Dear Miss Tarbell:

Thank you for your letter of May 24th and certainly I have no objection to your using the story about my mother. As I was away either at the Naval Academy or with the Fleet at the time of your visit, I do not know whether or not you met my mother, and if you did not, perhaps I had better briefly outline her tremendous influence over Father.

In my letter to you, I did not comment on how much I had enjoyed "All in the Day's Work", because I hoped that some of my children might write you about it, without suggestion from me, and I hope they do, but I do want to tell you how much I was impressed by the courage of your father and mother and your own courage in making your venture in France. There is much need of such courage in this country today.

Sincerely,

C. M. Lynch
