Queen Of Air Force Ball To Be Announced Tomorrow

Three senior women, Sue Coates, Norma Flinchbaugh, and Sue Wolf, will be awaiting the announcement that will declare one of them the Queen of the Air Force Ball to be held in Brooks Hall tomorrow night. Until that time, the exact identity of the winner will remain with Cadet Major William Stoughton, who conducted the elections on behalf of the Arnold Air Society.

Also to be represented are the charm queens for each of the other three classes. Jane Linke will first be presented, having been selected as the Frshman Class Charm Queen. Emily Eckman of the Sophomore Class will then be presented, followed by Peggy French, representing the Junior Class. Only then will the three seniors be told which has won the coveted honor, for she will be preceded by the other two who shall act as her attendants.

The Queen of the Ball will enter escorted by Cadet Lt./Col. William Johnson, and will be crowned by Cadet Johnson. The traditional Grand March will follow the queen's coronation. Escorts for the presentation ceremony will be Cadet Lt. Col. Fred King, Cadet Major George Hagstrom, Cadet Major Richard Buerger, Cadet Major William Stoughton, and Cadet Major Frank Feigert.

The dance will feature programs and flowers, set on a table at the end of the reception line. Music by Johnnie Martin will add to the festivities. Refreshments will be served at the intermission by the Angel Flight, the official girls' auxiliary of the Arnold Air Society.

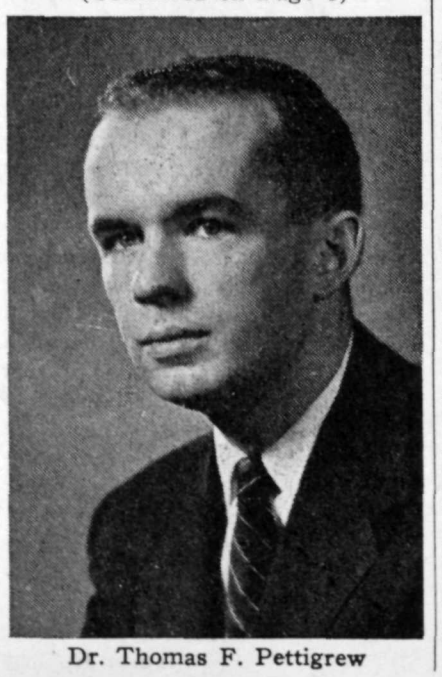

Cadet Majors William Stoughton and Bruce Greenwood, co-chairmen for the dance, expressed confidence that the ball will be the best in the history of the school, and wish to remind everyone that the dance is formal and an all-college function.

Pre-Freshmen To Get View Of College Life

Allegheny College's annual Pre-Freshman week-end, aimed at providing pre-freshmen with as full an understanding of life on a college campus as possible, gets underway this week-end, March 14 and 15, with the arrival of 250 prospective students.

Concerning the weekend, Calvin L. Crawford, director of admissions, stated that, "The reactions of students in the past have been such that students on campus have remarked that it is one factor that made them select Allegheny College over any other college." He added that, ". . . it is a very important function of the admissions office."

Over the week-end, the college's academic, social, and extra-curricular areas will be represented. By living in the dormitories, participating in a round of activities, and meeting Allegheny's faculty and students, the high school pre-freshmen will have an opportunity to gain an inside view of college life.

Activities will get underway Saturday morning with registration and lunch in Brooks Dining Hall. Panel discussion, faculty conferences, and a get-acquainted party at the College Union are scheduled for the afternoon. The evening will be highlighted by a music concert in Ford Memorial Chapel and an informal dance at the College Union. The Phi Delta Theta fraternity will serenade the girls after their 12:30 permissions.

Gator Wrestlers, Swimmers Gain PAC Championships At Cleveland

by Bruce Herold and David Stitely

Allegheny can well cheer, for both the swimming and wrestling teams won the President's Athletic Conference championships, held March 6 and 7. These twin victories climaxed outstanding seasons for both teams.

The Allegheny wrestling team finished its season at Case Tech, site of the PAC meet, taking four individual weight championships.

On Friday, March 6, in the quarter-finals, Bill Johnson and Bill Blair won their first matches. They were the only Gators not to draw byes into the semi-final at 2:00 p.m. Bill Johnson in the 147 pound class pinned Arslanian of Western Reserve in 5:00 of the second period. Bill Blair in the 157 pound class decisioned Shoop of W & J 5-0. This gave Allegheny three points. The scoring is done by giving one point for each pin and for each advance in the tourney.

In the semi-finals Bob Lamorree in the 123 pound class decisioned Prowland of Thiel 4-2. Al Coulter in the 130 pound class lost to Macko of Case 10-1. Dave McChesney in the 137 pound class decisioned Olsen of Thiel 6-3 Bill Johnson was pinned by Wayne's Ladsen in the 147 pound class. Bill Blair in the 157 pound class decisioned Wayne's McKenizie 4-1. Dick Dunn in the 167 pound class pinned D' Amico of W & J in 7:00 of the third period. Dave Sawhill in the 177 pound class decisioned Smith of Thiel 5-0.

In consolation matches Mosan of W & J decisioned Al Coulter 5-3 and Bill Johnson lost a decision to Gahagan 3-1.

