Miss Sarah Tarbell,
130 E. 19th St.,
New York, N. Y.

Dear Sarah:

I have not written you this week because so pressed for time, but everything is all right and I think that I have received all your letters, at least I have a good many more that you have forwarded than I have attended to.

I go from here this afternoon to Pensacola, where my address will be San Marcos. I am not wiring because I shall not get thereuntil Saturday morning, as I am motoring, and anything that comes here will be forwarded. I shall be there and at Tallahassee until after the first of April, then back here. I am having a lot of trouble with my second chapter. Very difficult to get the information and see the things I ought to see within the time.

I shall not do a fourth article. I am not sure. The third will just about finish me, but I am keeping well, so don't be anxious.

I saw Will's friend, Priestly, here this week. He is a fine personand has been of no end of use to me, knows everybody.

Last night I took dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Foster. You remember the Foster that married Betty Rolf's sister. Betty was not there but has been here, but the brother that seemed to know you and think a lot of you, was there. It was very nice to see them and they sent all sorts of messages to you.

I hope you are escaping the influensa. Do be careful and let me hear from you at Pensacola as soon as you get this.

Affectionately.
