Playshop Presents "Elizabeth"

Maxwell Anderson's great play, "Elizabeth the Queen," will be presented in the Allegheny Playshop April 9 through April 14 at 8:15 p.m.

Acted by a large cast, written by one of America's exceptional playwrights, and directed by Mr. John Hulbert, head of the Allegheny speech and drama department, it is expected that the current production should equal or exceed the best shows done by the drama group in other seasons.

Miss Mary Jane Chiles, of the speech and Playshop staff, will portray Elizabeth, and Clifford Smoot is to perform the role of Lord Essex.

Others in the cast are: Sir Walter Raleigh, Charles Elliott, '48; Penelope Gray, Barbara Grund, '47; Captain Armin, Joseph Bentley, '47; Sir Robert Cecil, Henry Metcalf, '48; Francis Bacon, Robert Tidmarsh, '47; Lord Burghley, Gerald Liebman, '48; the Fool, Mack Cooke, '48; Mary, Helen Sloss, '48; Ellen, Marjorie Sweet, '47; Tressa, Catherine Carothers, '45; Marvel, Richard Victor, '46; a courier, Paul Waite, '48; a herald, Robert Sweet, '48; Burbage, John Jones; Hemmings, Melvin Furman, '47. Three men-at-arms, Arthur Bittner, '47, Gordon Elliott, '48, and Brooks Hollenbeck, '48, complete the list of players.

Striking sets for the production have been designed by Mr. Hulbert and built by the Playshop crew under the supervision of Joseph Bentley, while lighting will be handled by John Cremer, '47. Elizabeth North, '45, is assistant to the director for the show, and Carol Kelly, '48, is in charge of properties.

The six performances of "Elizabeth the Queen" will be open to citizens of Meadville and the area, who may reserve seats by arrangement with the Playshop. Students who wish to make reservations for guests, for club, fraternity and sorority groups should do so as early as possible.

When "Elizabeth the Queen" was first performed by the Theatre Guild in 1930 (with Alfred Lunt as Essex and Lynn Fontaine as Elizabeth), it was a great success.

Dr. McBain Is Guest Of Chemii Club

Dr. James William McBain, professor of chemistry at Stanford university in California, will speak on the topic "Colloidal Solutions of Soap and Modern Detergents" in Carnegie hall next Monday, March 26, at 8:15 p.m. All students and faculty members are invited.

Dr. McBain, a native of Canada, received his B.A. and M.A. degrees from the University of Toronto. He attended the University of Leipzig and received his Ph.D. from the University of Heidelberg. Dr. McBain was awarded the honorary degrees of D.Sc. by Brown university and the University of Bristol in England.

Dr. J. W. McBain

He was elected Fellow of the Royal Society of London.

There is scarcely any field of physical or colloid chemistry that has not been enriched through Professor McBain's researches, which are embodied in over 300 published papers. He was responsible for first introducing scientific understanding into the technology of soap manufacture.

Studies of colloidal electrolytes made by Dr. McBain have resulted in great progress in many fields including soap solutions, wetting agents, synthetic detergents, dyes and proteins. His researches on the solubilization of water-insoluble materials by dilute solutions of colloidal electrolytes are described in a contribution to "Advances in Colloid Science" just published by Interscience Publishers.

A dinner in honor of Dr. McBain will be held at the Kepler hotel on Monday evening at 6:45.

Campus Forum

"What should be the policy of the United Nations toward conquered Germany?" is the topic for the next All-College Forum, which will be held Thursday, April 19, at 8:00 p.m. in the Playshop.

Congressman Karl Mundt Speaks On Post-War World

"No peace on paper can ever prevent wars unless the nations of the world monopolize their power to an agreement to limit air armaments and international air patrol," declared the Honorable Karl E. Mundt, Republican Congressman from South Dakota, speaking before a large audience of students, faculty and townspeople in the chapel Monday evening.

Mr. Mundt, whose visit on campus was sponsored by the Philo-Franklin Union, was introduced by President J. Richie Schultz. He discussed five significant realisms that the United States must face before she can hope to solve the problems of today.

