Mr. George P. Brett,
The Macmillan Co.,
New York.

Dear Mr. Brett:

One of my friends, a lawyer, who always goes over any legal documents to which I have to sign my name, has penciled some corrections which he thinks should be made in the agreement which you have sent me. They seem to me only to make it a little more definite. Do you object to their being added to the paper which you have sent me?

I have already outlined the work which seems to me necessary for the proper revision of the tariff articles. I rather think I shall be able to give the copy to you before the middle of August; at least I am going to make a strenuous effort to do so.

Very sincerely yours,
