Autobiography:

I must have a chapter or paragraph at least on why I did things. Both the Gary and the Young-must explain. I had definite reasons.

My reason in the Gary, of course, was as I have frequently said was to show that a movement against what I considered the gravest abuses in industry were being attacked by Gary, that the Gary code, as they called it, was a distinct attack on the Rockefeller code and according to my philosophy it was as necessary to show all practical (2 words) effort to correct bad practices as it was to show the bad ____ practices.

In case of Young I got the credit of writing a campaign biography. The book came out in the Spring of 1932 as had been planned. My object in writing it was because in Young I saw the man who at that time was doing more than any other man in public life, as I saw it, to develop a technique for settling contentions between men, establishing the policy of peacefully adjusting the difficulties. establishing a policy of negotiations to replace force. I had enough faith, and have still, in the capacity of men to take education, accept ideas, conquer greed, to believe it could be done. And wherever I saw in an individual life, in a group, an exhibit of this capacity I was for it, felt that attention should be called to it.