"One thing war has taught us is the strength of air power in modern war," Mr. Mundt stated. "At present it is possible for our troops to cross the Rhine because allied air forces have been so successful in wrecking the transportation system behind the German lines. Defeat of Germany and Japan will be accomplished ultimately because they lack air protection. The time has come to create in the world an international air patrol to maintain and support peace—a force effective on land or sea with the ability to reach any point on the globe in 24 hours."

Five thousand planes, 1,000 located in each of five bases—Newfoundland, Natal, China, Scotland and Cairo would be the most simple and effective way of putting down aggression in any part of the world, the speaker contended.

Such an air force would be furnished in direct proportion to the amount of planes each of the United Nations has at the end of the war, he explained, and the joint chiefs of staffs of these countries would command the force.

Recruits for such a force would not be difficult to find, Mr. Mundt believes, because so many fliers in this war want to go on with flying as a career. A system could be made attractive by rotating men in (Continued on page 4)

CARNIVAL SPIRIT REIGNS

The all-college carnival, held Saturday evening, March 17, in the men's gymnasium, under the sponsorship of A. U. C., was pronounced a huge success by the whole student body. Catherine Carothers, '45, coordinator of the event, announces plans are being drawn up to make a carnival an annual tradition at Allegheny.

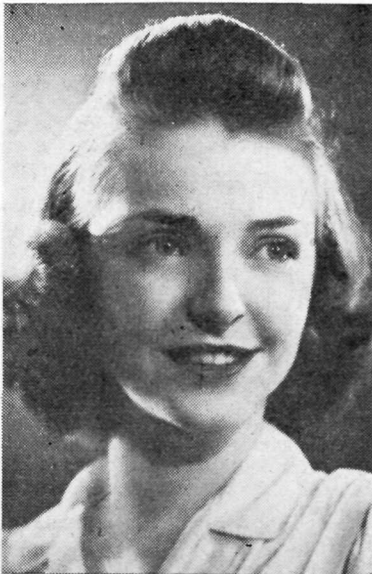

Twelve booths offered a variety of entertainment for the evening, including penny pitching, rat-racing, fish pond, weight-guessing, and fortune-telling. Several booths sold pastry, doughnuts, coke and coffee.

Three acts of entertainment at various times in the evening, with Clifford Smoot, '47, as master of ceremonies, added to the general carnival spirit. Performers included: magic by Donald Garrison; recitation of "Casey at the Bat" by Lee Donaldson, '46; songs by Singers; songs by Doris Larsen, '46; dances by Graciela Jimenez, '48; harmony by Vera Lee Hampson, '47, Helen McCauley, '47, and Louise McCoy, '47; a Mexican hat dance by the Spanish club; a mock radio program with impersonations by Phi Gamma Delta; piano selections by Robert Seidenberg, '48; black-faced comedy by Robert Tidmarsh, '47, and David Floyd, '47.

The following committee heads worked on the carnival: Mr. Dale E. Thomas—game booths; Miss Blair Hansen—food booths; Barbara Bender, '45, and Caroline Arentzen, '46—general entertainment; Mr. John Hulbert and James Weber, '47—lights and sound; Miss Dorothy Deach and June McGary, '45—decorations; Mr. Frederick H. Steen and Mildred Ann Ditty, '46—publicity; Mr. H. S. Rhinesmith—finances; Mr. H. P. Way and Miss Laila Skinner—clean-up.

Though a complete report cannot be obtained for several days, Mr. H. S. Rhinesmith states that the carnival was a financial as well as a social success.

YEAR SUBSCRIPTION RATE . . . $1.50

Published Thursdays during the school year by students of the college.

Entered as second class matter, October 30, 1904, at the Postoffice at Meadville, Pennsylvania, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

LET'S REPEAT!

More fun! That was the consensus of opinion Saturday night after the All-College Carnival. Everyone had a wonderful time working at the booths or taking everything in all the way around.

This is an example of what spirit can be aroused when all the students and faculty cooperate in planning an event and in participating wholeheartedly together. This is the type of all-college activity, where a date isn't necessary to have a good time, that we need during these war times.

Naturally, there were the mistakes which arise upon the initiation of a new project, but one experience shows us what we can do. Next year we shall know what type of entertainment and food go over best. We'll have more ideas than ever now that we've seen one carnival in progress. We can plan our quantities and details more exactly and—we can continue to have a wonderful time every year!

