Dr. Edward N. Bywater
Grant's Pass, Oregon

My dear Dr. Bywater:

Thank you for your encouraging word about my article in "Liberty." As you can imagine, all I receive are not in the tenor of this one of yours.

I am interested in your solution. I believe that you are right in your contention that the food we eat has enormous amount to do with the craving - and in cases, the necessity - for alcohol as an antidote, and that if each one of us knew what, when and how to eat, we would have no unnatural appetites for stimulants, and a little wine would be a healthy and natural drink, better than strong tea and coffee, I am convinced. Thank you for your letter.

Sincerely yours