Finals

The Gators placed six wrestlers in the finals on Saturday, March 7. Bob Lamoree at 123 lost a decision to Pat McCormick of W & J, 5-0. Dave McChesney lost a close decision to Dave Macko of Case 4-3. Both Bob Lamoree and Dave McChesney had been undefeated in PAC competition during the regular season. At this point the roof caved in on the PAC opponents as the Gators swept the next four matches. Bill Blair won a 5-3 decision from Thiel's Chick Morris. Dick Dunn then decisioned Tom Steffien of Western Reserve 3-1. Dave Sawhill decisioned Bob Morris of Case Tech 4-2. Bruce Olderman won the last match of the tournament with a pin over Chuck Marshall of Case in 7:45 of the third period.

Allegheny finished the tournament with four first places, two second places, and two fourth places. In the scoring Allegheny had 67 points, Case Tech 52, W & J 48, Thiel 22, Western Reserve 18, and Wayne State 12 points.

Mermen Tops, Too

The Allegheny swimmers returned victorious last Saturday after topping all other PAC swimming teams in the tournaments held in Cleveland. The victory put an excellent finish on what was already a brilliant season for the tankers as they had compiled a 9-1 dual meet record.

Giving the Gators plenty of trouble and leading almost all the way was W & J, who lost only in the last event, by a 75-70 final score. Bethany College was third with 45 points, while Case, Wayne, and Western Reserve finished in that order.

Earl Spiers turned in the best time in the 220-yard freestyle event yard freestyle to give him half of and also captured a first in the 440- the four Allegheny firsts. Bruce Carlile, in the 200-yard butterfly, and John Gillespie, in the 200-yard backstroke, were the other winners for the mermen as both turned in best times of the meet.

The team had a big setback to overcome as the medley relay team, which had not lost an event all year, was disqualified after finishing a full eight seconds ahead of the winning W & J team.

It wasn't until the final event, the 400-yard freestyle relay, that the Gators went ahead of the "Presidents" to capture the crown. It had been a very close meet until then when the mermen of "Alleghe"

One of this week's letters states quite explicitly the tendency for Letters to The Campus to serve as a "boxing ring." Such a "boxing-match" seems to be in the process now. This stage might easily be termed Round 4.

The feature attraction is now centered more upon personalities and technicalities. An extra-added attraction of the rounds seems to be misinterpretation and misunderstanding.

The following is what we feel to be the "rundown" on the match to date.

In Round 1 we observed co-authors of a letter attempting to stimulate thought through their writing. However, their means did not achieve the desired end. Exceptions could be found to many statements. In general, it should have been thought out more completely. The result was the stimulation not of thought, but rather of ire.

Round 2 saw the refutation by the authors of some erroneous statements made in their letter. The somewhat nebulous topic of apathy was explored also, in all its supposedly appalling details. This is not to say that apathy is non-existant on our campus. The question is, to what extent.

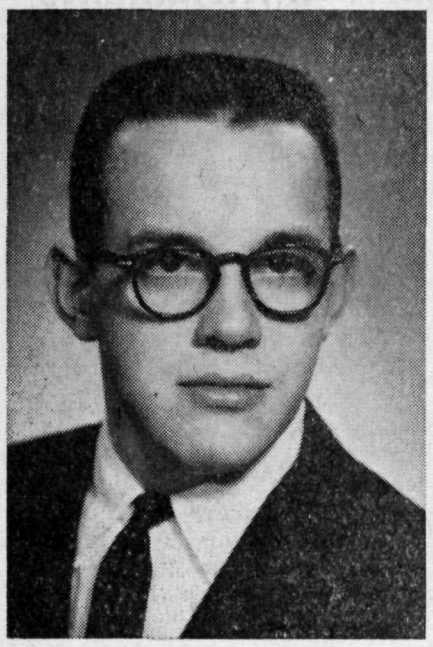

The round of events brought response from a faculty member. In essence, the letter implied that "People who live in glass houses shouldn't throw stones." The purpose of the letter was not to explore campus problems. Here the question seemed to be, are these persons perhaps guilty of some of the same things of which they accuse others (when some of the others accused were not entirely guilty)?

As Round 4 begins in this week's issue, we ask, What is being accomplished now? Is there any semblance of the issues taken in the first "round" reappearing in evaluated form? Has any campus problem, real or non-existant, been thought-out by any students?

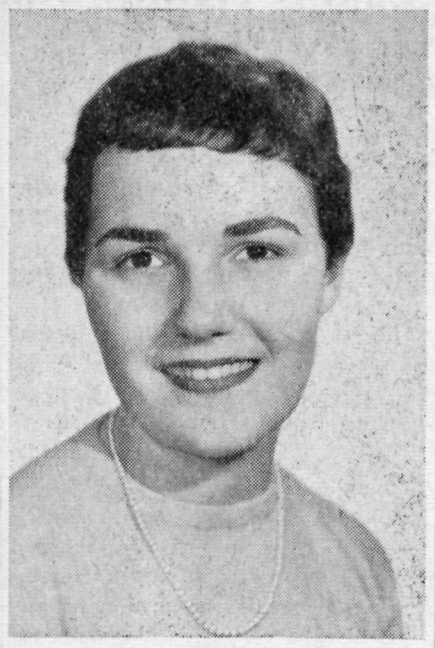

Is there anything now besides criticism of people or means of writing; anything besides mere words and irrelevancies? Isn't it about time that actual problems were explored, thought-out, discussed? Perhaps last night's discussion on campus problems may have been fruitful—as we go to press we do not yet know the outcome.

Finally, isn't it time that something in the way of constructive, specific ideas and suggestions were offered to raise the whole matter from its degenerated state?

Letters to The Campus...

To the Editor:

During the current school year, I have been disappointed to note a tendency for this column to serve on occasion as a battle ground for individual warfare — a kind of boxing-ring, if you will.