THE CAMPUS says, "Congratulations, to everyone who made the carnival such a success, and particularly to Catherine Carothers and the Student-Faculty Relations committee. We want to look forward to the All-College Carnival as an annual event."

CHAPEL AGAIN—AND THE FACULTY

Students at Allegheny are still operating under a compulsory chapel attendance, with 12 cuts a year allowed. They take the good with the bad Tuesday and Thursday after Tuesday and Thursday. But they ask, "What about the faculty?"

Faculty chapel attendance of from three to five members is common occurrence, yet we understand, say the students, that faculty members are supposed to attend chapel at least once a week.

Furthermore, the Chapel committee itself is composed of both students and faculty members. The faculty group is usually in charge of the Thursday chapel. Student programs are generally more poorly attended by the faculty than Thursday programs, but even at that, 12 faculty members at Thursday chapel is a good attendance. This is in incrimination against the faculty or the chapel programs—probably both. But the faculty is jointly responsible with the students for setting up those programs.

Students have noted this situation more than once, until it is an object of regular comment. They feel the faculty is not holding up its end, when it scarcely attends programs by its own members, and yet students are required to be present regularly.

Along the same line, the students again noticed at the last campus forum on the Dumbarton Oaks proposals that only five faculty members were present, three of them from the speech department which was in charge of the program. In a discussion as important as this, students felt that faculty ideas and support are vital, that every mind—and particularly those well-informed along such lines—is needed. A definite student interest was shown that night, and students would like to see more faculty members join in at the next forum.

Back to chapel—and this suggestion holds as true for campus forums—cooperation and a show of real enthusiasm by the faculty could really improve the chapel attitude and also some of the chapel programs.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The next issue of THE CAMPUS will appear on April 12 because of Easter vacation.

ARSENIC

Whew! One election down: one more to go. I tell you I can't stand much more of this. For over a week now I have gotten absolutely no work done. Of course I must admit that I am easily led from the paths of los libres (that's to make Miss Kemp happy. She deserves something after struggling with me in Spanish for two years.) Besides not doing anything to help equalize the hold in my father's pocket I also have not gotten any ideas for ARSENIC. All I can think of at the moment and believe me this is the last moment is a column of dedication. There are certain people on this campus that deserve praise for the way they let us tear them to pieces. And to them this column is written in appreciation, and because we can't think of anything else. Jimmy Weber, for instance—we always know that we can count on him for a libelous statement and the least he will do to us is rub our noses in the cold mashed potatoes. And Bob Chambers and Joyce have promised us a lead weekly, via the Craig Room and the courtesy of Mr. Benjamin. Then we could dedicate it to Mr. Seely or Dr. Edwards for being so pleasant to gaze on. Bucky certainly has a vote of thanks coming to him for amusing and wholesome jokes. And people who arrange carnivals, where besides having a wonderful time we can also pick up some interesting tidbits for publication. Take Dr. Swartley now. He gave us a statement on the prize package of pink bath salts he was carrying. Said Dr. Swartley, "I am going to take these home and use them for Pepto-Bismol."

There is only one thing that in my opinion was objectionable at the carnival and that was the two mice shows. It meant spending most of the evening on chairs because of an uncommon aversion of ours to mice—blue, white or hairless. Of course this gave us a chance to view the vaudeville performance or we thought it would give us a chance. Unfortunately, just as we had tucked our skirts up unbecomingly around us and were enjoying Miss Deach and her mighty golf club, it so chanced that Dr. Long and Dr. Cares stood in front of us. That hundered our view somewhat but they were finally lured away by Jack and Mel and their horrible adding machine. This adding machine was the delight of the tiny girls who could show that they barely weighed nothing but were still living. For myself and others it was a distinct area I never got within ten feet of. But back to Dr. Long and Dr. Cares. The two SAEs were really making a profit until these two came along. By the way, does anyone know where a scale can be bought cheaply? Of course, we were glad when the two professors left (not that we don't like them but besides they are married) because we could get a view of what was happening. But by this time so much of it had already been presented that we only saw Chela's terrific dance and the Kaldron Kiddies. But we arrived happily at the dorm with the knowledge (thanks to Cochran and Tarbell) that we were going to have three husbands and ten children. The fact that our bus fare home is spent makes no difference to us. Someone will pay our way because we have made ourselves unusually obnoxious. It seems to me that I have gotten a long way from my dedication services. But since I never let a little thing like that worry me I will just stop with a line from the pen of Wordsworth which I am sure will endear him to your heart as it has endeared him to mine. "Up, up, my friends, and leave your books." Wonderful man, isn't he?

