

Midnight journey. see Washburne in Rice good point - not "chagrined" at the idea. not in L's disposition to repent what it was wise to do - too busy to worry over what was done.

Page 62 W in L's Time. Brooks describes Lincoln as being very angry.

Gettysburg speech, see page 285, W in L's Time, account of Lincoln carrying Edward Everett's address with him to the photographer's in order to look it over before the occasion.

Noah Brooks gives as the reasons for reviving the grade of lieutenant-general, first, dissatisfaction with Halleck. He gives excellent description of the way Washburne urged the measure before the House. Garfield opposed the bill. Whole chapter very good.

Telegram of Lincoln on September 13, 1863, to Dubois and Hatch.-

What nation do you desire Gen'l Allen to be made quarter master general of? This nation already has a quarter master general.