I conceive of the "letter to the editor" as an opportunity for individuals to air opinions on issues of current and/or general concern to the college community; for, the Campus is a communal publication. On at least two occasions this year, however, what may have begun as a discussion of issues degenerated into a personal feud, with attack and counter-attack duly presented from week to week. On such occasions, I have felt like the spectator at a boxing match: recognizing and calling the punches, but — after all — a spectator.

A perhaps undesirable by-product of this trend is that it tends to draw attention away from the basic ideas or the issues involved and toward the personalities concerned. This makes for good gossip, often to the pre-emption of good discussion.

From this point of view, perhaps it is not such a bad idea to omit printing the signature on "Letters to the editor." Opinions might stand a better chance of being noticed if the reader were not tempted to treat the material found in this column as a modified version of the parlor game, "Who am I?" In my opinion, who is not nearly so important as what is being talked about.

To the Editor:

There have been a variety of rumors spread about me and the purpose of the questionnaires concerning ROTC which were passed to all men students. May I clarify here the point about my connection with Richard Freeman's letter.

Richard wrote the letter to The Campus and was refused publication of it. I heard of this and asked whether I could run it off and circulate it. I found nothing libelous in the letter and did not see why it was not accepted for publication. Yes, it criticized the ROTC program, but was all criticism to be discouraged and stamped out? I did not think so. I thought Richard had good points (although I do not agree with all of them) and that the college community should see the letter. I apologize for the spelling errors; those were all that were mine. Richard's letter grew out of his convictions that ROTC should be expelled, and the questionnaire grew out of mine that ROTC should be non-compulsory. These two efforts, therefore, should be considered as separate, simultaneous methods of approaching the same subject.

Sincerely,
Amy Kanemitsu

Ed Note: Mr. Freeman's letter was not refused publication because we wished to discourage criticism of the ROTC Program. We felt that parts of it were libelous.

To the Editor:

After reading last week's Campus I was greatly disturbed. Dr. Knights has considered it either his perogative or perhaps his duty to tar and feather certain of the students on this campus because of their views. As a basis for discriminating against their intellectual ability, he has arbitrarily used their academic average. I question his wisdom in attacking them personally along with his arbitrary choice of a gauge for measuring intellectual gains. Did Dr. Knights have straight A's in school? Have all, or even most of, the professors had a 90 average in undergraduate school, or were there semesters in which their criticisms were only ill-begotten gibberish?? Is a 90 average the only good measure of intellectual ability? I would like to know.

Sincerely, in good faith,
J. L. Ellis

To the Editor:

In the letter to the editor of the issue of the sixth of March concerning the "epistolary efforts of Messers. Hemphill and Ross", we would like to take issue with the handling of the retort.

We feel that much of his "ill-begotten gibberish" might have been spared the community if he had approached the topic in a manner befitting one in his position. The author, rather than discussing the question of whether or not there might have been any validity to the ideas, presented in their relationship to the problem of apathy merely brushed them aside because the authors had not been on the dean's list or had achieved any outstanding academic success. This is certainly not an absolute pre-requisite for ascertaining the truth of the ideas presented, although we don't deprecate achievements as being a neccessary and essential goal of the college student.

We feel that it is essential to the achievement of intellectual growth that we as students be motivated to involve ourselves with ideas and examine those presented on the basis of their implicit worth. The letter did not seem, however, to be motivated by the free exchange but rather was based on superficial sarcasm. The letter was certainly in poor taste—taste which we know is not exemplary of the gentleman's profession. Furthermore, we were disturbed about a possible implication by the author that criticism of the college community is not desirable nor warranted. It is inconceivable how an institute can grow and develop unless it is through some means, some employment of valid criticism. Therefore, even though the letters of Messers. Hemphill and Ross did go to extremes, for Allegheny at least, by raising problems and attempting to show some causes for these problems, it still should be examined as to its merit and criticized on the basis of whether or not the ideas presented are related to the causes given to them.

Let us not approach this problem as typical babbitts but rather as mature college students. Ah but yes, we suppose that we can never rid ourselves of Zenith and the entrenched babbitts. Although they appear today in a somewhat different form than that immortalized by Sinclair Lewis, they nevertheless have the same goals, though glazed over by an attempted intellectualism. This is not an avant garde reaction but rather one motivated by a concern for the community and its growth.

We feel that the author's handling of the letter in issue is both hindering and stultifying the accomplishment of these goals by the community as a whole. We hope that in the future the approach implied in the author's letter will be modified to create an atmosphere more congenial to intellectual stimulation. We have not attempted to comprehend the significances of the data presented by the author for it is wholly irrelevent to the question at hand, and we recommend that Messers. Hemphill and Ross do not attempt to probe them either. We hope, in essence, that the community will evolve towards a truer conservatism, one based on free inquiry and exchange of ideas rather than on plucking the forbidden apple of babbittery.

Sincerely,
James Rumsey

Carnival Nets $1,000 Profit

"Unusual" and "more imaginative than in previous years" are some of the comments circulating in reference to this year's Carnival, held last Saturday night, March 7.

More than $1,000 profit was netted on the Carnival, representing an increase of over $100 from last year. The money made will be used to aid the foreign student scholarship fund and the United Fund of Western Crawford County. A total of $1,276 was collected from the various events, with about $275 of that amount going toward expenses, stated Jean Morse, co-chairman of the Carnival committee.