Meadville Red Cross Requests Assistance Of Alleghenians

A request that the women students of Allegheny assist in meeting the Meadville Red Cross quota of 125 layettes for peoples of liberated European countries has been made by the Meadville chapter. All girls interested in knitting baby booties or bonnets for these layettes are requested to sign their name on the list posted in Brooks lobby.

This project is to be carried out by the production committee of the college Red Cross unit. Yarn will be supplied if necessary, but girls are requested to bring their own when possible. Knitting instructions will be furnished.

A drive for scrap material to be used in making quilts for needy families of Crawford county has been initiated. Students are particularly urged to remember to look for left-over scrap materials at their homes during Easter vacation.

A meeting of the production committees was held yesterday. Sara Garver, '46, is chairman, and Dorothy Cohen, '47, assistant chairman.

The Social Whirl

by
By Tawney and Paggy

Alpha Chi Omega installed the following officers Monday night: Carol Waechter, '46, president; Mary Eleanor Pagaroll, '46, vice president; Patricia Painter, '46, corresponding secretary; Shirley Ann Miller, '46, recording secretary and Geraldine Wallace, '46, treasurer.

Mrs. Robert Thomas (nee Louise Parsons, '43) was a visitor of the Alpha Chis this weekend.

The Alpha Gams really did last weekend up right with 25 mothers and one grandmother as their guests. A banquet was held at Beacon Inn Saturday night, with Miss Laila Skinner and Mrs. J. Ritchie Schultz as guests. Open house in the chapter rooms followed. Informality was the keynote at the breakfast served for mothers and daughters on Sunday morning, and a grand time was had by all.

Alpha Xi Delta has extended social privileges to Marian Stanger, '47. A novel Scholarship party was held in the rooms on Friday night with good grades and ham barbecues as the big attraction. Dorothy-Jeanne Butt, '45, and Nancy Reed, '46, sang several duets, and Jean Stark, '45, rendered a solo. Group singing ended the affair.

The Alpha Xi Red Cross rummage sale will be held in the women's gym Thursday night at 6:45 p.m.

The sophomore Thetas gave their older sisters a party "in Spartheta" last Monday night. The hostesses came dressed as Greeks, the program being a satire on Greek culture.

A pajama party in the rooms of Theta Upsilon was held on Monday night. Refreshments included coke and cheese and crackers.

Delta Tau Delta initiated David N. Hayden, '48, Sunday.

Dudley King, '48, Leonard Darbee, '48, Gordon Elliott, '48, Neil McGahan, '48, and Richard Victor, '46, attended the 97th Anniversary banquet of Phi Delta Theta last Friday night at the Roosevelt hotel in Pittsburgh. The initiation of Richard Spenser, '48, and Neil McGahan took place last Sunday night. George Strong, U.S.A., ex '47, was back on furlough last weekend after completing his basic training at Camp Wheeler, Georgia. Charles Gallup, U.S.N.R., ex '46, was a visitor of Theta Chi.

Representative Chase Going Woodhouse from Connecticut will be on campus tomorrow and Saturday to speak on vocational opportunities for women.

Mrs. Woodhouse will speak in chapel tomorrow and will hold three group meetings in Cochran lounge.

Friday at 4:30 p.m.—Vocational Opportunities in the Field of Social Science.

Saturday at 1:00 p.m.—Vocational Opportunities in the Field of Natural Science.

Saturday at 3:00 p.m.—Vocational Opportunities in the Field of Humanities.

Professor of economics at Connecticut college, Mrs. Woodhouse was formerly secretary of the State of Connecticut in 1941 and 1942 and senior home economist of the bureau of economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. She is the author of various books and articles, among which are, "Occupations for College Women"; "After College—What?"

Arriving on campus Friday, Mrs. Woodhouse will remain through Saturday. She is not a stranger to Allegheny, having visited here five years ago. While on campus Mrs. Woodhouse will stay in the Caflisch guest room.

All students are urged to attend Mrs. Woodhouse's lectures whether they have selected their vocations or not.

