

Anent the Ida M. Tarbell article in "Liberty", of date July 6th 1929—"Is Prohibition Forcing Civil War?"

There are in America over six thousand Jesuits: They are in America, they sop in America but do not live in America, they live in the "Vatican City", once called Rome. Popery is the crowning engine of crime and infamy of all the centuries: With the Jesuit the end justifies the means; there is nothing know in the Pit that the Jesuit will not resort to accomplish the end. With them it is "Evil be thou my good": Was the Woman (Ida M. Tarbell) beguiled by Popery—the arch Enemy of America, to cast a threat against the American Constitution by even mentioning "War" as a means to End an Act written into the American Constitution? The article has all the earmarks of popery in its last act of a dissipated career.

Prohibition is not in quest of power; for in the quest of power there is no power; prohibition is law: popery has ever been in the quest of power—even unto the attempt to place its Canon Law above all Constitutional Law of every Country; but popery met its Waterloo in Mexico and had to bow to the Constitution of Mexico. — The American Constitution and the Declaration of Independence has written into it all the best man has discovered since Calvary.
It is Inspired. Hence there is no room in this country for the wild ravings of a Tarbell, in asking:—"Is Prohibition Forcing Civil War". Prohibition is American. It is climbing the morning hills. Its message is respect and obey law. Its song is!

"Give me the harp of Epic Song, Which Homers fingers thrilled along,
But tear away the sanguine string,
For War is not the theme I sing."
