Mission Study Class Decides to Study China During Coming Year.

According to the usual plan, the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. will organize and conduct a mission study class under the direction of the heads of the missionary committees of the two organizations. P. A. Swartz, in his recent visit to the college, met the members of the committees and discussed plans for the year. It is at his suggestion that Arthur H. Smith's book, "The Uplift of China," was chosen as the book on which to base the course.

Considerable difficulty was encountered by R. W. Thomas, the chairman of the Y. M. C. A. committee and Miss Ethel Bayard, chairman of the same committee from the Y. W. C. A. in finding a leader willing to teach the course. While Dr. E. A. Smith was here the course was in his hands and last year it was under the direction of Dr. Coburn. Dr. Coburn was unwilling to take full charge for the coming course, as were several others also consulted. A final plan has been drawn up by which the course will be in charge of Professor Benjamin, Dr. Coburn and Miss Josette Beebe. These three will act in conjunction. The fact that Miss Beebe has lived in China and that her father is still there as a missionary will add to the interest of her lectures.

The book is divided into eight chapters, each one being intended for a separate study. One chapter will be studied each week for eight weeks through the first semester. It was at first hoped by those interested to have the "group system" inaugurated this year but that was found to be impracticable on account of the lack of leaders at the present time. The plan of Mr. Swartz, however, will probably be followed out, by which a normal class will be taught in order to train members of the associations to take charge of the groups. For the study of a whole class it was thought advisable to take up some country that was before the public eye and for this reason China was chosen. Close observers of the world powers say that this one country is bound to come to the front as one of the leaders in this next few years and hence a comprehensive study of it will add to both religious and political knowledge.

DESPERATE CONFLICT.

Pigs and Pigskins will be the attraction this afternoon at Montgomery Field when the Phi Psi and Sig alleged football dolphins will clash in mortal combat. Their sub rosa managers have arranged the following lineup and also ask all men of the college who contemplate entering the surgical business to be present.

Sigs Phi Psi

STRONG KENYON TEAM BEATEN 24-0 LAST SATURDAY IN FIRST HOME GAME OF SEASON LAVELY IS MOST PROMINENT STAR.

Strong Ohio Team Defeated in Well Played Game Last Saturday.

The first home game of the football season was that with Kenyon on last Saturday afternoon in which Allegheny won by the score of 24 to 0. The game was one of the best ever exhibited by an Allegheny team, from the standpoints of both the spectator and the player.

Prior to the game some misgiving had been felt as to the probable outcome, since Kenyon had been heralded as having one of the best teams in her history. The game was, therefore, one of the biggest surprises that has ever occurred in football on a local field. Kenyon had come confidently expecting to carry away a victory by at least three touchdowns, while Allegheny had been primed to fight every minute to turn the tide, if possible. And fight she did. From the first kickoff till the last whistle the team fought as if for every inch. As a result Kenyon was carried completely off her feet and kept there till the game had been safely won. The famous Kenyon spirit was there, but an Allegheny spirit was also very much in evidence and it was wholly this which won the game.

For Allegheny the most prominent star was Lavelly, who managed the team in excellent manner and also contributed three of the four touchdowns, not to mention his excellent defensive game. Capt. Hawk, who was again seen at his old position at left end, also played a good game, contributing one very pretty forward pass and playing a great game on defense. All three of the other back field men, Miller, Dotterrer and Abbott, played well, never failing to make more than the required distance through the line when called upon. And mentioning the line, it may be well to say that the manner in which they opened up the holes for line plays was admirable. Every man on the line did his share, both in defensive and offensive work. For Kenyon Axtell was the one redeeming feature; he made nearly all their gains and stopped many plays sent his way. He was the life of his team and played a star game.

The first quarter began with Lewis of Kenyon kicking to Allegheny. The kick was received by Hawk and carried back for a good distance. The line bucks and end runs used soon brought the ball to the Kenyon 12 yard line. Lavelly then took the ball and, although downed near the goal, succeeded in giving a lunge and throwing himself over the line. Hawk kicked goal. No more scores were made in this period which ended with the pigskin on Kenyon's 25 yard line.

In the second quarter no scores were made, Allegheny suffering from penalties inflicted and Kenyon being unable to make their distance in the allotted time. Punting was resorted to for the most part by them.

In the third period two touchdowns were recorded for Captain Hawk's warriors, Lavelly carrying the ball over both times. Kenyon by this time had given up hope of victory but not the hope of scoring. Accordingly, when the fourth period began with the ball on Kenyon's 40 yard line, they presented a determined defense. Miller, however, succeeded in circling left end for another touchdown. A number of substitutions were then made by Coach Stewart, following which the Allegheny line was found to be more pregnable although the goal was at no time in danger.

