" and "Keep a-going." With these simple rules as guides we will be able to control all the opposing forces within us. Each man, according to Dr. Hannan, has in him devil and saint, genius and fool. These different aspects of our character fight between themselves, and it is only these five rules of conduct that will keep them in order.

That the talk was much appreciated by the students is evidenced by the wide discussion it occasioned.

NATIONALLY KNOWN PIANISTS WILL BE HERE FEBRUARY 21

MAIER AND PATTISON, "PIANISTS OF A DIFFERENT SORT."

There is no more interesting and attractive offerings in the pianistic world today than the programs of music for two pianos given by Guy Maier and Lee Pattison. Music of this description had been neglected by both performers and composers for a number of years until Ossip Gabrilowitsch and Harold Bauer revived an interest in it a few seasons back by the recitals which they gave in Aeolian Hall, New York, but owing to their numerous individual engagements and the acceptance shortly afterward of the conductorship of the Detroit Orchestra by Mr. Gabrilowitsch, their performances were limited in number and it remained for Mr. Maier and Mr. Pattison to do the real missionary work.

The younger artists, who are of the same age and who studied together not only at the New England Conservatory of Music at Boston, but also under Arthur Schnabel in Berlin, have devoted their efforts almost exsively to programs of this nature. Consequently they have gone much farther afield and not only have unearthed many neglected compositions of another day, but have discovered works of unusual interest by modern composers. At their first recital given in London last June they played nothing but present day compositions in a list which represented Popart, Saint-Saens, Debussy, Arensky, and Kljinsky, composers who hail from Spain, France and Russia, respectively. At their opening New York recital in October they added Italy in the person of Casella to the list, and gave a personal touch by including an arrangement of the Coronation Scene from Moussorgsky's "Boris Godounoff" by Mr. Pattison himself, proving that when a composition not originally scored for two pianos appeals to them, they have the versatility to make the necessary changes.

Many items which are decidedly novel and out of the ordinary are promised in the program which they have chosen for their recital here at Ford Memorial Chapel on Tuesday evening, Feb. 21, and doubtless their return will create keen interest and gain for them the same unstinted approval which they have received in Paris and London as well as in the principal American cities.

It is interesting to note that Professors Church and Doty met the two artists at sea when the four were returning to America after the war.

PHILO-FRANKLIN CONTEST WILL BE HELD MARCH 3

All entrants for the Philo-Franklin Oratorical Contest must hand in three copies of their oration to Dr. Swartley on or before February 28th if they wish to be eligible for the contest which is to be held Friday evening, March 3.

This contest offers two prizes for first and second places, of fifteen and ten dollars, respectively. It is open to all classes in the college, offering an equal opportunity to Freshman and Senior alike.

The prizes awarded in this contest were made possible through the contribution of two graduates, who felt that the interest from such a fund would be an inducement in fostering public speaking among the students.

Mary Frick Jones, '04, is a teacher in Smithton, W. Va., where she has been for some years.

HOLIDAY BANQUET PLANS HAVE BEEN COMPLETED

FRESHMAN AND SOPHOMORE CLASSES MAKE EXTENSIVE PLANS FOR GALA OCCASION.

A week from tonight will come the one big college event of the year, the Washington's Birthday Banquet. The custom of such a banquet, at which all students and faculty mingle irrespective of fraternity groups, was begun in 1900 by Dr. Munroe of Western University. From that time, there has been no break in the observance, with the exception of twice during the war.

Through the efforts of the committee, with R. T. Doing as chairman, the price for the banquet will be lower than usual. A dollar and sixty cents per plate has been set by the committee. The dinner, to be served at 6:30 p. m., will be in the hands of Miss Garrity, a well known local caterer.

How far the costuming has gone is still secret with the lower classes. Both the Freshmen and Sophomores have been meeting frequently and plans have been maturing among them for the liveliest banquet in the history of the custom. What the Freshmen are, perhaps, looking forward to with the greatest pleasure is the suspension of all rules on that date.

How large an attendance there will be of students and alumni can not be definitely stated at this time. The have been meeting frequently and sufficiently low as to enable those with the least desire to attend, to do so.

SEVERAL STUDENTS HAVE BEEN ILL DURING EXAMS

One of the unfortunate events of the mid-term finals was the somewhat widespread sickness which prevailed. About thirty cases were reported, most of which were results of severe colds and attacks of la grippe. Three students were taken to the City Hospital, while others were administered aid in the dormitories and in the fraternity houses. At present Miss Marjorie Abbott is convalescing, following an attack of neuritis. Miss Spaulding is now fully recovered from a long siege of the same illness.

NOTICE TO CLUBS AND OTHER COLLEGE ORGANIZATIONS.

At a meeting of the Publication Board Feb. 7, it was decided to abolish the deficit which appears on the treasurer's books, owing to a failure of payment of the various clubs and organizations of the school for the cuts which appeared in the Kaldron of 1921.

