Dear Mr. Burns:

I am sorry to have been so slow in thanking you for your letter of August 28th. I am delighted that you have finally pounded out something that both Mr. Baker and The Post would accept and the title is admirable. I am sorry I made you so much bother but console myself in thinking that my experimenting may have helped you to see just what was needed to fuse the two view points. Be sure I shall look with interest for the article.

It has been fun to work with you and I am only sorry that I did not pull it off.

Faithfully yours
