

January

[1938]

My dear Mr. Fosdick:

I hope you and your brother will pardon my long delay in replying to your letter of January first. I have been absorbed with a piece of imperative work and not so well. The result being I have been obliged to neglect correspondence and appointments.

I doubt whether I can be of the least help to you in the very difficult problem facing you, but of course if you feel that talking with me will possibly lead to something useful I shall be very glad indeed to see you. Would it be possible for you to be at the National Arts Club, 15 Gramercy Park, at four forty five on Monday, the seventeenth? We can have a cup of tea together and talk over your problem.

With renewed apologies for the delay in making this appointment, believe me

Very sincerely yours

Mr. Dudley Fosdick
