Dunlap
Mr. John H. Vandeventer,
Industrial Management,
116 East 32 St.,
New York City.

Dear Mr. Vandeventer:

I am afraid you and Mr. Dunlap must think that I have slipped out of this wicked world, leaving a long train of things undone behind me.

The truth is, I have been busy as a bee for the last two months, although not giving much time, I must confess, to our Woman in Industry enterprise. As I told Mr. Dunlap the last time I saw him, I have been trying to place serially the articles which I propose to write. I must do this and must do it at my customary prices or I cannot afford to finish the book. I have as much - or almost as much - invested in the enterprise as Mr. Dunlap, and I am quite as anxious as he not to lose the investment. I think it can be worked out, but it is going to take a little time.

I am off Monday for some factory work in New England - work that will bear directly on our book. Indeed, I am constantly getting new material for this thing and seeing it, I think, in a little larger way.

The proofs of that last article of mine have not come to me although the check for it did. When are you publishing it?

I have a note from Miss Walter saying that she needs in her work certain material which she contributed to our files in Industrial Management. This is all - or was, some four weeks ago, the last time I was in the office - on our shelves. Will you not kindly have the material packed and sent to her at Harbor Heights, Mamaroneck, N. Y. I am enclosing list of this material.

As soon as I come back from my New England trip, I will come into the office and talk things over with you and Mr. Dunlap.

Very sincerely yours,