The lineup and summary follows:

Allegheny 24.	Kenyon 0.
Hawk, (Capt.) L. E. Axtel, (Capt.)	C. Dotterrer L. T. Lewis
C. Dotterrer L. T. Lewis	Hall-Deemer L. G. Cook
Hall-Deemer L. G. Cook	Thomas C. Langmade
Thomas C. Langmade	Bodenhorn, R. G. Crawford
Bodenhorn, R. G. Crawford	Pierson
Wieler-Ball R. T. Anderson	Longfellow, R. E. Wonders
Longfellow, R. E. Wonders	Townsend, Robinson
Townsend, Robinson	Q. Tasman
Q. Tasman	Miller L. H. Carr-Bowles
Miller L. H. Carr-Bowles	Lavelly R. H. Wickham
Lavelly R. H. Wickham	Abbott L. F. Rorabaugh
Abbott L. F. Rorabaugh	W. Dotterrer R. F.

Touchdowns—Lavelly 3, Miller.
Goals from touchdowns—Hawk 4.
Referee—Pendleton, of Oberlin.
Umpire—Ryan, of Notre Dame.
Field Judge—Curtis, of Cornell.
Time of periods—12½ and 10 minutes.

A SING NEXT FRIDAY.

The assembly period next Friday morning will be given over to a college sing and it is the desire of those in charge that every one in college provide himself with a copy of the New Allegheny song book, which was edited at Commencement time last year, before that time. In order that all may be able to procure these books they will be placed on sale in the Oratory of the Chapel before and after the Assembly. In the meantime and at any time during the year, they may be procured from R. B. Litten, leader of the Glee Club.

Quite a number of these books are still remaining, due to the fact that a large number of those who subscribed for the books have never purchased them. All such subscribers are earnestly requested to purchase their books on or before next Friday.

PLANS FOR TOURNAMENT.

During the last week extensive repairs have been made on the bowling-alleys in the basement of Cochran Hall. All the alleys have been refinished throughout and in addition to this several minor improvements have been planned. At the time in the near future, T. R. Fitzgerald, who is in charge of the alleys, will announce a schedule for an inter-fraternity bowling contest. It is also quite probable that both Cochran Hall and Arter House will be represented by teams, and there is at least a possibility that the Faculty may enter the league. On account of the many postponed contests of last year, the schedule was never completed and consequently the cup is now in the possession of Phi Gamma Delta, which fraternity won it two years ago.

A $20,000 running track is being completed at the University of California.

Fight on Wednesday

Class Contest Postponed Until Next Wednesday at 5 P. M.

The rope-tying contest, which was to have been held last Wednesday will be held at five o'clock on next Wednesday afternoon at the Montgomery Field. The same rules will apply by which the Freshmen are allowed to choose from their number the same for the fight. If the Sophomores do not have at least thirty the Freshmen get that number anyway. One rule that was not stated in last week's Campus is that all contestants are required to wear tennis shoes.

EXPLANATION OF SYSTEM

Yesterday the Kaldron subscription slips were distributed by F. H. Callahan, secretary of the Publishing Committee, and the preparatory work necessary to the publication of the book was begun. The slips, which cost fifty cents, may be applied to the price of a Kaldron at the end of the year as seventy-five cents. Further, they entitle the holder to the privilege of voting for the members of the Kaldron Electoral Board which will be chosen next Saturday and in whose hands rests the final choice of the board of editors together with the manager of the publication for this year.

This Electoral Board is composed of five persons elected by the student body from five groups of three each, chosen by a committee of three students and two faculty representatives. The election will be held next Saturday and the names of those chosen by the committee will be posted early next week. The final five members who are elected will then meet at some time in the near future and select the seven members who comprise the board which publishes the Kaldron.

Hard Game Today

Team Meets Mt. Union at Canton, O., This Afternoon.

What Coach Stewart has designated as "the decisive football game of the year so far as Allegheny is concerned" will be played this afternoon at Canton, O., when the eleventh from Allegheny and Mt. Union-Scio College will clash. The team left yesterday so as to be in the best shape for the game. Both teams are taking no chances on the contest. The expectation is that it will be hard fought from beginning to end.

Coach Stewart has put the team through one of the most systematic week's practices that has been seen here for some time in preparation for any game. Monday evening was spent in a study of the poor places in Saturday's game. While the rain of Tuesday night prohibited outdoor work, signal practice and special drilling in particular plays were tried. The practice of the whole week has been for the purpose of rounding the team into the best shape possible for today.

That Mt. Union-Scio will be prepared in every way for the struggle is very evident. Coach Dawson was present at the Kenyon game last week in order to familiarize himself with the style of play necessary to bring the victory to his team. The fact that few plays were used, however, is a point in Allegheny's favor. Alliance sport writers have regarded this as the biggest game on the Mt. Union schedule. Thus far this season Mt. Union has had a fine record. Reserve has been the only eleven to claim a victory against them, the final count being 10-6. Buchtel was defeated a week later by a score of 9-0 at Akron, while Bethany fell a victim in a 48-0 game. Their real strength was shown last Saturday when they defeated the Michigan Freshmen by a score of 6-0, they being the only team even to score on the Freshmen of Michigan during the past three years.

