Dear Miss Tarbell:

Could you suggest someone who has made a study of stagecraft and playwriting, in order to assist me in writing what I consider an authoritative play about Lincoln?

Up to the present, we have had unimportant or ridiculously inadequate presentations of some incidents, which throw very little light, and fail to disclose the great Lincoln as I believe he should be presented to the American people - especially at this time, when Lincoln and his ideas are most needed.

I have the facts, but have not the technical training necessary to put them into dramatic form.

Cordially yours,

EH:mh