Allegheny Delegates Going to Penn State

Georgia Kohl, '45, Mildred Ann Ditty, '46, and Walter Heimer, '48, will be delegates at the annual student legislative conference at Pennsylvania State College tomorrow and Saturday. They will be accompanied by Mr. Theodore F. Nelson of the speech department.

The three delegates will serve on the Committee for Settling Labor Disputes, of which Miss Ditty is chairman. The other committee will discuss compulsory military training, and a bill on its subject will be drawn up by each committee. The bills will be debated on the floor by the whole conference and will either be passed or rejected at the conclusion.

If Bentley's Bell — Could Talk —

By Betty Crabbs, '47

Bentley's Bell has perhaps never been heard ringing out for classes every day for as many years as it was by the Reverend Jonathan Hamnett, D. D., for there are few men who have given sixty years of their lives to their college.

The string of activities after Dr. Hamnett's name reads like this: "Class of 1839; professor of Latin, 1845-1874; professor of mathematics and astronomy, 1874-1882; professor of philosophy, 1882-1885; librarian, 1885-1906; vice-president, 1863-1885." This just about tells the story of Dr. Hamnett's contribution to Allegheny, for in the variety of his occupations at Allegheny he must have become an almost indispensable part of the college. It is said that no other alumnus ever had the distinction of knowing every student for more than half a century.

Like so many of the present-day Alleghenians, Dr. Hamnett was born in Pittsburgh. At an early age he became a bookkeeper in that city, but he nourished the ambition of obtaining a higher education. He was encouraged to come to Allegheny by Reverend Mathew Simpson, the pastor of his church.

Again like so many present-day Alleghenians, Dr. Hamnett had trouble getting from Pittsburgh to Meadville, but it is improbable that any of us would have the ambition to come as he did. Dr. Hamnett walked!

When he left for college, he had ten dollars. However, he boarded himself and was somehow able to complete his college education.

After graduation he conducted an academy at Wellsville, Ohio, and was later ordained a deacon. In 1845 he came to Meadville as a professor, and here he led a serene and useful life until the advanced age of 94 years.

Dr. Hamnett was involved in the administrative affairs of the college as well as being a teacher. He is said to have been a rather stern professor, especially to those who did not take kindly to the supposedly "dead" languages. As librarian, he strictly enforced the rules of the library, one of them being that "Co-education as an affair of conversation between the sexes does not obtain in its precincts." (Hmmm! Craig room.)

The Stone church in Meadville is a lasting monument to the interest of Dr. Hamnett in Methodism. He observed every stone that went into the foundation, and was present during most of its building.

"Simple, generous, urbane, gracious, dignified, serene, talented and devout" are only some of the adjectives used to describe Dr. Hamnett. In a memorial service in 1910, Bishop Thoburn said of him words which must show why he was able to contribute so much to Allegheny college: "I have never known a man to make so much out of a lifetime."

Preparing the Trap

American First army forces continued to cross the Rhine at Remagen despite the collapse of the Ludendorff bridge early in the week. By Tuesday they had built up a bridgehead 18 miles wide and eight miles deep. Further to the north the Ninth army was massing troops in preparation for a crossing of the Rhine onto level plains in the Ruhr region. To the south, Coblenz was captured Saturday and the Third and Seventh armies are sweeping through the Saar Basin.

To the east the Russians were strengthening their bridgehead over the Oder between Kuestrin and Frankfurt, and were engaged in mopping up along the flanks and in laying siege to Danzig and Stettin.

Bombs on Japan

The most spectacular development in the Pacific war is the rain of incendiary bombs on the great industrial centers of Japan. In the last ten days Tokyo, Nagoya, Osaka, and Kobe have been struck in force, burning out a total of 36 square miles with a loss of only 4 Superfortresses.

Iwo Jima fell officially Friday. In the 26 days of fighting the Marine casualties amounted to 19,938—4,189 killed, 441 missing and 15,308 wounded. Japanese losses were estimated at 20,000 killed. This was the most costly campaign to date in the Pacific, but provides us with an important air base just 750 miles south of Tokyo.

Curfew Trouble

Acting against orders from the War Mobilization office, Mayor LaGuardia of New York city issued orders Sunday advancing the curfew hour there to 1:00 a.m. James F. Byrnes stated that he could not force any city to abide by the 12:00 deadline but appealed to other cities not to follow New York's example.