Mt. Union has had a hoodoo on Allegheny in football for some time. In the last ten years, five games have been played all of which have been won by the Ohioans. Coach Stewart was formerly at that institution, the first year of his coaching there resulting in a 11-6 score. Three years ago the game was played in Meadville and a score of 8-0 was recorded. The last time in which the two teams met was two years ago when the score was 24-0. The Ohioans are confidently expecting at least to duplicate that same score this year.

The reason for playing the game at Canton is that it is one of the best football towns in the state. Akron, Alliance and Massillon are easily accessible by means of interurban cars. A strong drawing card will be the fact that five of the regular players on the Mt. Union team are from Canton, and Erb, one of Allegheny's new regulars, hails from Massillon. Coach Stewart is also well known in that section.

When asked what he thought of the coming game, Coach Stewart said: "I consider Mt. Union the best team in Ohio at the present time and this is backed up by their record so far. I think if we win this afternoon we will win all the rest of the games on our schedule including Carnegie Tech and West Virginia University. They have a strong team and if we are strong enough to beat them we are certainly strong enough to do some fine playing. And just by way of comment—Mt. Union will have to go some to beat us."

The two teams will probably line up as follows:

Mt. Union-Scio	Allegheny
Blythe L. E. Hawk	Wolf L. G. C. Dotterrer
Beck L. G. Erb-Hall	Pritchard C. Thomas
McGregor R. G. Bodenhorn	Pierson
Monnler R. T. Wieler-Erb	Carson R. E. Townsend
Longfellow	Church L. H. Miller
Whinnery R. H. Lavelly	Neushutz Q. E.
Church F.	 L. F. Abbott
..... R. F. W. Dotterrer

Reserve has over fifty eligible men out for football this season.

President Raising $1000.00 a Day

President Crawford Recently Returned from Successful Western Trip.

President W. H. Crawford returned on Tuesday after a short business trip to Chicago and other western cities in the interest of the endowment funds of the college. A letter was received early last week from Mr. John F. Eberhart, '53, stating that he wished to see the president regarding the turning over of certain properties to the college. Accordingly Dr. Crawford visited him and found that he wished to give such an amount that his total gifts would be $100,000.00. Previous to this time, real estate had been donated by him to the amount of $91,000 and this last gift amounted to $9,000.

Mr. Eberhart in talking of the coming centennial celebration and of his gifts to his Alma Mater said: "Understand this is not to count on my centennial offering. I expect to be present at the celebration of the centennial of the college and I will bring my centennial offering with me."

The task of completing the additional $500,000 endowment has been one with which President Crawford has been engaged for some time. These gifts of Mr. Eberhart are not toward that fund. Dr. Crawford stated, however, that since he had been away from school he had kept up his record of $1,000 a day and that the prospects for raising the amount before next April, the time allowed by the educational society, were very encouraging.

DUZER-DU TO SELECT PLAY SOON

A meeting of Duzer-Du was held last Wednesday, at which several important matters were considered. The question of a play for the present year was discussed and several dramas were proposed for consideration. It is probable that within a comparatively short time the club will be in position to announce the play for the year and thus create an interest, which will insure good competition.

The offer of the club of twenty-five dollars for the best Allegheny play written by an Alleghenian has already met with some response. Word has been received by the club from G. W. Mead, '11, that he is working on a play and expects to have it ready by the required time. This is the first announced candidate for the prize but it is expected that before long many communications will be received relative to the conditions under which the prize will be awarded and that as a result the club will soon be able to present an Allegheny play written by an Alleghenian.

A GIRLS' GLEE CLUB.

A movement is on foot among the girls of Hulings Hall for organizing a Girls' Glee Club, which is to give concerts on various occasions about college. The matter was first brought before the girls last Monday evening by the president of the Student Government Board, Miss Marguerite Sheldahl, '12; and a committee composed of Misses Lyda Geiss, Helene Peck, Elizabeth Lord, Rose Williams, and Irene Beatty was appointed to discuss plans for making the club a successful organization. Regular try-outs will be held under the supervision of a competent director, who will choose the girls wholly on merit. Girls who play the violin, mandolin or guitar will probably have an opportunity to try for positions on a co-operative instrumental club.

The Red and Black of W. & J. devotes an entire column to "Fussing."

Manager's Talk

Everyone knows that it is far more agreeable to receive money than it is to pay it out. However, if you do not pay your tuition you have the pleasure of calling on some of the college authorities. The manager has the distinct pleasure of calling on the publisher of THE CAMPUS each week and paying the amount charged for printing the same. He will appreciate your courtesy if you pay him for your subscription at once.

