To the
Editor of the Ohio State Journal
Columbus, Ohio

My dear Sir:

I never see the words "From the Ohio State Journal" in the columns of the New York World that I don't read the paragraph. A few weeks ago, I found the following:

> "The President of the Women's Law Enforcement League of the Franklin Avenue Protective Association, who has just returned from abroad, entertained the ladies of the organization most delightfully at her home yesterday, showing them many handsome and costly articles of wearing apparel which she had cleverly contrived to bring into the country without paying duty. Iced tea was served and nullificationists were denounced."

My first inclination was to set the paragraph down as a clever gibe. But it occurred to me that it might be true. Is it? I won't trouble you to do anything more than to write 'Yes' or 'No' on this sheet and return it to me in the enclosed envelope.

Ever yours admiringly
