Dear Miss Tarbell:

I have the permission of the MacClure Magazine to use your "Commercial Machiavellianism," which appeared in that periodical several years ago, in a volume of sociological essays which Professor George Coray and I are getting out for use in our Freshman class.

They suggested that I also get your consent.

May I have your permission to use this essay in the volume which we are compiling? I shall feel that our compilation is incomplete without it. We have had the kindest replies from all so far, and I hope you will not refuse us.

Very truly yours,

L. A. Quivey