At present there are several clubs and other college organizations which owe the Publication Board for their cuts which appeared in last year's Kaldron. To prohibit this in the future it was decided that those clubs which now owe for their cuts of last year must pay for them by March 1st or their pictures will not appear in this year's Kaldron. Also that all clubs which desire to have their pictures in this year's Kaldron must make a deposit of five dollars ($5.00) in partial payment for this year's cut; or make satisfactory arrangements for the same on or before May 1st, with the General Manager or the Manager of the Kaldron.

Allegheny Band Will Give Concert

Popular Music Will Feature the Program Friday Evening

With a personnel of twenty-six, the Allegheny Band will appear before a college audience in the Chapel Friday evening. The preceding evening a concert will be given in the Stone church. The organization will present a varied program of the more popular types of music, under the direction of H. Merrill Maitland.

Comprized of a well-balanced ensemble, the band feels perfectly capable, from months of careful practice, to render the chosen selections with professional finish and technique. Mr. Maitland's personality is felt to enforce the rendition of each and every number. The selections have been so chosen as to present to the college its own musical tastes in an artistic manner.

"Guardes du Corps" and "The Royal Trumpeter" are marches written by men who know how to write a march. The very essence of these marches is their spirit. The band plays them with true military punch and snap.

A short composition, "Forest Whispers," by F. H. Losey, will no doubt be interesting to many who have heard Mr. Losey's band in Erie. Mr. Losey was a resident of Erie and a well-known composer of band music. This is one of his characteristic compositions.

CURRENT ISSUE IS BETTER THAN USUAL

LIT. MONTHLY HAS SEVERAL NOTEWORTHY STORIES—FICTION AND ARENA ARE ABSENT.

In reviewing the current issue of the Literary Monthly, one will find stories of real merit. The issue this month is exceptionally good and approaches the standard of the publication which has suffered more or less from a dearth of material.

The Chronology not only gives many items of historical interest and significance, but also has considerable playful humor and wit.

"My Assassination," depicting the trials of Henry Archibald Dewey, Ph. D., is a clever story and is perhaps the best work of the author published to date. One wonders with interest just what the professor will have to contend with in the next issue.

In the story, "Beating the Game," Jim is placed in an awkward, embarrassing situation and how he extricates himself is the gist of a story worth reading.

Under the light of publications we learn that the story, "A Package for My Roommate," was written by Miss Jean Kitchen, '25. Much commendation is due her for her work in portraying in a very realistic manner just what part curiosity often plays in college life.

The story from the pen of Miss Davidson, '25, "A Romany Adventure," offers a pleasant diversion in plot. One little incident is puzzling. The gypsy girl "murmured an Italian blessing." But then, it is trivial to pick this lone weed out of a garden, for perhaps there are Italian gypsies.

In "The Heritage" we have a very good story woven around a priceless instrument. The author has shown real power in treatment of her characters. The length of the story gives it a measure of development that would be welcome in all contributions.

In the poetry section Miss Putnam gives us a true picture of twilight with all its magic splendor. We would say, "More! More!"

The Literary Monthly is improving by leaps and bounds and is a credit to the institution. Let us pause here to mention that the "Arena" and "Friction" are as yet conspicuous by their absence and that until these departments are revived the magazine cannot hope to enjoy its full measure of success.

This number shall be an inspiration to every student who would join the scribes. Writing is an art well worthy of cultivation.

of what the English think of our Southern music by Lake's selection, "Down South."

"A Vision of Salome" is a descriptive piece of the dance of Salome. The music is slow and feeling, and whining reeds and muted horns give it the barbaric dance splendor.

The "Patrouille Francaise" is a selection that represents a French military band approaching in the distance, coming nearer, passing, and finally disappearing in the distance.

Following a more popular strain, "The Shiek," "Ka-Lu-A," and "Buddies" will please all.

"The Shiek" and "Ka-Lu-A" are Broadway's biggest hits, and have been recently recorded by all talking machine companies. These are very popular pieces and will be presented in many novel ways.

"Buddies" selection is from the musical comedy of the same name and contains the same music that is used in the original score.

SELMA LENHART PRESENTS PLAY

"ERSTWHILE SUSAN" GIVEN BEFORE LARGE AUDIENCE IN CHAPEL.

Miss Selma Lenhart, nationally known entertainer, on last Friday presented the fourth number of the course offered by the Y. M. C. A. "Erstwhile Susan," the story of a woman reformer who adopts rather unusual, yet effective methods, was given in a very original and interesting manner.

Her characterizations, involving six different persons, were distinct and from her manner of bearing, and her words, could be gathered a very accurate conception of the represented character. The theme, beautifully woven about these characters, included some pathetic and some humorous scenes. Throughout, the reader was able to so interpret the story as to keep the audience keenly interested in the outcome of the plot.