Kappa Kappa Gamma made the largest contribution with $150 from the Karnival King contest and $30 from their booth. The next highest intake was made by Phi Kappa Psi with $102 from their queen contest and $37 from their booth. Third was Phi Gamma Delta with $95 from their casino.

Out of the twenty booths, decorated with advertising slogans, three were awarded prizes for the different categories. Prize for best booth was awarded to Section 5 for relationship to the subject and for workmanship. Their booth was a golf course with the theme of "Go Gulf".

The Outing Club Booth won second place for its artistic aspects. With the theme of "Smoky Says . . ." the booth was a refreshment stand. Alpha Gamma Delta also took a prize for the appropriateness and manipulation of their booth which had as its theme, "Raid — One Psst Kills Them Dead".

Along with the booths, featuring games of skill and refreshments, the evening was highlighted by the crowning of the Carnival King and Queen and three performances of the seven-act variety show.

With Rod Anderson as Master of Ceremonies, Dr. Phineas T. Phoghorn (T. for Trueheart) for the evening, the acts were designed to be a "soothing nostrium and cure-all." "Dr. Phoghorn" started off the old-time medicine show by playing two selections on the piano, "Autumn Leaves" and "Bumble Boogie".

The "Innocents", a freshman quintet, sang nine songs, including several encores each time. Joan Powell danced; Jeanne Frith sang "I've Got You Under My Skin"; several selections were sung by the Kappa Keynotes and Alpha Chi Quartet; and Lorrie Sibbet did a pantomine to the records, "Rats in Her Room" and "Limburger Lover".

Another of the evening's feature was the Phi Gam Casino held in the Grill. Complete with "big-time" gamblers, cigarette and chorus girls, the casino also included a honky-tonk piano plus the many and varied gambling devices on which people could try their luck.

Smith, First Reign Over Spring Carnival

Reigning over Allegheny's annual spring carnival this year were King Harry Smith and Queen Carol First. The election of the king and queen, sponsored by Kappa Kappa Gamma and Phi Kappa Psi respectively, were additional projects to raise money for the Fund Drive.

Carol, a junior and a member of Alpha Xi Delta, said of her queenship, "It was a great deal of fun and I was glad that it helped the Fund Drive".

Harry is a junior and a political science major. He is also a member of Phi Kappa Psi. Harry commented, "Carnival is a very enjoyable and worthwhile thing, and I was glad to be a part of a project that helped the Fund Drive."

Development Program Discussed By Alumni

Approximately 25 alumni leaders of the Allegheny phase of the Development Program met in the Alumni Lounge Saturday, March 7. Representatives were here from Delaware, New England, Ohio, Illinois, and various communities in Pennsylvania.

Mr. Robert S. Bates addressed the group concerning the background of the campaign and President Pelletier talked on the challenge facing the independent college. The majority of the time spent at the meeting was devoted to helping the alumni leaders develop actual plans for organizing local campaigns in the areas which they represented. It is anticipated that campaigns will be held in all of the 49 states, and will involve as much as possible all of Allegheny's 9,500 living alumni.

Following the meeting a dinner was held at 6:00 p.m. in the small dining room in Cochran Hall.

Allegheny To Compete In Bridge Tournament

Allegheny is one of the 136 colleges and universities throughout the United States which will compete this coming week in the 1959 National Intercollegiate Bridge Tournament.

All colleges competing in this duplicate Contract Bridge tourney play on campus a set of eighteen prepared hands in a single session on Tuesday afternoon, March 17, at 1:30 p.m. Directing the local tournament will be Joanie Martin. Play will be held at Cochran Hall in the small dining room.

Steinberg To Direct Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra Concert, April 2

Allegheny College will present the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, William Steinberg, Music Director, at 8:15 p.m. on Thursday, April 2, in the Meadville Area High School Auditorium.

The world-famous Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra is an orchestra with several histories. There is the chapter in Pittsburgh music that started with the turn of the century and ended with World War 1. There is the part when the Pittsburgh Symphony was re-organized in the mid-twenties, and there is the segment, beginning with 1936, when the Pittsburgh Symphony became established as a major symphony orchestra.

The Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra's modern history begins in 1926 when a group of theater musicians re-organized an orchestra that had died before World War 1. This hard core of the new Pittsburgh Symphony, headed by Edward Spector, brought music with money from their own pockets and picked up support for their efforts as they moved along.

By 1937, the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra was a veteran group of able musicians that had established itself solidly in the community, had been instrumental in breaking state "blue laws" that prohibited sale of concert tickets on Sundays, and was ready for giant steps in the music world.

Otto Klemperer, then with the Los Angeles Philharmonic, was called to Pittsburgh to whip the Pittsburgh Symphony into an orchestra of stature and prestige. His organization work completed, Fritz Reiner was called to lend his dynamic personality and international reputation to the Pittsburgh Symphony. Reiner's tenury with Pittsburgh lasted nearly ten years and by 1949, the Pittsburgh Symphony was a musical force to be reckoned with around the world.

After four years of seeing a steady stream of guest conductors come and go, the Pittsburgh Symphony's supporters finally decided William Steinberg was the man needed to carry the orchestra even further in world fame. He came to Pittsburgh in 1952 and today the Pittsburgh Symphony is rated on records and concerts as one of the greatest.

The Pittsburgh Symphony's earlier history is now but a dim memory of only the oldest of Pittsburgh residents. But it is known that Victor Herbert was the maestro of the Pittsburgh Orchestra at the turn of the century and added zest and color to the Pittsburgh scene. Emil Paur held the reins after Herbert, but Paur, for all his talent, was as colorless as Herbert was colorful. Support for the Pittsburgh Symphony lagged and finally expired completely just before World War 1, and Pittsburghers had to wait for more than a decade before the Pittsburgh Symphony was re-born.

