Mr. Allan Nevins
The World
New York City

Dear Mr. Nevins:

Please forgive me for having been so slow in acknowledging your kindness in leaving the Kacpffert volumes at my door. I know how useful it will be to have them at hand.

Now as to the list of books which you suggested you could loan me. There are only four of them which I own, and all of the others I should want to consult. It seems very greedy to take so many, but I am accepting your generous suggestion that I check off those I should like. But will you not let me send for them, my dear Mr. Nevins? At least I could save you that trouble.

Please believe I appreciate your generous courtesy.

Very sincerely yours
