ALLEGHENY'S WOMEN DEBATERS ENTERTAIN BATES COLLEGE TEAM

Invaders Prominent in National Forensic Fraternity.

EXCELLENT WORK

Bates College was represented on our campus yesterday in a debate with three women of our team. Misses Jack, McKusick, and Durkee made the long trek from Lewiston, Maine, to argue with women of schools in Pennsylvania and Ohio. Betty Elliott, Aileen Rockenbach, and Rachel Mumbalo upheld the affirmative side of the question, "Resolved, that the United States should adopt an economic internationalism" against the invaders.

All of the visitors are members of Delta Sigma Rho, national forensic honorary fraternity, and are prominent in other campus activities. Miss Grace Jack, '38, is vice-president of her class and of the Women's Student Government Association. She is also a member of the Politics Club and of the Junior body of the Bates College Outing Club.

Miss Margaret McKusick, '37, has been on the varsity debating squad for three years, has served as secretary of her class, and as a member of the Y. W. C. A. cabinet. She is a sociology major and a member of the Politics Club.

Miss Harriet Durkee, '37, is student assistant in the department of argumentation and is also in her third year of varsity debate. She is a soloist in the college choir and the choral society and is a member of the Heeler's dramatic group and the MacFarland musical group. Vice-president of the Politics Club, Miss Durkee is majoring in history and government.

These versatile women are prepared to debate any one of three questions, two of which have been adopted by Allegheny.

Although this is the first time that any Bates team has visited Ohio or Pennsylvania, debating trips are no novelty to students of the college. Bates men have been around the world once, have been to England three times, went on an extensive tour of Canada in 1934, and to Florida in 1935.

Bates women debaters have traveled less, but visited the University of Toronto and McGill on a Canadian trip several years ago. The nearest they have been to Pennsylvania was on a trip to western New York State in 1934. The present trip is 1900 miles long and includes Penn State, University of Pittsburgh, Ohio State, Ohio Wesleyan, Wooster, Western Reserve, and ends up with Allegheny.

HULINGS' DIARY DURING EXAMS

JANUARY 4.

Dear Diary—Back again to the same old grind . . . gee, vacation was grand! How am I ever going to study after that? That's right, study is the word. I think I'll work real hard this last two weeks, then I won't have to study so hard for exams . . . wonder if Bob will call tomorrow? . . .

JANUARY 10.

Dear Diary—I started to go over those history notes Joan gave me, but I got in a bridge game and before I realized, it was time for dinner. My resolution that I made about not cutting classes didn't turn out so well either, when I slept through two eight o'clocks this week. Well, starting tomorrow I'm really going to get down to business and study—I'll refuse all dates except for Saturday night, then I'll just have to study . . .

JANUARY 15.

Dear Diary—Here it is Friday already and I can feel everyone tightening up . . . those two girls I passed in the hall just now were on their way to the sorority rooms to study—maybe I better go up for a while . . .

Well, it didn't do any good . . . they were so far ahead of me that I only got mixed up on the little I do know. My exam schedule is terrible. I have English 17 the first morning, then two hard ones the next day and none until the last two days . . . Diary, right now I'm making a resolution not to get worried, and not to try and cram. Maybe I'll get through all right . . .

JANUARY 17.

Dear Diary—It has started . . . the hall was quiet as a tomb all day, no

VISITING DEBATERS

PROFESSOR TAKES PART IN NATIONAL SCIENCE MEETING

Dr. W. Ufford Observes Series of Great Exhibits.

Dr. Charles W. Ufford attended the joint meeting of the American Association for Advancement of Science, The American Physical Society, and The American Association of Physics Teachers at Atlantic City from December 28 to 31. To Princeton then Dr. Ufford traveled to attend the meeting of The Symposium on Molecular

In convention, a discussion arose over the measurement of the electron. The viscosity measurements have been revised and those obtained by Millikan, who won the Nobel Prize for the original experiments are the same as those taken by X-ray. Dr. Ufford indicated that some doubt was cast in these experiments in the discussion since the desired answer was known beforehand.

The main address was delivered by President K. T. Compton, of Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Dr. Compton is the retiring president of the association. Professor John T. Tait, retiring vice-president of the Physics sections, addressed the meeting on "The Electron Impacts in Gases." President T. F. Richtmeyer, President of the American Physical Society, gave an address on "Multiple Ionization of Atoms."