An organization to be known as the Central Finance Committee, which if put into effect, will vitally concern the student body Finance and student organizations, Committee is to be considered at the meeting of the College Council next Thursday. Everyone in college, who is at all interested in student activities should study the proposition and make any suggested changes to his representative in the Council. The constitution may be had from the secretary of the College Council.

The first home game of the football season has been played and the student body has had an opportunity to see the much-talked-of team in action—in action almost perfect. It would be trite to say that the expectations of the most optimistic one were fulfilled, and that the team is all that could be desired. Coach Stewart, Captain Hawk and each individual player deserve the hearty congratulation and sincere thanks of each student for the team they have made.

MANY NEW MEN TAKE CHRISTIAN STAND.

The regular Y. M. C. A. meeting on Wednesday evening was devoted entirely to the new men who were given an opportunity at that time to make a definite stand either for or against a Christian life while in college. The meeting was in charge of F. H. Callahan, who gave a short but very pointed talk, after which a number of Freshmen took the stand for an active interest in Y. M. C. A. and a better life while in college. All of the men were enthusiastic in their declarations; and prospects for a successful year in the association seem exceptionally good.

After explaining the purpose of the meeting, the leader announced as the subject of his talk the lesson which speaks of a tree being known by its fruit. In part he said: "This lesson as presented by Christ is a real business proposition. We all know and judge men not by their outward appearances, but by the fruit they bear. It will not do to do nothing, since there is then no fruit and we become as the barren fig tree. You must do something to be adjudged a man. When men first come to school they are judged not by what they have been at home or by what they may have done but rather by what they do while here.

"We must always keep before us those ideals which thus far guided our lives, and continually try to enlarge them. Before we came to school there was someone or something at home to direct our steps but now our actions depend entirely upon ourselves. We are in the plastic stage and must mold ourselves. To do so requires an ever present ideal. This ideal must be great. We need some thing big to lead us on, to spur us on to greater accomplishments. In order to be what we ought to be, the great ideal is needed to guide us in all things. Big ideals aid greatly in making great men."

Always the show of the town at Veith's.

The Adventurer

It is very probable that all there is to be said on the subject of books and reading has been said by someone, possibly by a number of persons with only a difference in form. For this reason the Adventurer does not attempt to think of these things with the expectancy of hitting upon a new thought, but merely for the delight of the subject itself. He likes to read and to hear what others have to say of books and reading. Some of these discussions are interesting. For instance, a very unique statement is that made by Arnold Bennett in his essay on books, that he does not buy books necessarily because he wants to read them or expects to read them, but very frequently for the mere sake of having them on his shelves to look at and absorb from the outside.

This came as a severe shock to the conscientious reading nature of the Adventurer, for he had always held that books should be bought for purposes of reading, not for decoration; that it is only hypocrites who buy books, without even the desire or distant expectation of reading them. What good are books, he argued, when they serve no other purpose than wall decoration? He held in genuine disfavor the man who buys books because he wished to appear literary, and who neither reads nor anticipates reading his volumes. Then came Arnold Bennett, the distinguished English novelist and man of letters, who ought to know something of the subject, saying that we do not need to read all of our books. This was contrary to the Adventurer's firmly rooted conception, but after the reflection of several days he perceived that Mr. Bennett was right, that it is a great inspiration to have the books on the shelves before us, even though we expect to do no more than walk up and down in front of them, as Mr. Bennett himself does.

This theory may sound improbable, but it is nevertheless true. One can get a considerable amount of solid inspiration from looking upon the outside covers of the works of Dickens or Thackeray or surely of Shakespeare as they rest before him. The influence will much of the time not be recognized by the one upon whom it is exercised, but it is there none the less. We unconsciously associate with Shakespeare and the other masters the high character of their works and when their names are presented to us, we think, perhaps without realizing the process, of the things in life for which they have stood. It is for much the same reason, that a picture is helpful and inspiring. The photograph of a friend recalls to one's mind the things which make the friend worth while in one's life. Accordingly the Adventurer has come to believe Mr. Bennett's theory that we do not have to read all of our books in order to get good from them. Of course many should be read, and read thoroughly but there are others which will probably yield the most good for the time expended, if viewed from the outside only. And while the Adventurer is eager to read many books, he has learned that there are many he does not have to read and should not read.

GERMANS CONGREGATE.

On Monday evening the Germans convened in their room in the Library for the first regular meeting of the year. Many who are endeavoring to make the club the best in years were present and as a result several plans for the execution of this idea were proposed. Professor Dewey explained the purpose of the club for the coming year, emphasizing mainly the need of co-operation among the members if any lasting benefit was to be had from the meetings.

After the transaction of all business a very instructive and interesting review of the great German drama, "Faith and Fireside," was read by Miss Louise Jordan. This was discussed to some extent after which appropriate refreshments were served and an entertaining German conversation engaged in. The remaining meetings of the club will be conducted along the same lines as this first with every effort being exerted to make them as entertaining and instructive as possible.

