

Divonne-les-Bains
le 26th June, 1904.

My dear Miss Tarbell:—

I enclose a letter which came this morning from Mr. Bynner. Mr. McLure wishes Mr. Phillips to see it, so that he may see exactly what Mr. B.'s attitude is and always has been in this matter. He has felt full of sorrow and anxiety lest serious injustice should be done to the young man. I am very glad of the letter, too.

Sami is in bed for a considerable rest, two weeks, the doctor says, and Sami suspects that he means to make it longer; but I hardly think so. Sami feels well, and rested well last night. The doctor says he must rest till his agitation and restlessness are all gone, and he has formed a habit of tranquillity and calm; anybody can control himself and learn that habit; so says Dr. Roland.

Miss Tarbell, it comes to my mind that you can inform me about the thing I wrote you of yesterday, by addressing a letter to me here at Divonne, and enclosing the envelope in another one addressed to Madame E. Bazin (Bazin), Divonne. This is the Protestant pastor's wife, whom I know very well indeed, and who would not have any curiosity. I could call and ask for the letter about the middle of July. If those letters do not come I shall not send any message about them.

Yours affectionately,
Harriet H. Meluke.

Do all as seems wisest, in writing me or not, as well as in regard to the letters.