Through information gathered from various sources, the Alumni Office of the college has released in the last issue of its bulletin the activities of various members of the class of 1936.

Graduate study, teaching positions, and various jobs were the chief items reported.

Robert Muir has an assistantship in the Biology Department of Yale University Medical School.

Duke Gull received a scholarship in the school of Library Science at the University of Michigan.

John Bletzinger is now employed at the Institute of Paper Chemistry at Appleton, Wisconsin, where he is also working on his master's degree.

Margaret Strobe is a laboratory technician in an Erie hospital.

Edward Carney, George Canfield, and Philip Jacobus are enrolled at the University of Pittsburgh Law School.

Helen Walper is teaching in Cambridge Springs.

Delbert Jolley is a student in the School of Theology at Boston University.

William Taft has entered Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia.

Robert Dennis is teaching French and English at Georgia Military Academy, College Park, Atlanta, Georgia.

Richard Horn is a graduate student in the University of Pittsburgh Medical School.

Reginald Ivett has a fellowship at Purdue University.

SINGERS FORM PLANS FOR COMING TRIPS IN TRI-STATE AREA

Prof. Luvaas Arranging Series of Concerts for Spring.

Tentative plans for spring trips which will take the Allegheny Singers into New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and cities in the tri-state area were announced by Mr. Paul H. Younger, field representative, who together with Prof. Morton J. Luvaas, is arranging the schedule of concerts for the choral group.

Preliminary arrangements have been made for the group to appear at the Town Hall, New York City. May 4 is the tentative date for the concert, to be sponsored by the New York alumni association of the college. James R. Mills, president of the association, is cooperating with Mr. Younger in preparation for the performance.

During the same tour, the Singers probably will present concerts at Fairfield, Conn., Elizabeth, N. J., Philadelphia, Binghamton, N. Y., and York, Pa., singing one concert a night in the period from May 2 to May 8.

Also contemplated is a trip during Allegheny's Easter vacation with concerts booked for Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Buffalo, Jamestown, N. Y., Erie, and Warren, Pa. In addition, a series of Sunday night concerts in nearby towns will be instituted for the first time this spring, according to plans. The program is to be released soon.

NEW UNITARIAN PASTOR SPEAKS OF RESOLUTIONS

Statements of Famous Men Prove of Value.

In "taking inventory of himself" at the beginning of the new year Rev. Walter Pederson, Unitarian minister of Meadville, who spoke in chapel last Wednesday, found three things that would be useful to him.

These three things grew out of his disagreement with statements made by three famous men. The first of these was Thomas Aquinas—"Divine goodness is infinite and complete, and the entire creation can never increase its goodness." Mr. Pederson believes that we can add to the goodness of the world.

Thomas Jefferson once said, "There should be nothing but reason in religion." Mr. Pederson thinks differently. "It is part of the grandeur, glory, and shame of the world that man is not always reasonable," he said. "We must penetrate the universe not only with reason but with feeling."

Finally, he disagrees with George Santayana's statement, "The realm of matter exists, but it is not important; the realm of essence is important, but does not exist." Mr. Pederson believes "no true beauty ever fades forlornly away, but exists in the realm of essence. The immaterial world IS real and abiding."

THREE DEBATES HELD BY VARSITY SQUAD DURING PAST WEEK

To Suspend Activities Until the Second Semester.

TO INVADE OHIO

After having participated in three debates in the past week, the Allegheny Varsity Men's Debate Team will call a halt to its activities until the second semester gets under way.

Last Thursday in Arter Hall, a debate was held with Iowa State Teachers College. Stanley Benz and Ernest Brandberg of the visitors upheld the affirmative side of the question, "Resolved: That Congress should be empowered to regulate minimum wages and maximum hours for industry", while the negative argument was espoused by Mishell George and Rex Malmquist of Allegheny.

At the Butler Kiwanis Club last Monday, George Thornton and Sam Ziskind spoke in an evening presentation of the arguments for and against adopting a policy of economic internationalism or "Buy American".

Three two-men debate teams traveled to Westminster last night in a return meeting after the appearance of the New Wilmington speakers here some time ago. The question concerning minimum wages and maximum hours was discussed by Charles Miller, William Hampton, Raymond Watts Dale Stoops, Thomas Hazlett, and Herbert Rosen.

After the semester exams are over, the debaters will undergo a heavy schedule. Home debates will be held with Penn State College on February 13, with Erskine College of South Carolina on February 18, and with LeMayne Negro College of Memphis, Tennessee on February 19. Western Reserve University, Carnegie Institute of Technology, Washington and Jefferson College, and Wooster College will also appear here.

