Miss Ida M. Tarbell,
Hotel Powhattan,
Washington, D. C.

My dear Miss Tarbell:

You have no idea how much better I feel since hearing of your appointment to the President's Industrial Conference. This is just a line to congratulate you upon this wonderful opportunity for usefulness and to say to you that you have at your back or rather at your beck and call our entire group. If at any time you think of any of the members of the Taylor Society or our associates who could be useful to you for an hour, or a day, or a week in Washington, all you have to do is to say so. Or if at any time some matter comes up upon which you think expert advice would be useful and you have no name to suggest and will give us the topic we will try and see that you are given the best assistance we can command.

Even if you don't call on us for help I believe you will be the stronger for your task for the feeling that we are at your back or rather that we are subject to your call at any moment. Please donot bother to even acknowledge this letter.

Mrs. Cooke joins me in warm regards,

Sincerely yours,

Morris L. Cooke