Wings And Prop

Club Newly Formed

On Allegheny Campus

"Plane crazy"—that now applies to a part of Allegheny at least. At the beginning of this semester a group of students got together and requested that a navigation course be given—it was! Then the group decided an airplane club should be the next step—it was!

On February 24 the Wings and Prop club was formally established, and since then nearly every member has been up in a plane at least once; several are now taking lessons at the Meadville airport, and several have soloed.

The purpose of the club is to learn more about airplanes and their management through movies, lectures and trips. It is also a preparation for the aviation program that will soon be installed—perhaps next year.

The officers are as follows: Andrew Mihalic, '46, president; Richard Victor, '46, vice president; Ruth Blodgett, '47, treasurer; Joan Vance, '47, recording secretary, and Dorothy Powers, '46, corresponding secretary.

New Class

Officers Announced

Election of officers was held last week by the classes of '46 and '47. For the senior class Jack Hawes was elected president; Marjorie Haslum, vice president; Jean Dearing, secretary, and Sophie Morrow, treasurer, all of the class of '46.

David Johnson was elected president; Vera Lee Hampson, vice president; Joan Young, secretary, and Elizabeth DeWitt, treasurer, of the class of '47.

Sophomore And

Senior Inventory

Exams Begin Wednesday

Sophomore inventory examinations scheduled for March 28 and 29 will be held from 8:30 a. m. to 12 noon and from 2 p. m. to 5 p. m. Those students whose last names begin with A through L will take examinations in Alden hall, while those from M through Z will be in the women's gymnasium.

Senior graduate record examinations will be held in Reis library from 8:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. Wednesday and Thursday.

Students who will be required to take inventory examinations are as follows:

1. Seniors who expect to graduate in May or at the end of the first semester of the summer session will take the Graduate Record Examination on the mornings of March 28 and 29.
2. Students who entered Allegheny as freshman in June and September, 1943, and in January, 1944, will be required to take the sophomore inventory examinations on the morning and afternoons of March 28 and 29. Students who enter Allegheny as upper-class transfers are, in general not required to take the inventory examinations a second time.

A late examination fee will be charged for any missed examinations not excused by the dean of men or dean of women.

Allegheny Program

For Rehabilitation

Has First WAC

Mr. Dale E. Thomas, head of the rehabilitation committee here at Allegheny, was quite surprised to find among his veterans a young lady, a discharged WAC.

Since notification of her coming didn't arrive until two hours after she did, the committee found itself in an embarrassing situation concerning her housing. But the members finally secured a room downtown for her, and the program will continue with Miss Laila Skinner as the WAC's advisor.

Next Canteen

Scheduled For April 9

College Canteen under the direction of Catherine Carothers, '45, will be held the first Saturday after Easter vacation, April 9.

At that time the Canteen will be held in the college Grill, through the courtesy of Jim Oram. Music and cards will be provided for the entertainment of all.

Wealth in liberated Holland at the moment is not measured by money or shares, but by the possession of goods which can be bartered. The greatest "capitalist" is the owner of soap, overalls or gin—or the lucky man who has some surplus clothing of any sort.

Helen Creeger, '46, is assistant editor, while Corinne Irwin, '47, has charge of pictures, as well as the servicemen's section. Alice Lowry, '47, is responsible for art work, and clerical work was headed by Dorothy Smallman, '47. Men's athletics were in charge of Andrew Mihalic, '46.

Topping by $150 the advertising goal of $300 was Joan Zook, '47, and her advertising staff.

Mr. Julian R. Ross is faculty adviser for copy, while Mr. L. J. Long has aided on the business side.

Photography was done by Mr. James Skillen of Meadville.

