Dear Mr. Conant:

This outline was ready for you this morning but on inquiry the office reported that tomorrow morning - Tuesday - would be early enough, so here it goes in the mail.

The next in the series - Number Five - has the general title of Training. It will deal with the Goodrich Tire & Rubber Company Industrial University with the Westinghouse and General Electric system of Test Boys - really an apprentice system built on technical school training.

I have the material for these points based on visits to the factories, but I have not anything like full material on our technical schools. Could you get this for me. The United States Bureau of Education - the Bureau of Mines - the Geological Survey ought to be able to give this and if from their records any particularly important new point shows up then follow it down by visit or interview.

Do you want an outline of Number five early in June?

Very sincerely

Mr. Lawrence Conant