German High Schools Selective, Visitors Says

by Mike Boyle, Feature Editor

"The main difference between high schools in the U.S. and in Germany, is that high schools (Oberschule) in Germany are selective; therefore, fewer students get to go to high school," commented Mrs. Bacharach at a recent meeting of the German Club.

Mrs. Bacharach comes from Regensburg, Bavaria, and is an elementary school teacher. She came to the U.S. under the sponsorship of the Fulbright Program, with the aim of studying "the education system in a democracy and how democracy operates in the American school system."

The elementary school, Volkschule, is similar to our elementary school, remarked the speaker, except that after four years the students are given an opportunity to enter high school, Oberschule. The students have to take a special entrance exam and only those who pass it are eligible for high school. This is how the selective process operates. Only about 25 per cent of the students go on to high school. The remainder of the students complete the elementary school — another four years — and then usually go to a trade school, Berufschule, where they become apprentices, working five days a week and attending classes for one day.

Most schools are not co-educational. The relationship between the students and faculty is a more formal one than in the U.S.

Mrs. Bacharach pointed out four different types of high schools in Germany: Realgymnasium, which stresses liberal arts education; Oberreal Schule, which emphasizes the sciences; Humanitisches Gymnasium, where the humanities are taught; and the Deutsches (Musisches) Gymnasium for literature.

These high schools are mostly found in the cities and offer dormitory facilities for students in the rural areas. After high school students who wish to further their education enter the university.

Classes in the university are mostly conducted in lecture form and in a very formal manner, but there is also the opportunity for discussion in smaller groups, seminars, which are conducted in a less formal manner.

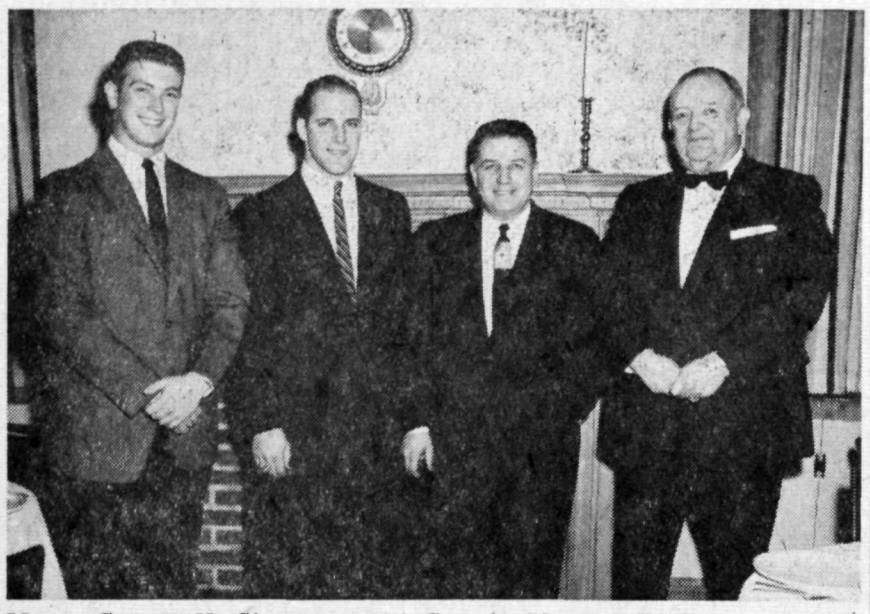

The degree conferred upon graduates of the university is a Ph.D., not a Masters Degree. Mrs. Bacharach pointed out that the title of "Master" only applies to trades people who have completed their apprenticeship, and the title of "Ph.D." is used for teachers.

Similar to the Berufschule (vocational school) is the Mittelschule, where students attend classes six days a week and take courses, such as home economics and stenography.

Teachers, nurses and professional people attend the Fachschule which is a professional school, distinguished from the vocational school.

The meeting was concluded by the serving of typical German Lebkuchen (cookies) and Pumpernickel.

SAE Joins Civil Defense

Mayor George X. Simonetta and Captain M. Fay Groff, county Civil Defense director, were dinner guests at the SAE house Tuesday. Shown with the two men are Bill Bussman, who is in charge of the project, and SAE president, Mike Bellama.

Meadville's Mayor George X. Simonetta announced earlier this week that Allegheny's Sigma Alpha Epsilon chapter had volunteered their services as emergency assistants to Crawford County Civil Defense. Mayor Simonetta said that the fraternity has developed leadership within the house, and is now sharing their abilities with the community.

All men of the fraternity, and about 20 cars, are being organized to render assistance at City and Spencer hospitals in disaster emergencies. Mike Bellama, SAE president, said that the men will begin to receive first aid training from hospital nurses next month.

College officials have granted permission to these men to leave classes in event of an emergency. Men in the program will carry CD identification cards, and participating cars will bear CD stickers.

Petition Is Circulated For Faster Integration

Copies of the following petition will be available at various places around campus during the coming week for any student who may be interested in signing it. The AUC felt that it should be a personal matter.

"Whereas equal rights for all is the central moral issue of our time;

"Whereas on May 17, 1954 the United States Supreme Court declared segregated schools to be unconstitutional and a negation of human rights in a democratic society;

"Whereas southern young people seeking to obtain these rights have suffered indignities, humiliation and violence;

"Whereas the effort to maintain segregated schools threatens the destruction of our free public school system and embarrasses our professions of democracy around the world;

"Therefore we, the undersigned, petition the President and Congress of the United States to put into effect an executive and legislative program which will insure the orderly and speedy integration of schools throughout the United States."