Word has been received that the name decided upon for the oratorical league in which Ohio Wesleyan, Allegheny, Wooster and Pitt are included, is "The Intercollegiate Civic League."

Gossip on Football

Showing the Comparative Relation of Allegheny to Other Teams.

Several interesting facts were proven by the results of the gridiron contests of last week, most important among which was the standing which Allegheny has in a relative way, in the general football sport-dom. The hardest part of the schedule is yet to be played and judging from the advance dope, the team will be in position to give any of the eleven on the schedule a hard fight.

The score of the Allegheny-Hiram game caused no small amount of joy in the hearts of all Alleghenians, particularly since the prospects had been for an extra large score on the wrong side of the board. Last Saturday at Oberlin, the same Hiram team minus the one big star of that eleven, Altsdoeff, succeeded in defending their goal with such strength that Oberlin did not cross it once and scored only because of the accuracy of their place kicker. It has been stated by both Allegheny players and Coach Stewart that if the blue and gold squad had worked with the same determination against Hiram, as that with which they fought Kenyon, Allegheny would have been able to tack up a victory. It is possible that the two teams will meet again this season, however, as Manager Nichols and Coach Stewart are making negotiations for a game in Meadville on November 11. Grove City is on the schedule for a game that day at Grove City but as the latter will not agree to eliminate Boone and Marks the game will probably be cancelled. Both these men are professional baseball players and hence are not eligible according to rules governing the league. Should a Hiram game be arranged here a record crowd would witness the contest.

Geneva has contracted for a game for next Saturday on their own grounds and Tech will be the attraction in Meadville the following week. These two teams were opponents last Saturday, the Tech eleven claiming a 5-0 victory. It will be remembered that when these two teams met last year the same score was recorded as last week. Reports seem to indicate that the Plaids have gained considerable strength this year by the acquisition of a number of new players and hence the interest in the next home game will depend in a large extent to the result of next Saturday's game. It is assured, however, that Tech will come back strong this year in an effort to wipe out the memory of the 27-0 defeat of last year.

The schedule for the remainder of the season follows:

Today—Mt. Union at Canton, O.
Oct. 28—Geneva at Beaver Falls.
Nov. 4—Carnegie Tech at Meadville.
Nov. 11—Grove City at Grove City or Hiram at Meadville.
Nov. 18—W. Va. University at Morgantown.
Nov. 30—Buchtel at Akron, O.

CENTRAL FINANCE COMMITTEE

A constitution for the so-called Central Finance Committee has been drawn up and presented to the College Council for final vote as to whether or not it shall be put in use. The Central Finance Committee is composed of six members, three from the faculty and three from the student body, who shall have charge of all student activities and see that all organizations from which profit may accrue, shall turn over a percentage of their profits above a certain amount. The money is then to be held in trust by the Committee for any losses that may occur to the management of the contributing societies and in case the sinking fund exceeds two hundred dollars it shall be divided between the Athletic Association and the Oratorical Association.

The new plan which will be voted upon at the meeting of the College Council next Thursday is to place the Duzer-Du, Klee-O-Kleet and Glee and Mandolin Clubs on this basis. The Campus and Literary Monthly were put on this division basis last year and The Kaldron the previous year, so that the plan to include these other organizations is not an innovation. The purpose of the originators of the plan is to arrange matters so that, after any management has received fifty dollars clear profit it shall divide with the Central Finance Committee the half over that. In this way the amount of money to be made by any one manager will be limited and will in an indirect way come back to the contributors

Miss Ina Maxwell, Miss J. L. Hoopes, Miss Edith Askey, Miss Ethel Gealy and Miss Rose Platt were dinner guests of Phi Delta Theta on Tuesday.

Dr. C. M. Coburn read a paper on the "Romance of Papyrus Hunting" at the meeting of the Meadville Teachers' Association last Tuesday evening.

Miss Emma Gillette, Miss Margaret West, Miss Mary Sowash, Miss Bess Ling and Miss Bess Metcalf were guests of Phi Delta Theta for Sunday dinner.

Among those who were here for the football game with Kenyon were W. B. Craig, '11, Fred Bright, '10, W. B. Cole, '11, C. D. Baker, '10, J. R. Gahan, '10, and C. G. McNulty, ex-'13.

The Keystone Library Association of Pennsylvania met in its annual convention during the past week at Saegertown. Miss Edith Rowley, the college librarian, who is a member of the association, attended the convention.

Dr. C. M. Coburn has been very highly honored by an invitation to take part in the program of the World's Sunday school Congress which will be held in Zurich, Switzerland, in 1913. As Dr. Coburn will probably be in Europe at this time, it will be convenient for him to take part in this unusual program.