The story was divided into four parts. After a brief sketch of the conditions in the home, the heroine, erstwhile Susan, was introduced, and the plot was woven about her method of reform in the household. She marries the father in order to get a better grasp upon the daughter, and then to take her from the domination of the brutal father and educate her. Instead of converting his wife into a mental, as Barnaby had anticipated, he loses his control over his daughter to the girl's stepmother, to the girl's extreme benefit.

The anniversary of Abraham Lincoln's birth turns our minds to that noble, lovable, and illustrious man who lived fifty-six years ago. While the main facts of his life—a pioneer home, little schooling, few books, hard labor at all the many trades of the frontiersman, a profession mastered o' nights by the light of a friendly cooper's fire, an early entry into law and politics, and finally the presidency—are not forgotten, we are ever treasuring up the reminiscences of his tender heart, fervent patriotism, and unique, unerring wisdom. His superiority consisted in his character, in his unified personality, made up of social, moral, and spiritual excellencies.

Stewart S. Townsend, '15 was elected Graduate Manager of Athletics at a meeting of the Board of Control last night.

The competitors who contributed to this issue were: Lois A. Halderman, Ethel Olsen, Dorothy Davidson, Dorothy Reed, Eleanor Taylor, Ralph Demmler, Clarence Ingram, Charles Taylor, Gerald Eddy, Lloyd Shaffer.

Next Wednesday all Freshmen rules will be declared void as far as the Frosh are concerned. But until that time, all rules are in force and any violation should be dealt with by Sophomore action. There are many of the first year class who wear any type of headress that they desire. It is time to act, Sophs, and enforce the regulations placed in your keeping. What about socks, walking with girls on the campus and the wearing of caps?

BOOSTERS DESERVE ADMIRATION. The booster is behind every college activity. No greater need is more in evidence than a BOOSTER for Allegheny traditions and customs. Almost every institution of higher learning boasts of its traditions. It is the tradition that cements group interest. It is the custom of doing things together that makes for COLLEGE SPIRIT. To date, little genuine interest has been shown towards the attendance of the one, big all-college event—THE WASHINGTON BIRTHDAY BANQUET. The event which brings every class and faculty member together in revelry and good, wholesome fun once every year.

The committees are doing their utmost to accomplish a stupendous task. The result of their efforts Depends Upon You. Will YOU cooperate with them by attending the TWENTIETH ANNUAL BANQUET? the one evening when class spirit reaches its climax? How small the cost for the memory of an ALL-COLLEGE AFFAIR!

"I have been in this game of preaching to college students for over twenty years, and I can say that in all that time I have never had a better response to the message I had to give, than I received last week at Syracuse University," is the statement made by Bishop Henderson, who has just closed a week of preaching with informal talks to Syracuse University students.

"The main difficulty with a student's religious life is that it gets crowded out," he said. "I find little antagonism to religion, but a great deal of preoccupation with other things. The same thing happens to it that happened to Christ at Bethlehem. 'There is no room.'"

"As for the morality of college students, I am convinced that it is higher than that of any other young men and women in a college town like this, there is no danger to fear what the college students may do with the morals of the city, but there is reason to fear what the city may do to the morals of the students. For one man who is a boozier, there are a hundred who go straight, but in a university a group of 25 boozers can make a noise that sounds like 6,000."

"I haven't tried to take advantage of any man to force him to make a decision as to his religious life. All I have asked of them is to think things through. I don't think the average student has really enough thought about religion to be a skeptic or to see the relation of his religious beliefs to his conduct. My idea of Christianity is first as motive power. I come from an automobile city and I like to tell the fellows that religion isn't a mudguard to keep them from social slime and disaster, but that it is a new engine. During the last week I have talked forty times in the colleges, and living centers of this university and I can say that in all my experience I have never had a better response."

If one wishes to enjoy real musical entertainments, he must not fail to attend the first public concert to be given by the Allegheny College Band in Ford Memorial Chapel next Friday evening. The program is one that has been arranged to suit the popular taste and consists of the lighter and more popular numbers of the day. The band this year is, without doubt, the best that has been assembled at Allegheny in years.

This organization has been working hard for weeks and is thoroughly prepared for their first appearance of the year. The daily rehearsals under the direction of Director Maltland, have given the band a professional finish and technique.

THE FRESHMAN'S LAMENT.

My parents blessed my Freshman head and saw me safely on the train, and standing by the station said they wished that they were young again; with homesick pangs I rubbered back; the train puffed slowly down the track while scenery of green and black shot by my window pane. That night I almost heard them say, "Well, college days are surely great; our kid is now at Allegheny unless the train will blow in late." They think about the college line unwound in college books of mine, of spreads and stunts and singing fine, of fudge laid on a plate. They both forget about the days I struggle with biology and how in forty different ways, its quizzes wreck and ruin me; they know that chapel must be fine, they see the students line on line with cares of featherweight like mine, fine in light heartedly. Unknowing that some days are blue, they class them all as fleet and fair; in spite of any work I do they think I have but little care. It seems that mother never knows that students have a hundred woes, that roommates sometimes come to blows and tear each other's hair.