The Varsity Debate squad will make a trip into Ohio on March 3, 4, and 5, and the teams of Western Reserve University, Ohio Wesleyan University, and Oberlin College will be met. The question discussed will be "Resolved: That the United States should adopt a policy of economic internationalism".

An Eastern trip will be made March 15 to March 23, during which debates will be held with Penn State College, Lehigh University, Rutgers University, Brothers College of Columbia University, Nassau College, New York University, Bard College of Columbia University, and Hobart College. The question presented will be concerning the adoption of a policy of economic internationalism.

Debates will also be held with Houghton College at Fredonia High

REVIEW GIVEN OF HOWARD'S HAMLET

To put it bluntly, Shakespeare has probably gained more from Leslie Howard's production of Hamlet than Howard has from it. Upon returning early Tuesday morning from viewing Howard's first Cleveland appearance we felt the performance more than justified itself. We found that for pure enjoyment Hamlet can be acted with much greater effect than that received from merely reading it. This was evidenced by the applause accorded Aubrey Mather as a grand Polonius; Clifford Evans as Laertes, in a scene of his return to Denmark's court when he finds that Ophelia is mad, and Pamela Stanley's interpretation of the mad Ophelia.

Nor can one neglect the remainder of Mr. Howard's supporting cast. There was Wilfrid Walter as Claudius; Mary Servoss as the Queen; John Barclay as the Ghost; and Joseph Holland as a superb Horatio who could hardly be better.

Leslie Howard's interpretation of Hamlet was of the quality which we have expected of him. Except in one or two instances, including his first soliloquy his acting technique and interpretation was of the highest quality. He made the most of the comic portions of his role and kept the audience in stitches while Polonius was around and in the scenes with the two stooges, Guildenstern and Rosencrantz. He did his ranting and raving but was

SO YOU GO TO THE MOVIES!

In the year of grace, 1936, according to statistics now available, attendance at American moving picture houses averaged 88,000,000 A WEEK! You, and virtually every one of your associates on the Allegheny campus contributed to the enormity of this figure, a figure whose proportions are so vast that the cinema now ranks as America's fourth largest industry.

Reasons for going to the movies are as diverse as human behavior patterns, yet the motivation is all-powerful. Millions of Americans we know jammed into neighborhood houses, sat through tedious, prolix, pot-boiler movies to await the distribution of largesse to the lucky patron at Bank Nite. Millions of others said, "Let's go to the movies." And their only forethought was to scan the title, just to make sure they wouldn't be bored by seeing the same movie, any movie, twice.

Others seeking escape from reality sat through lengthy double-features, weltering in vicarious experience, rather than sit at home and hear the ceaseless discussion about the rent, the job, and the baby's diapers.

And some few discriminating mortals went to see a specific picture for a definite purpose, to see some superior presentation for its superb direction, its gripping drama or its social content.

Of course, you, the Allegheny college man, attend the movies. But the really pertinent issue is, "Which ones and why?"

Glance back over the last six months. Do you remember seeing any of these films, which a consensus of critical opinion places among the outstanding accomplishments of 1936: Fury, Winterset, Mutiny on the Bounty, Ruggles of Red Gap, Anthony Adverse, Charge of the Light Brigade, Theodora Goes Wild, The Ghost Goes West, Rembrandt, Romeo and Juliet, Captain Blood, Shape of Things to Come.

Did you make an express effort to see: Showboat, Metropolitan, Dodsworth, Tale of Two Cities, Modern Times, The Informer, Midsummer Night's Dream, The Great Ziegfeld, Life of Louis Pasteur, Magnificent Obsession.

Answer the following questions candidly, and you instantly reveal your cultural status, for good taste in cinema is like all else, an art.

Do you seek entertainment discriminatingly, or do you merely "go to the movies?" What, in your judgment, constitutes a good picture?

Don't answer now! Just think it over.

"THE MOST UNKINDEST CUT OF ALL"

We have been thinking!

If some enterprising scoundrel were to trace a graph of absences and cuts taken by Allegheny students during the semester, an interesting result would be apparent. Two perilously rugged peaks would, we believe, be upthrust by diastrophic force in that graph—two mighty jags which would indicate that six-week exams had taken a terrific toll.