Dr. J. C. McDonald, the new District Superintendent of the Meadville District, was present at the chapel service last Saturday. He read the scripture and offered prayer, after which Professor Dutton called on him to address the students. He gave a short talk in which he urged each one to do the best possible work, advising each one to choose his life's work, thoughtfully and prayerfully.

The Student Government Association of Hulings Hall has named next Friday as pay-day, at which time the girls will pay their dues for the Y. W. C. A. and the Women's Athletic Association as well as for the Student Government Association. A lost and found bureau is among the new departments which the Student Government Association has instituted this year.

During the past week the Campus competition judging committee, composed of Professors Akers, Elliott and Swartley, met and appointed Miss Elizabeth Lord, '13, and Miss Jeanette Robinson, '14, as reporters on the editorial staff of The Campus in order to fill the vacancies caused by the failure of Miss Victoria Lord and Miss Frances Riethmiller to return to school.

That the girls of Hulings Hall take an active interest in Allegheny athletics was demonstrated by the fact that a lively and enthusiastic rally was held in the dining room of the hall on the evening before the Allegheny-Kenyon game. Speeches were given by Miss Edna Yost, '13, Miss Beulah Grauel, '13, and Miss Elizabeth Lord, '13, to urge the girls to attend the game in a body. The meeting was closed by a vigorous Allegheny, led by Miss Yost.

The Y. W. C. A. meeting last Sunday evening was in charge of Miss Jessie Reed, '14. The greater part of the time was taken up by reports from Miss Edith Deland, '13, and Miss Mary Sowash, '12, who were delegates to the conference held in September at Denison University, Granville, O. Miss Deland told about the sermons which she had heard at the conference, while Miss Sowash's report was on bible and mission studies. Special music was furnished for the meeting by Miss Ruth Dodd, '14.

Professor S. S. Swartley led the Y. W. C. A. prayer meeting at Hulings Hall last Wednesday evening, taking for his subject, "Loyalty." He defined the term as a willing, practical, thorough going devotion of one person to another person or a cause.

Professor Swartley gave concrete examples of loyalty which were practical, willing and thorough. He especially emphasized the fact that a person should be loyal to his own convictions, to his friends, and to his God.

The regular meeting of the Forum was held in Philo-Franklin Hall on Thursday afternoon. Before the beginning of the debate, Roy Manne, '15, was elected sergeant-at-arms to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of P. B. Beck. The question for debate was: "Resolved, that the provision for the recall of judges should have been left in the Arizona constitution," Galbraith and Hunt having the affirmative, and Van Horn and Sheffer the negative. The decision of the Forum was in favor of the affirmative. The same question will be debated at the next meeting.

First Lit is Out

First Number of New Volume of The Lit is Issued Today.

Well, it's out. And furthermore it's out on time. True it is that a record has been broken, but tradition in this instance had to be trampled upon, for the editor had promised it to-day and it had to come. All of which means that the first edition of the seventeenth volume of The Allegheny Literary Monthly has made its appearance and has entered upon another year of adventure on the college hill.

In appearance, the new Lit is somewhat altered. It is now encased in an artistic brown cover with gold letters arranged in a very pleasing, yet plain manner. The interior in appearance is but slightly changed with the exception of a title-page cut and the omission of the department of the Arena. There are a number of very acceptable poems in this number, the efforts of students, which lend an added literary air to the whole.

The stories are all interesting and are worthy of any literary paper. They deal for the most part with phases of college life familiar to all. Furthermore several of the stories are very clever, containing many touches of well expressed humor and college philosophy. In fact the paper as a whole is a very commendable literary effort and bids fair to fulfill the expectations expressed in the editorial column.

As a fitting introduction comes the poem "Exhortatio" by Florence M. Griswold. It contains the true poetic ring and is most appropriately named.

The next story, "The Secret of the Iris," by Ruth F. Baldwin, is the first part of a serial story which deals with an enchanting damsel and a manly young man, together headed for the inevitable outcome. However, the plot, though simple is very well treated, the characters well drawn and the story so charming that one can scarcely help wondering what the final outcome is to be and how it is to be evolved. It is indeed a clever production.

The next effort, "Why I Killed Riggs," by J. C. Blucher, though quite a contrast to the light, airy tale which precedes it, is nevertheless very interesting. It deals with the pangs of conscience and at times is even ghastly in its reality. The author has portrayed in an excellent manner the awful consequences of a conscience that is not at ease, and best of all he brings the picture to a very pleasing and proper climax. It is an attempt somewhat out of the ordinary and as such is a decided success.

After these comes a delightful little poem dedicated to "Round Top" by Willard F. Maxwell. It expresses in a truly poetic manner the desires that all have to retain forever a picture of the wonderful old hill of Allegheny.

"A Lesson in Economics," by Florence M. Griswold, is a good sketch of human nature and especially the human nature of a girl at college. It deals with the imagined sorrows of a self-pitying young lady.