To them the thought of college means a round of almost pure delight, a time of stunts and football scenes, and parties almost every night; they do not know that days may pass when all I do is trot to class or work in lab with flying glass in green and purple light. I gather news of Allegheny and stuff it in an envelope; my parents dig it out and say, "Great kid, great school, great life, great dope," and if the news is low, I send them all the jokes I know; they never guess that times are slow, that life is painted taupe. They think that bricks of solid joy make up the road before my feet, that grinning mirth in my employ, makes life a sugar-coated treat, that all of it is "A" book stuff, that all my troubles are a bluff, that always there is fun enough to make each minute sweet.

Lois Halderman.

COLLEGE PRESIDENT

CONDEMNS AUTOMOBILE

The president of Princeton University has written to the parents and guardians of all undergraduates suggesting that the automobile is a "positive detriment" to the search for knowledge within scholastic walls. Dr. Hibben believes that "it would be desirable if students at Princeton, during the formative periods of their lives, would realize the value to themselves and their fellows of simplicity in living and of the elimination of unnecessary luxuries." A great many college presidents and a multitude of parents will say "Amen."

We have traveled a long way since those rugged days when Harvard college was rough-hewn from the wilderness, or since that more recent time when TIMOTHY ALDEN BORE THE TORCH THROUGH THE MOUNTAIN PATHS TO ESTABLISH AN ALTAR OF LEARNING IN THE PRIMITIVE LOG COURTHOUSE AT MEADVILLE. There is little in the stately palaces which have recently arisen to remind one of the serious, almost desperate earnestness of those early days when learning, being rare, was valued, and the opportunity to study, being rarer still, was highly prized. It is indeed, a far cry from the boy Lincoln, sprawled full length on the rude floor, lost in reading by the fire glow, to the pampered collegian of today loolling in a motor car.

These are, of course, extreme pictures. There were wasters of youth in those frontier times, though doubtless the general adversity kept their numbers proportionately few; and there are serious, sober-minded young men and women today, hundreds of thousands of them, to whom higher education is a privilege not to be frivolously away. Many of the youth of 1922 are ready to make sacrifices and suffer discomfort to build their life foundation strongly, as a glance at the roll of those who are "working their way" will show.

THE COLLEGE LIFE OF EASE.

But the basic fact stands unchanged that the college generations of today live a life of ease and comfort undreamed of a few decades ago in the average university. Any alumnus who has been away even so brief a span as one or two decades is likely to be amazed by the more expensive standards of living established since his graduation. In the last quarter century colleges generally have been forced to unite economy for greater endowments to keep up with the legitimate demands broadening scope of instruction, including costly laboratories and other equipment. At the same time, paradoxically enough, many students, having been given more to spend by a wave of sensational prosperity, have spent it ever more freely; and other students have been driven to greater and greater sacrifices in endeavor to cope with the advancing cost of tuition, books, and ordinary expenses of living.

DR. HIBBEN PLEADS FOR DEMOCRACY.

The upshot of it all has been to produce a serious threat to that democracy of the campus which has been the bulwark of our educational system from the beginning. And it is for the return of this democracy that Dr. Hibben pleads in his kindly but firm censure of the luxuries in which unthinking undergraduates nowadays indulge. "Success has ruined many a man," said Franklin. And unaccustomed prosperity has ruined the children of more. There is no royal path to geometry now any more than there was in Euclid's day. And while it may be true that abundance is the nurturing patron of the arts and of learning in the broadly national sense it only too often steepens the senses of the individual in soul-deadening inertia. The Princeton president disclaims any intention to legislate such foolish luxuries as the automobile from college life, but drastic action to enforce a fair measure of simple living among the student-youth would be fully justified.—Pittsburgh Sun.

Sleuths upon his trail were hot—
A street scale saved the day;
He dropped a penny in the slot,
And then he got a weigh!—Ex.

FACULTY NOTES.

Prof. A. D. Frasier has recently brought credit upon the faculty of the Classical Department by having published several articles and reviews in the standard classical and art magazines in the country. In the past few months he has written a discussion of the columns of the Olympium at Athens for the Art Bulletin, and an article on "The Ancient Sporting Term" for the Classical Journal. Soon to appear are two more papers by this same member of the faculty, one on "Xenophon and the Boeotian Helmet" in the Art Bulletin, and the other on "Ancient Fish Taboo" in the Classical Journal.

"I sure do miss the gaboon, now that it is gone," said the Frosh. "You did that before that's why it's gone," remarked the Senior.