Look at your own cut record, the one you have pasted on the dormitory wall to check the accuracy of the office, the one you keep to systematize the cut racket so that you can exact the full quota. Notice how pitifully lacerated it is around six-week exam periods! We ought to know; we've just been looking at ours.

A freshman class before a survey course exam is scourged and blighted by depopulation. Other classes might as well adjourn for the day.

These holidays before the slaughter are legitimate, but frankly, they aren't quite cricket, the sporting thing to do, dontcha know!

What can we hope to do about it? Very little, perhaps. Magnanimously, like an indulgent godfather, we only hope the time is being used to good advantage.

So be it.

Letters

Editor

To the Editor of the Campus:

Until recently I had always believed that this paper tried to maintain an impartial position in controversies which arose on the campus. However, since the last issue I have been forced to change my opinion.

It is not my intention to reopen a closed subject, or to defend a cause which has been decisively defeated. I could gain nothing by doing so. But when a long editorial presents one side of a question in full, it seems unnecessary to print also a letter written from the same point of view—a letter of rather questionable sportsmanship, I might add. Some of the comments of the fraternity man who is so interested in our affairs have incurred the wrath of many women students. Do you think it helped us to make the best of an unpleasant situation?

I would suggest that in any future discussion each side be allowed to present a case. It is a poor argument which cannot stand up against attack.

A Sorority Woman.

Ed. Note. Two letters, one pro and one con, upon this then very controversial subject were presented to the editor. The unprinted letter, in the opinion of the editor, would have unduly aggravated the situation to a much greater degree than the one printed.

Perhaps it would have been better to suppress both letters, but such was not done.

This, the editor sincerely hopes, will explain the situation.

The object of the whole movement is to attempt to break away from capitalism by doing away with the "middle man". The object is to provide the public with purer products at a lower cost.

Phi Delta Theta And Independents Lead In Basketball Tournament

FENN, BUFFALO AND ROCHESTER PACK TOO MUCH POWER FOR 'GATORS.

Intramural basketball has entered into the last stages of the tournament. At the present time Phi Delta Theta and the Independents are tied for the lead in the race. Both teams have lost but one game. The Phi Deltas were dropped from the undefeated list by the Independents and the Independents dropped their only game to the Chi Rhos.

The tournament this year is being played on an open basis rather than having the teams divided into two leagues as in former years. With this system in vogue the competition is keener than has been seen in several years.

The Phi Delta-Independent game proved to be one of the most closely contested games of the year. For four quarters the two teams battled hard with the lead switching from one side to the other. In the end the Independents were the victors by a 19-16 score.

Among the outstanding games of the tournament were the Independent-Delta game in which the Independents eeked out a 15-13 victory; the Delta-Phi Gamma game which went to the Phi Gammas by a 17-13 margin after one of the best played games of the season.

As it appears now the Independents and Phi Deltas will have to decide the championship between them.

Sports Chatter

By BOB LYONS

To prove that the Bible and its teaching are still in existence the administration council of Marietta College issued orders to its athletes to observe the biblical maxim, "If thine enemy smite thee on one cheek, turn to him the other also."

The council wrote this resolution into the college's athletic code:

"In order that a better type of sportsmanship be developed among our athletes, and that a better reputation may be established for Marietta College through her athletic teams, the following is offered:

"That any student of Marietta College who strike any member of an opposing team, with or without cause, shall automatically become ineligible for further participation in that sport for the remainder of the college year in which the offense occurs.

"Upon a second offense the person shall become permanently ineligible for participation in any form of inter-collegiate athletics."

This is either an admission of the fact that the college athletes are not capable of handling themselves as gentlemen or an attempt to make collegiate athletics a drawing room affair.

If this ruling is enforced the Marietta teams will be marked men and will be subject to much abuse from their opponents. Who wouldn't delight in meting out punishment to a bunch of men unable to retaliate. It seems to me that such a resolution would prove to be more of a drawback to a school than an asset.

Saturday was a big day for the sports fans of Meadville and vicinity, it was the day for the feting of Bill Daddio, Meadville's pride and joy. On Saturday the whole town turned out to pay homage to the conquering hero and in true story-book style the hero turned out to be still the modest chap he was when he left home and before fame came his way. His words were few and conveyed the thought that he would be out there doing his best next year.

With the coming of mid-semester examinations the intramural program for the year is curtailed for the time being. Immediately after the beginning of the new semester the basketball schedule will be completed and the bowling tournament and handball tournament will get under way.