"The Defeat," by A. C. Nodine, is a college story through and through. It tells the story of the misunderstood man in college who when the opportunity comes, proves himself the real man. One might suggest that the climax is a little too dramatic and unusual for the general trend of the story. Aside from that it is a very commendable effort.

After this follows another of those delightful short poems, which is entitled "Suspense" and which bears as a mark of its source only the initials C. F.

After this poetic outburst follow two of the most clever little tales that one could hope for. The first, "A Political Conversion," by Margaret E. Megirt, tells in charming manner of the attempt of a beautiful girl destined to the inevitable trying to persuade a handsome young lawyer who is running for office that women should have equal suffrage. Naturally he is more than willing to listen and in fact he even asks for more interviews. Of course they are granted and the rest is easily imagined. The other, "Confound It All," has that excellent trio, the girl, the man and the little boy to deal with, and naturally the story can not help being clever. As usual they meet in the train and before parting they discover the identity of each other but "confound it all" the man has to wait three days before the inevitable can begin to happen.

The final story, "The Forgotten Mother," by F. H. Callahan, is different from all the others in every respect. It deals with a period at the time of the Saviour's birth and is really a new version of the prodigal son. It deals with the departure of the son for new lands, happy and care free, loaded with riches and apparently starting on a career of great success. He is so flushed with his good fortune that the Mother has been forgotten when he departs. As is to be expected he returns in due time a beggar, but when he nears home it is the Mother who first spies him and it is she who orders the good things for his comfort. The story is without a doubt one of the best and is a truly good effort.

The department of Organizations follows these literary productions and in this appears a very good definition of the Quill Club and what it should mean to all. Under the head of Alumni the fact is merely noted that the department will be devoted to the interest of the Alumni and that there will appear from time to time communications from them.

Thus endeth the first issue of the new Lit and a truly worthy number it is.

DEBATING PLANS BEING MADE.

Professor S. S. Swartley, Coach of Debating, left yesterday for Youngstown, O., for the purpose of meeting with Professor Fisk of the University of Pittsburgh and Professor Lean of Wooster University to draw up and adopt a constitution for the debating league. Several plans have been suggested by the various members of the league but as yet an understanding has not been reached as to all the details. It is for this purpose that the meeting was called.

Another thing to be considered was the question for the intercollegiate debates. Wooster has suggested the Old Age Pension subject and some phase of the Employer's Liability act. Allegheny has offered the Recall of Judges, the Recall of Municipal Officials and the Amherst Idea for Small Colleges. The executive committee held a meeting on Tuesday afternoon and decided to name the Recall of Judges as their first choice and the Employer's Liability Act as a second. The date for the debates will probably be March 15, the University of Pittsburgh coming here.

An Opportunity for an Orator.
The Pennsylvania Peace and Arbitration Society has sent out a letter telling of their annual contest for undergraduate students in this state. Two prizes, one of seventy-five dollars and one of twenty-five dollars are offered. This letter was read at the meeting of the committee and it was decided to post it so as to give those who might wish to compete an opportunity to learn the requirements. Last year the prize was won by a Dickinson student. A number of men have already signified their intention of entering the contest.

MISSION STUDY RALLY.

In order to secure the names of those who wish to enroll in the mission study class for the year and also to inform the new students of the purpose and methods of the class, the Assembly Chapel yesterday morning was given over to that subject. H. S. Leitzel, president of the Y. M. C. A., made a short talk, telling what mission study has meant in the past and urging every student to join the class.

Dr. Cobern, who with Prof. G. A. Benjamin and Miss Josette Beebe, will have charge of the teaching of the course, then gave a talk on the reason for choosing China as the country to be studied. He said that four reasons seemed to present themselves: (1) It is the most curious of all ancient nations as to their strange customs and habits; (2) It's modern history is the most interesting, as China is bound to take one of the leading places in the world's history; (3) Every missionary acknowledges that so far as the religious possibilities in the far east are concerned, China stands first; (4) We have our own Allegheny people there. He read a letter from Mrs. William Millward, '04, who with her husband is now in the mission field in China. She told of the organization of the first mission study class and added her best wishes for the success of the course. Dr. Cobern stated that he expected to have monthly reports from China from either Mr. or Mrs. Millward.

F. H. Callahan was the last speaker, he telling in a humorous way of the good derived from the class if all participated in it and took the proper interest. Papers were then passed to be signed by those wishing to purchase books and thus enroll in the class.

NEW FACULTY COMMITTEES.

Owing to the absence of several members of last year's faculty, the committees for the year have been changed to some extent. Dr. Breed succeeds Dr. Mulfinger on the committee on registration and Professor Dewey takes the latter's place on the course of study committee. Dr. Breed and Dr. Snively are the members of the committee on graduate instruction. Professor Lee is the new chairman of the athletic committee and Dr. Benjamin is the new member of that committee.

