Dear Miss Tarbell:

as National Chairman of Books for the League of American Pen Women I have to ~~have~~ obtain judges for the contest I am conducting & I would like so very much if you would judge the world.

I have sifted them down to four books, two of which are very good. Could you look over them two, or four, & decide the question.
It would mean a great deal to me to have you act as sole judge of this contest & I know give the winners a great thrill.

One of these novels is published by the Dial Press & is called "Quality Hours", the other is named "Long Furrors" & is published by Appleton-Century Co.

The other two I feel are quite unworthy but you might care to glance at them & decide which should be given honorable mention.

I can send, or bring, the books to you Sun. Feb 16th is the contest closes on the 15th.

I do not have to report on this before April so you would have plenty of time to look over them.

I hesitate to ask a busy woman such as you to do this but it is a Nation wide contest & the prizes will be awarded in Washington at the Biennial Convention of the League & is an important feature of the convention.

Faithfully yours
