

July 21, 1921

Mr. Robert B. Wolf,
42 Broadway, New York.

My dear Mr. Wolf:

I am just back to New York and find your letter of July 16, saying that you have sent me a copy of Korzybski's book. It is very good of you.

The book has not arrived, but when it comes I shall give it the earliest possible reading, and I am sure shall find it interesting. As I am going out of town for a couple of weeks, I may be a little slow in getting around to it.

I am glad that you think the Dennison exhibit at Brunswick worth attention. Compared with the run of factories it certainly is an industrial idyl.

And now as to interesting Henry Ford in your work. I would like mightily to do it, and if I had a chance at him I think might, but a thing of that sort must come about naturally. Sooner or later I am going to try to get at him, and you can count on me, if I ever do, to try to interest him so that he will want you to come, it being understood of course that you come simply to present your achievement, not with the idea of a job.

I shall look forward to seeing you some time this fall here in New York.

Very truly yours,