After a rather weak start the basketball team seems to have found itself and the fans can look forward to a much brighter season than Allegheny has witnessed in many a year.

Playing Rochester last Saturday night the 'Gators clearly outplayed the Rivermen in their floor game. To outplay such a team as Rochester requires the use of a lot of basketball knowledge and this is about what the 'Gators displayed.

In the games to come the 'Gators will show the fruits of their experience on the New York trip and display a much better brand of basketball than they showed in the Fenn.

Coach Lawrence deserves a lot of credit for the way he has brought the squad along in the past two years and this season should bring him the fruits of his labors.

win, a freshman who promises to be one of the outstanding swimmers Allegheny has had perform for them, is at the present time recuperating from a light touch of flu. His speed of recovery will decide his part in the first meet of the year. Watts, a veteran of the squad, is nursing an infected heel and it is doubtful whether he will be able to compete.

Barring further accidents and cases of flu and grippie the squad will be in full force for Rochester.

Rochester has a habit of having extra strong swimming teams and Allegheny has had little success in their several attempts at defeating them. This year will be no different for there is little chance that the 'Gators will even come close to their opponents in the scoring. However, the experience gained by swimming such a team far outweighs the fact that the defeat is by a large score.

The team has been working long and hard this year and should have the best season in the history of swimming at Allegheny. Two departments, backstroke and breast-stroke, are as yet rather weak, but it is hoped that they will be strengthened before the season is far spent.

Strong Opponents Down 'Gators In First Three Games Of The Season

BOTH TEAMS DROP ONE GAME THIS FAR IN THE 1936-1937 SEASON.

Allegheny's opening game against Fenn proved to be a contest of "Little man vs. big man". Fenn outlasted the 'Gators and copped the decision by a 40-32 score.

Both teams had experienced line-ups but Fenn's had the added advantage of being long and lanky which proved to be the margin of superiority.

For the first half of the game it appeared that the Alligators were due to start the season on the right side of the ledger. However, in the closing period of the game the Fennmen finally began to use their height in the full. In the last half the Ohioans went on a rousing scoring spree that put the game on ice for them.

Early moments of the game found the local boys more than holding their own. They set the pace for most of the first half, with Shafer, White and Hart doing most of the scoring.

A side-court heave by Shafer, less than a minute after the opening whistle, started it all, with Fenn retaliating as Hrdlicka converted a foul. Shafer caged another bucket from the corner, but Jones balanced it with a pair of fouls making the score 4-3.

From here until just seconds before half time the Allegheny team kept the lead. In the closing minutes of the game Jamieson went under the basket and pushed in a goal that gave the visitors a 21-19 lead as the gun sounded.

The second half proved to be a different story. The men from Fenn came back and before the half was well started they pushed their lead to 28-19. This sport appalled the doom of the 'Gators and they never fully recovered their stride.

For the first game of the year and considering the tremendous advantage of height they had to overcome, the 'Gators gave a fine account of themselves. This sport appalled the doom of spots they should prove to be a winning combination.

Buffalo 35, Allegheny 25.
Journeying to Buffalo on the first game of their road trip the 'Gators fell to the onslaught of the Buffalo State Teachers team 35-25.

Faced with the same type of opposition as they found in Fenn the Allegheny squad was again unable to conquer the tremendous height of their opponents.

To add to their difficulties the Lawrencemen did not play the floor game they are capable of playing. Buffalo relied a great deal upon the point play and the local team was unable to adjust its defense from this type of attack.

A field goal by Zwick and a foul by Perona gave the Teachers an early edge, before White scored Allegheny's first field goal. Another foul by Perona was balanced by Shafer's goal to force the score to a 4-4 tie, and Allegheny moved out into the lead as Pardee found the range from the side-court. Buffalo immediately moved back to the front, but an attack led by White and aided by Hart, and Gratz found the 'Gators battling back to a 14-11 lead. Before half time the Teachers were once more in the van, this time by a 13-14 margin.

Three long goals, two by Zwick and one by Coleman, established the Buffalo team in a 23-14 lead within two minutes of the start of the second half.

From this point on it was a question of the New Yorkers holding their lead. At one time the 'Gators piled the score up to 26-22, but this was the closest they came to the home team during the final period.

Buffalo held a decided edge in experience. The Teachers were playing their fourth game of the season and were steady in their attack. Added to this was a certain fellow by the name of Zwick, a shifty and experienced player whom the Allegheny team could not stop.

