Dear Mrs. Tarbell:

I must add my congratulations to the great number you will receive on your birthday. You have been one of my benefactors. I have known you, it seems to me, since 1900, when as a very small boy on an Illinois farm I peered over the back files of McClure's, kept by the family as something far too good to be thrown away. I hope that many returns of the day will still find you busy instructing and entertaining all of us. Mrs. Hewins joins me in best wishes.

Sincerely yours,
Allan Hewins
