Dear Mr. Updegraff:

"Obvious Adams" has arrived and I put in a pleasant hour after dinner last night getting acquainted with him. I do not wonder he would have to continue his appeal. He is a grand gentleman. I am going to pass him on to some people I think need him.

I have not anything so useful to prove my appreciation, but here goes a copy of "He Knew Lincoln" it being the item in my list which introduced us.

What an interesting day we had last Friday. You made it so easy and agreeable for me. I am deeply grateful though I do feel a little guilty thinking that you would have had a very much better time if you had been circulating among the interesting and important men who were swarming about. It really was a fine success I think.

Very sincerely yours