Rochester 34, Allegheny 32.

Playing the University of Rochester in the second game of the road trip, the 'Gators played their best game of the season and barely lost by the score of 34-32. The floor game of the Allegheny team was by far superior to that of Rochester but the experience of the home team was a little too much for them.

Rochester's margin of victory was their foul shooting; they registered 10 fouls to Allegheny's six. Otherwise the game was as closely contested as any of the onlookers could desire. From the field Allegheny tallied 13 goals as compared to Rochester's 12.

Allegheny held the lead from the outset until about eight minutes from the end of the game. Here they lost the lead and the final seven minutes of the game saw but little scoring. Rochester scored three points and the 'Gators two.

Led by Shafer and White, Allegheny jumped into a 13-8 lead in the first 10 minutes of play, and, despite a Rochester comeback, continued to hold the edge at half time, 21-19.

The home team pulled up to a 26-26 tie before the second half was half spent and in a few minutes took over the lead. The Rivermen nosed out ahead 31-30, and managed to improve that margin by one point before the final gun sounded.

Rochester presented practically the same team they used last season. Last year's team went through the season with twelve wins and two losses, numbering among their victims the strong Cornell team. With such opposition to contend with it can be seen easily that the Allegheny team was playing heads-up ball all evening.

FACULTY MEMBERS ATTEND MEETING

Professor Hurst R. Anderson, Dr. Guy Buckingham, and Dr. Frederick G. Henke, of the college faculty, participated in the December 23-31 convention of the Pennsylvania Educational Association. To Allegheny students, the conclave was of signal importance for a symposium on extra curriculum activities, to which Professor Anderson contributed.

Should college credits be granted for activity in speech, drama, music and athletics? Under the monumental title of "Organization and Integration of College Life and College Activities for the Personal Development of Students" five college representatives pondered the problem, citing advantages derived on their respective campuses.

To determine whether extra-curricular activities are intrinsically valuable and worthy of college credit, the symposium heard five speakers outline the solutions effected to meet the social activity problem. Speakers were: Prof. Hurst R. Anderson, of Allegheny College; Prof. J. S. Kinder, of Pennsylvania College for Women; Dean Theodora A. Discler, of Lafayette College; President Francis B. Haas, of Bloomsburg State Teacher's College; and Prof. Joseph S. Butterweck, of Temple University.

In his discourse, Prof. Anderson depicted the functioning of Allegheny's program of granting curricular credit for social activities—debate, music, and drama. As yet, it has been pointed out, no such concession has been granted to publications.

On the main convention floor, Doctor Henke acted as Allegheny's voting delegate. Doctor Buckingham was among those elected to represent the state group in the forthcoming national convention.

In the general discussion which followed, it was apparent that the symposium recognized the value of social activities, conceding them to be of overwhelming importance in developing culture and poise.

SUP'T OF HOSPITAL SPEAKS IN CHAPEL

"Socialized Medicine" was the subject of Dr. John Davis' speech in chapel Monday, January 11. Dr. Davis is superintendent of City Hospital.

He based his speech on the question, "If you become afflicted, who would pay your fee?" According to the economist the group should pay; according to the doctor the patient should pay.

The patient should pay, Dr. Davis believes, because outsiders would interfere with the doctor's relation with the patient. The patient should be allowed to choose his own doctor; and when someone else pays the bill, the patient usually has no choice.

A plan was suggested by Dr. Davis where by the patient could choose his own doctor and pay him out of his insurance. This would eliminate the third party, which the doctors rebel against.

one went to church this morning, and half the school came to breakfast! I just asked Betty a simple question and she kept right on mumbling those history dates she's learning . . . I think it is foolish to learn all those little details, but when one person does it we all have to—gee, I wish I had read that book for Psych. . . .

JANUARY 18.

Dear Diary—Rooming started, and I started studying. Betty, Jean and I went over notes together this morning, covered the book this afternoon, and tried to outline the course this evening. I know I don't know anything but I keep hoping I can fill at least one blue book.

You should have heard the noise that let loose at ten o'clock! guess everyone was standing at the doors waiting for the bell to ring. It's only two o'clock, so I can get a little sleep this first night . . .

JANUARY 19.

Dear Diary—My heart sank when that bell rang at nine o'clock this morning . . . I went in the gym and got a front seat! Just my luck, all the other kids were in the back. I'm going on record as saying that that was a hell of a test! Where he ever got those questions is beyond me . . . All I hope for is a C . . .

