Dear Mr. Titterton:

Thank you for looking at "In Lincoln's Town" and suggesting a proper procedure in regard to the Univereity of Wisconsin Press.

No, I have not the material worked out as yet for another volume, similiar to "He Knew Lincoln and other Billy Brown stories." It is true I have published several Lincoln articles, but I do not see them in a volume except in the case of the three women who figured chiefly in Lincoln's life:- Ann Rutledge, his only real romance I think - Mary Owen, the women whom he wanted to marry and who would not have him - Mary Todd, who became his wife. I have thought I would like sometime to get my studies of the three into a volume - two of these have been published, one in Collier's the other in the Ladies Home Journal - probably expanding them a little beyond what I now have. Would you be interested?

Very truly yours
