

1444 ST. JAMES COURT

LOUISVILLE, KY.

Oct 2nd 1922

Dearest Julie:

Every thing is all right! Mr. Fortune is a brick! I enclose his letter received by special delivery Saturday night. You are not supposed to know anything about the mix up. Once he has backed in the sunlight of your smile he will forget all about the incident. Only you must not be too sweet to him for he may be a widower, and your kindness may be more dangerous than your frown!

I am thrilled over your coming and the good time we are going to have playing around the country in this gorgeous October weather.

Tell me know as soon as you can just what the plan is, and what time you can be with us in Louisville. If it suits you as well, I'd rather you arrived here on the 14th than the 13th, as the 13th is the date of Bel's club dinner to eight even men, and we don't want to lose a minute
of your stay.

I am rushing this off so it will relieve your mind completely - Yours Alice.