Deadline for the petition is April 18. Jackie Kovacevic, NSA Co-ordinator, is in charge of distributing and sending in the petition.

Allegheny To Receive US Government Grant

Allegheny College will receive a grant of $1,689 by participating in a federal student loan program. Seventy-five Pennsylvania colleges and universities, including Allegheny, will share $354,102 in U.S. government funds provided for by the program.

Other district colleges to receive the funds are Gannon, Mercyhurst, Edinboro State Teachers College, Thiel College, and Villa Maria, Erie.

Altogether, the U.S. is allocating some six million dollars to 1,227 American institutions. Each school participating in the program must contribute to the fund one dollar for every nine dollars of federal money.

Gulf Oil Grant Received By College

Allegheny College is one of 11 colleges and universities in Western Pennsylvania which will share in a $170,000 aid-to-education program of Gulf Oil Corporation, the company announced recently.

Individual amounts allocated to the institutions were not announced.

Thiel College at Greenville and Grove City College are included among the area schools. More than 600 schools throughout the country will participate in the program.

Artist Represented In Exhibit Founder Of Expressionist Group

by Ruth A. Merrill

"Who wishes to be creative . . . must first destroy and smash accepted values," said Nietzche. Expressionism was an artistic reaction against the emphasis upon light and surface stressed by the nineteenth century Impressionists, whom Expressionists thought were materialistic.

The group of young German Expressionists in the early part of the twentieth century wanted to give art a real importance of its own. They sought deeper expressive values rather than mere picturesque imitations of life. The "Blaue Reiter" group was a part of this search and tended toward abstractionsim and emphasis upon the mystical experiences. A founder of this group, and an important artist who is represented at Allegheny by two paintings in the Guggenheim exhibit, was Wassily Kandinsky.

Born in 1866 in Moscow, Kandinsky studied political economics, law, and statistics before he decided to give up such a study of science to devote his time to painting. In 1896 he finally settled in Munich. It was in this city in 1911 that he and Franz Marc, who also has a painting on exhibition here, founded the "Blaue Reiter". This group tired to substitute a new vision for the old classical interpretations of reality; the artist was to be freed from dependence upon external objects with their concrete relationships. Thus he could express his own personal emotions and experiences. In this way, Kandinsky considered art to be much like music, which he considered to be the purest artistic form.

Kandinsky thought little of the classical viewpoint which derives all of its sense of proportion from nature. There is an inner geometrical beauty in machines and the things which man has created. Art, through its appeal to man's inner sense of beauty, can be made" . . . sensible, not tangible . . . (The) problem is the representation of definite spiritual tension-relationships which, by their very nature can not be portrayed with definitions but which can nevertheless be completed by the spectator through a kind of sensitive optical communion."

Thus, in this turning to what Kandinsky called the "inner nature", the Blaue Reiter was born. Why the name? According to Kandinsky," . . . Marc and I hit upon the name in a cafe . . . We both liked blue: Marc liked horses and I like riders and so it came quite simply."

Kandinsky, in moving away from the organic, material nature into abstraction, did not sacrifice color which he considered extremely important. "Must we . . . abandon utterly all material objects and paint solely in abstractions? The problem of harmonizing the appeal of the material and the non-material shows us the answer to this question. As every word spoken rouses an inner vibration, so likewise does every object represented. To deprive oneself of this possibility is to limit one's power of expression . . . There is no 'must in art,' because art is free."

IRC State Convention Site Is At Villanova

On Friday and Saturday, March 13 and 14, the annual State Convention of the Pennsylvania Association of International Relations Clubs will be held on the Villanova University campus, Villanova, Pa. The topic under discussion will be "The Problems of the Middle East". The Villanova branch of the Association is working hard to make this convention a success. Four expert speakers have been engaged to guide the student delegates in their discussion of the problems.

On Friday evening, 7:30 p.m., at the George Washington Motel in King of Prussia, Pa., Mr. Keith Wheelock, Research Associate at the Foreign Policy Research Institute of the University of Pennsylvania, will present "A General Outlook on the Middle East". Mr. Wheelock has recently returned from Egypt and is currently writing a book on that country.

For Saturday, March 14, two speakers will present written views concerning the Arab-Israeli relationship. They are Mr. Yaakov Morris, an Israeli citizen and staff member of the Israeli Counsulate in New York, and Mr. Jamal A. Sa'd, a citizen of Lebanon and Acting Director of the Arab Information Institute in Washington. Mr. Morris and Mr. Sa'd will speak at 11:00 a.m. and 1:30 p.m., respectively, in the Vasey Hall Auditorium, centrally located on the Villanova campus. All interested students are invited to hear them.

Saturday evening will feature Dr. Fred J. Khouri, Associate Professor of Political Science at Villanova. Dr. Khouri will address those attending the banquet in the Forge Room of the George Washington Motel. He will probably lecture on "The United States and the Middle East".

St. Patrick's Day Banquet, March 19

The annual AWS St. Patrick's Day Banquet will be held Thursday, March 19 at 5:30 p.m. in Brooks Hall.