Thoughts and Afterthoughts

It isn't the fact that we're here that counts but only what we are striving to do.

Whenever you hear a man talking about himself you may believe that he has not much to talk about. Men who do things have little time to talk about them.

The trouble with most college students is that they do not study at all most of the time, too much part of the time and not enough all of the time.

Phillips Brooks says, "There is yet no culture, no method of progress known to men that is so rich and complete as that which is ministered by a truly great friendship."

The hypothesis that the moon is made of green cheese is disproved by the Bible, inasmuch as the order of creation shows that the heavenly bodies were made before cows.

A college course is a sort of experiment in which each student controls the various developments and conditions. If he does not use the greatest care in his work the result is liable to be an explosion.

LETTERS

MISS BULLOCK STUDYING IN FRANCE.

Miss Hazel J. Bullock, '09, who is studying in France this year, has written a delightful letter, telling of her recent experiences. After speaking of a very pleasant trip across the Atlantic which was disturbed by no storms whatever, she continues:

"The trip up the English channel was beautiful. We kept rather close to the English shore and the green hills looked good to us. We passed a great many watering places, and the 'chalk cliffs' of Dover, anchoring finally at Flushing at the mouth of the river Scheldt, where we waited several hours for the tide. The lowlands of Holland and Belgium looked strangely peaceful and content. We saw the dykes, windmills, red-roofed houses, carefully trimmed fields, and farms as neat as wax. The economy of Europeans, especially the Netherlands, in regard to land, is a great lesson to Americans; they never leave any to lie waste; it is too precious, so they never have any dump heaps or weed patches.

"A party of seven stayed together in Antwerp where we landed and then separated, three of us to go to Cologne and up the Rhine to Mainz. The Rhine fulfilled my expectations. It is a beautiful river, though not so wildly picturesque as it was in ancient times, before the banks were cultivated. Every available spot on the mountain sides is used for a vineyard, and the mountain slopes seem to be terraced. We saw the mouse tower at Bingen, Old Bingen on the Rhine, and the rock of the Lorelei.

"We spent Sunday at Mainz and it happened to be in the midst of a big celebration of the town. Sunday was Catholic day, and we saw a real Continental Sunday: crowds in every street, an immense parade, bands of all sizes and descriptions, and open shops.

"I had been told that the European cities were beginning to look alike, instead of keeping their national characteristics; we have found this to be true. The people are following Paris styles and leaving their national costumes. But we saw some quaint dresses, in Mainz, evidently from the country or small towns. The first day after leaving Mainz, I found Americans to talk to on the train, but the second day I was completely engulfed in French. The conductors were particularly unobliging, and I found that the passengers were always ready to help me out. They saw in a moment that I was 'etrange.'

"Arriving in Grenoble I went to the pension to which I had written. It is kept by a priest, with two German young women as housekeepers. I stayed there two weeks and now am at the Student Hostel, a pension for 'demoiselles,' which belongs to the Protestant Mission work here, directed by a charming young Frenchwoman. All the French atmosphere is preserved, and we are not allowed to speak anything but French. I am the third American; there are three Italians, and two Tcheques or Bohemians. The town of Grenoble is very clean for a French town. Everybody lives in apartments and the buildings are close against the sidewalk, so we never see a blade of grass except in the parks. The University buildings are scattered and one of them is in a horrible, narrow, dirty street. The courses are exceedingly good. Out of six possible periods a day I attend four.

"The weather was fearfully hot when I arrived, but is cooler now and will be pleasant from now on. Grenoble is in the valley of the Asere and mountains surround it; two of them still have snow on their summits. There are very nice little 'patisseries' and 'confiseries' on every corner, where we get dainty little cakes and candies. They serve 'glaces,' which are always ices, never ice cream; they are expensive too."

CLASSICAL CLUB MAKES RIGID RULE.

The first regular meeting of the Classical Club for the college year was held last Tuesday evening in the library. Miss Laura Strickland gave a report on current events in an interesting manner, and C. S. Smith, with the aid of L. B. Angus, gave a digest of a series of six magazine articles of especial interest to classical

Imperial Hats

The English call them bowlers. We call them derbies but you'll call them "corkers" when you see them. The Imperial derby is made in many shapes, each of which is very distinctive. There is a curl to the brim that you'll like and the crown is beautifully proportioned. Being first of all quality hats, Imperials sell for $3.00. . .

The rough finish in soft hats is decidedly popular. It's really more than popular—sort of a craze.

At the next meeting Miss Margaret Beebe, assistant in the Latin and Greek departments, will have a paper on "A Comparison of Aristophanes' 'Birds' and Rostand's 'Chantecler.'" At the next meeting the members of the club will be expected to respond to the roll call with a Greek or Latin quotation. Any member who is late will be called upon for two quotations.