Right after lunch we started on History, but my brain is already giving out . . . I learned a little this evening. At ten we put coats over our pajamas and went to Jim's . . . if the weather weren't so nice I wouldn't mind having to stay in, but it's always nice at exam time!

JANUARY 27.

Dear Diary—Only one more and I can die in peace . . . so far I've flunked four exams flat, so I've decided not to study much and do the last one up right—Tonight we got silly half way through the digestive system of the earthworm, and laughed at nothing for half an hour. We were in the sorority rooms and Jean put salt in her hair so she could scratch it, then we played leap-frog until we broke the best lamp. We started to play poker, but Betty quit when she was losing because the heat went off at ten.

I made coffee and we drank that until we discovered that I had used real beans instead of coffee beans in the percolator. Three girls are in the infirmary—they tried to stay up all night and couldn't take it, the fools! We've organized a Circle I club—to be a member you must have circles under your eyes . . . I'm grand president without question.

Had a letter from Mother saying to be sure and get enough sleep . . . the angel also said she was sending food for semester's . . . It'll be nice if I'm still able to eat by then . . . Three girls had a fight this evening about whether Shelly or Wordsworth wrote To a Skylark, and almost came to blows before someone straightened them out.

JANUARY 28 . . . !!!!

Dear Diary—Our section of the hall celebrated with an alarm clock parade at twelve o'clock . . . everyone who was awake joined in, and those who were asleep wouldn't have wakened for an earthquake . . . they're starting to catch up so they can enjoy semester's before they have to leave!

HAMLET

sufficiently wise to be moderate in it. And if the Geldgud production of Hamlet really makes Howard's ranting seem mild, then we would rather not put up with Geldgud for a full evening.

As to Howard's interpretation of Hamlet, it was our belief that the Hamlet he drew from Shakespeare is quite sane in actions and no more mad than those who expect anything other in such an interpretation. Howard was most definitely up to standard.

But before we leave this brief review we feel we must give our impression of the set and, in passing, here lament the lack of polish in the first scene in which much of the conversation was lost to the audience owing to the lack of sufficient speech clarity. Concerning the set, we can say that its simplicity was well adapted to both the interpretation of the play which contained very little show and the changes in scenery. The only main objection here was that one tired of viewing the same set fully lighted and wished that the lighting arrangements had been as effectively used in several of these scenes as it had in other portions of the play. Yet these are but minor objections.

And we do not hesitate to include our opinion that anyone who can see Howard's Hamlet in Cleveland this week or in Pittsburgh later shall find that the effort has been quite worth while.

charged although a free clinic is available. In 1935, 17,386 sick or injured animals were treated.

The animals' ailments are surprisingly human; stomach ulcers, toxemia, constipation, bronchitis, rheumatism, enteritis, exema, rickets, pyorrhea, and even a few cases of leukemia have been doctored. The most serious cases come as a result of automobiles and distemper. There ignorance on the part of the owners as to diet and general care bring in many more cases.

Pasteur would be amazed at the completeness of this institution. The hospital boasts of a ten thousand dollar operating room complete with the latest surgical light, operating table with movable top and shoulder braces to accommodate any size animal; sterilizers, anesthetic tanks, electrotherapy and physiotherapy machines and ultra-violet apparatus. They also have an ambulance which is used principally for horses. The top floor of the hospital constitutes the contagious ward, clearly marked by the sign "No Visitors".

All kinds of animals are handled, dogs, cats, alligators, ocelots, chimpanzees and porcupines. The animals act better on the operating table than many humans and seem to understand that the doctors are trying to help them.

LIBRARY EXHIBIT MADE BY UTILITIES CLASS

"Humbling the Pharaohs" is the caption given the display of recent and future federal reclamation projects arranged by the library as an aid to Dr. W. Scott Hall's students in their study of public utilities.

This display features various representations of the recently completed Boulder Dam of Arizona, Nevada and of the Grand Coulee Dam on the Columbia River, which will be the greatest structure ever built if completed in 1940 according to expectation. The Casper-Alcova Project, Wyoming, the Arlando Pro-Irrigation Project, California, the Rye Patch Dam, Nevada, and the Tennessee Valley Dams are other projects included in the exhibition.

The illustrations of these dams are taken from various periodicals issued by the U. S. Department of Interior and from current magazines and newspapers.