Dear Editor:
Here I am way down South in Northern Louisiana. You've never heard of Ruston, Louisiana, but it's the home of Louisiana Tech which is a school a little larger than Allegheny but enough like it to make me homesick.
Besides being the home of Tech, Ruston is also the home of a Prisoner of War Camp. It is in the Station Hospital of this camp where I am reporting for duty each day (that I can't get out of it.)
Russ Sipe and "Bit" Snead are both navigation instructors at Selman Field in Monroe, Louisiana, about 40 miles east of here. They were over here to see me about a year ago but I have never repaid their visit (I regret to say).
I sure would appreciate it if you would send me the addresses of my old roomies, namely Dick Lewellyn, ex '42, Rich Graft, '42, and Bill Hoover, '42. I have lost track of their addresses and would like to get in touch with them. I know that Rich is in V-12 at Temple Med School.
In closing let me thank you for sending the CAMPUS. I really enjoy it.
Sincerely,
Charles Torrey, ex '42

Congressman Mundt

the air patrol among the five stations, service at each being of a period of three months with frequent trips back to the United States.
"But in addition to an international air force, it would be necessary to strip Germany and Japan of all planes, anti-aircraft and robot bombs, and to limit air armaments in all nations," the speaker said. "Reduction of other armaments would not be necessary immediately," he added, "because any attempt at land invasion or sea attack could be squelched quickly from the air."
"A board of technical experts would be set up to investigate frequently the extent of air armaments in all countries."
"The greatest danger to such a plan is that some people are not willing to sacrifice for peace by limiting air armaments. But it is essential that we do so," Mr. Mundt urged, "for another big race future in air armaments will lead directly to a war. We must make an agreement to limit air power, believe in it and live up to it if we are to hope for lasting peace."
Second, America must face the reality that permanent peace is a cooperative job. If America attempts to maintain peace alone, she will find the task too big. If America attempts to try it alone, there is a strong possibility that Russia, China, Brazil or another country with lower standards of living, larger population and vast undeveloped resources will outstrip us industrially in 25 years. Therefore, in order to maintain peace some sort of international cooperation is essential, the speaker urged.
Pausing in his address, Mr. Mundt commended Chiang Kai-shek who, opposed by the Nankai-anese, the isolationists and Communists, has done so much for China with so little against such odds.
"The third reality which America must face, the need for some kind of international tribunal, cannot be attained by power politics nor by attempting to superimpose on other nations American ideas and form of government," he declared.
Another, perhaps unpleasant, realism is that in international affairs there are no eternal friendships. Nations must change partners, as in a South Dakota square dance, but for a more serious purpose, Mr. Mundt stated. Nations must protect themselves against their friends as well as their enemies, emphasized the speaker.
Congressman Mundt averred that in the post-war world the United States should extend the hand of Christian faith to all nations, insofar as it is possible, without risking internal collapse. First, we should not risk expense which may bankrupt America, for a country that has lost its solvency can have no influence in the world. Second, we must safeguard our security by refusing to disarm as long as there is a possibility of new wars. Our third safeguard must be against entering any world organization that will destroy our self-government. Finally, we must maintain our sovereignty and influence in the world, which would be lost if the 140,000,000 people in the United States were given equal vote in the world with the 2,500,000,000 people who are still dwellers in a "loin cloth economy," Mr. Mundt explained.
Preceding his lecture on Monday evening, Mr. Mundt was guest of honor at a dinner sponsored by the speech and dramatic department at Ross house.

abeth), the New York Times called it "Magnificent drama . . . searching portrayal of character . . . freely imaginative in its use of history, clearly thought out and conveyed in dialogue of notable beauty—we sorely need plays rich in character, thought and imagination. Mr. Anderson has written one."
The costumes, the work of the costume shop under Mrs. Maurine Mitchell's direction, are as regal as the theme. The poetic form has ringing and romantic beauty, and the characters take on a clarity and human quality that historical accounts cannot evoke. "Elizabeth the Queen," essentially a serious play, is rich in humor; one of its most engaging characters is the Fool.

Freshman Group Discusses Continuing Govt. Restrictions
William Baum, '48, directed discussion of the topic "Should government restrictions on business and industry be continued in the post-war era?" in the last meeting of the Freshman Debate and Discussion Group on Tuesday.
Main items considered were whether there will be need for restrictions in the future, whether government or private industry should dominate business and whether private industry, unaided, will be capable of handling international economic relations. The group examined compulsory military training and government work projects, as possible solutions to the unemployment problem.
Newcomers to the discussions include Mary Welty, '48, Lucile Salitar, '48, Bernice Rathbun, '48, Phyllis Davis, '48, Jewel Shaw, '48, Nancy Julius, '48, and Joan Matthews, '48.
