I can show you that this is so."

I won't philosophise on this, Borden. But I see, just as clearly as I ever saw anything, the fundamental difference between our old group and these new business men. Now, Fisher is a fine fellow, and I liked what I saw of him very much, but he simply does not understand, and will probably never understand. Neither does Cler. Hazen. I knew, of course, that the essential changes in the troops last week were not P.S.P's, but were inspired. Now, I don't want any trouble, & I think you know me well enough to know that I carry no chip on my shoulder — but I've got to say the thing I believe in, and I can't stand for having all the edge taken from the articles.

I'll hurry forward the La Follette revisions as soon as I get the corrections from him.

I'm working on the Presidential article, but find it more complicated than I anticipated

Best ever R. B.