The spirit of the day will be conveyed by a backdrop of a paper-sculpture Colleen holding a tray of cockles and mussels. Leprachauns and candy favors will decorate each table.

by Ralph Malcek

At the conclusion of winter sports, Allegheny holds second place in overall points in the Presidents' Athletic Conference. Only Case leads the Gators in total points, 25-22, and Western Reserve is third with 18. Allegheny had 7.5 points at the end of the fall sports and won 6 more in swimming, 6 in wrestling, and 2.5 in basketball to give them their 22 points and second place in the conference.

The points are awarded by giving the first place team in a particular sport as many points as there are PAC teams participating: the second place team receives one point less, and the third place team receives two less, and so on. It may be noted that Case, the first place school, does not have a baseball team and therefore will not receive any points for that sport. The sports remaining for spring are tennis, golf, track and baseball.

Rifle Team Scores High But Is Defeated

Despite a second record-breaking performance, the Allegheny riflemen lost once again to the powerful Indiana S.T.C. rifle team, 1376 to 1349. This score eclipsed the Gators' previous high, against this same team, by 25 points, thus indicating a bright future for our marksmen.

The Gators' inability to fire consistently high scores was again the cause of their defeat in another match last week. Colgate University, led by Richard Ficke and Anson Chong, took the Gators to task with a 1848 to 1817 victory. High individual shooters for the Gators were Dave Rist and Bob McCreary.

Individual scores of the Allegheny-Indiana match are as follows:

Student Discount Plan Inaugurated For "J.B."

In view of the special interest among students and teachers in Elia Kazan's production of Archibald MacLeish's hit play "J. B.," currently at the ANTA Theatre, New York City, and the difficulty students and teachers are having obtaining medium priced tickets, the "J. B." management has instituted a Student Discount Plan for a certain number of orchestra seats.

The student discount seats are being offered to students and teachers at $3.45. They are orchestra seats, normally costing $6.90.

"J. B.," starring Christopher Plummer, Raymond Massey and James Daly, has won extraordinary praise from the New York and national Press. In the N.Y. Times Brooks Atkinson referred to it as "one of the memorable works of the century." At this writing it has just been nominated for five "Tonys" by The American Theatre Wing. "J. B." has received international critical acclaim.

Archibald MacLeish is a two time Pulitzer prize winner, a former Librarian of Congress, and one of America's foremost men of letters. Elia Kazan has achieved stellar status for his direction of "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," "Tea and Sympathy" and "Skin of Our Teeth." "J. B." is being presented by Alfred de Liagre, Jr., noted for his production of "Voice of the Turtle," "Madwoman of Chaillot," and "Janus."

Special Students Discount Plan blanks, for use either by mail or at the ANTA Theatre box office, have been sent to the Chairman of the English Department and the Director of Public Relations of various schools. Additional supplies of these students discount forms may be obtained by writing Alfred de Liagre, Jr., 55 West 42nd Street, New York 36, New York.

Gator Floormen Squeeze By Thiel, 76-75; Finish In Sixth Place In PAC Standings

by Jim Berry

On Saturday evening, March 7, the Allegheny basketball quintet closed out its 1958-59 campaign by nipping Thiel's Tomcats by a 76-75 score. This gave the Gators their longest winning streak of the year — three games.

The contest was close throughout its duration and the Gators had to fight every inch of the way. The first half showed Allegheny in front of Thiel by a score of 41-40. The second half, in so far as total points for each team was concerned, was deadlocked 34-34; however the first half margin carried the Gators through to a 76-75 victory with Vic Kress icing the victory by scoring a field goal with some 35 seconds remaining in the contest.

Five Gators Hit Double Figures

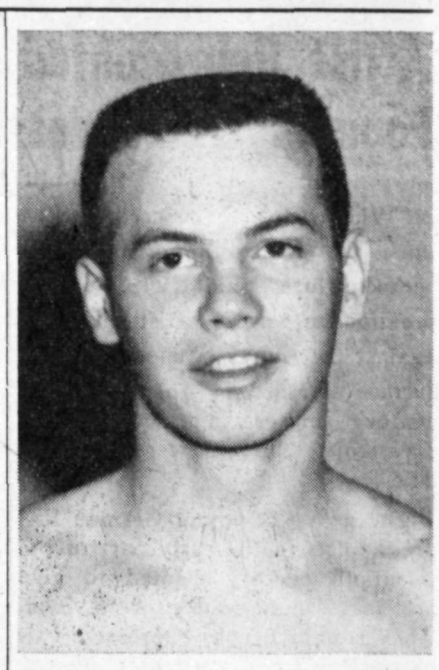

The game showed the gators finishing with four of their starters scoring in double figures for the first time this year. Jim Johnston was top man pointwise for the Gators with 18 points. He was followed by Cliff Stranburg with 15, and Vic Kress and Sykes Reed who tallied 13 points apiece. Anderson was high man for the Thiel five with 31 points followed by teammate Roger DeCort with 21 markers.

Gators Enhance PAC Status

Allegheny managed to better its standing in the Presidents' Athletic Conference by dropping the Tomcats into the cellar and finishing in a tie with Wayne for sixth place. The Gators concluded with an overall season mark of five victories and thirteen losses.

The intramural bowling season draws to a close this week, with the Phi Gams appearing to have the crown tucked away.

Outstanding performers never go unnoticed

IF YOU have real ability, the coach or team manager will recognize it because they are constantly on the lookout for potential star performers.

And so it goes at Koppers. Let's say we hire you. We give you an assignment and a chance to show your stuff. We watch you. We evaluate your ability, your potential. But we don't judge you solely on one job. We move you around.

You find the work stimulating, challenging, interesting. In time, you show us how versatile you are.

And what happens? You move up. Up in prestige, up in responsibility, up in compensation.

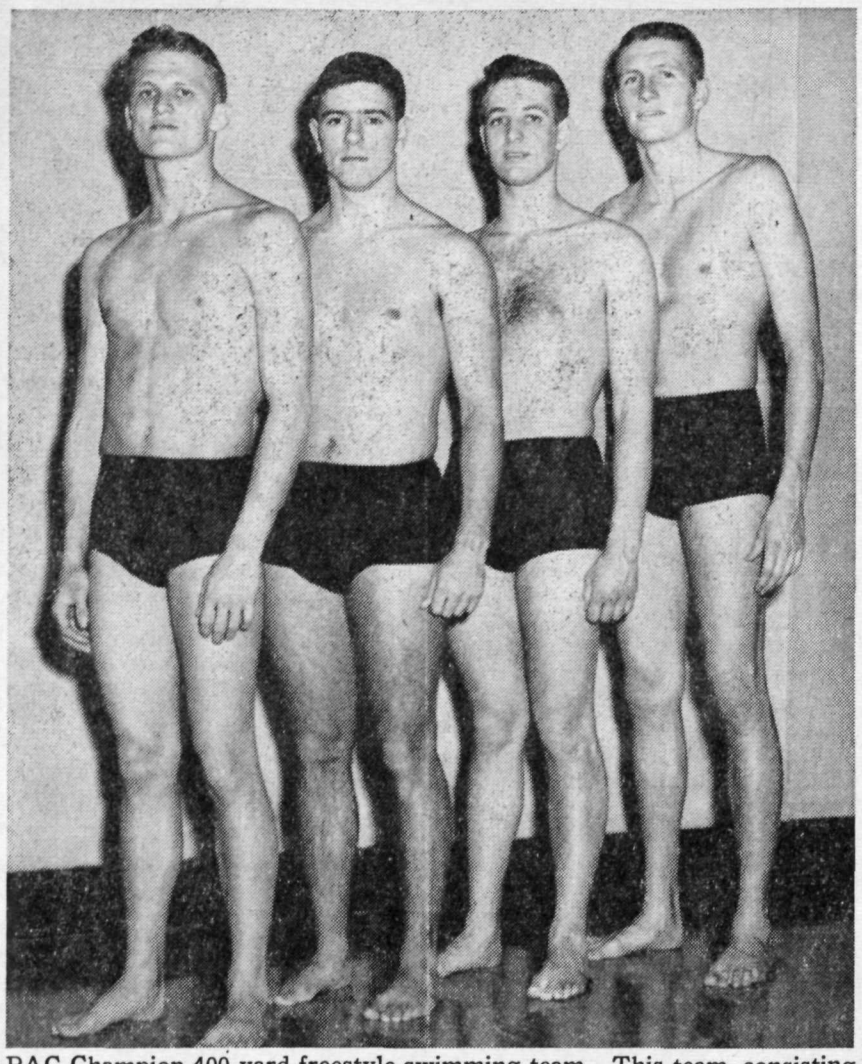

If you're young—so much the better. The seniority of others won't hold you back. If you have ability, we'll know it. And you'll know we know it!

Are you an engineer? How would you like to do research in plastics, fine chemicals, jet engine sound control—or perhaps work with vat dyes, antioxidants, electro-static precipitators, or—well you can almost name your subject. We're that diversified.

Maybe your forte is administration, product development, marketing or sales. Whatever it is, you'll find it at Koppers. But first, you've got to let us know about you. Why not write to the Manager of Manpower Planning, Koppers Company, Inc., Pittsburgh 19, Pennsylvania. Or, see your College Placement Director and arrange an appointment with a Koppers representative for the next recruiting visit.

Swimmers Complete Excellent Season; Carlile, Gillespie Undefeated In Events

by David A. Stitely

Looking back over one of the most victorious swimming seasons in recent Gator history, there are many things which can be noted: the fine performance of the freshmen swimmers, the undefeated season of Bruce Carlile and John Gillespie in their specialities, and several record setting times while the Gators were taking firsts in 36 out of 48 events in PAC competition. Coach Hanson is to be congratulated for a fine job of guiding the mermen.

Student-Faculty Game Ends In 20-20 Tie

by W. Fred Boehme, Sports Editor

Allegheny basketball enthusiasts witnessed a thriller at the Fieldhouse last Monday, March 9. Two powerhouse teams, the Best of the Faculty and the Worst of the Block A Club, fought, shoved, and tripped their ways to a 20-20 tie.

While viewing the pre-game warm-ups, it seemed assured that the faculty would be swamped. I say this, for the Block A men appeared certainly to be better shots, and there was a greater number of them, the better to exhaust the faculty. However, more education was not to be denied. The faculty, at times during the game, displayed much better shooting and ball handling ability, and, but for the 'en masse' defense put up by Block A in the waning moments of the game, could have scored a resounding upset.

Faculty Take Half-time Lead

Largely due to Captain Harmon's tremendous defensive rebounding and Mr. Vance's playmaking, the faculty held a 6-5 lead at the end of the first 10 minute half. The student team in the first half most notably featured Chauncey Mann rolling around the floor.

In the second half, the scoring was more rapid with the faculty taking a good sized lead on the strength of fast-breaks featuring Messers. Chuckran and McGrath. They could not hold this lead, however, as an inspired Block A aggregation, lead by Greer and Williams, tied up the game, and, with the aforementioned 'en masse' defense, (when the whole group of Block A people ran onto the floor), staved off a last minute faculty threat.

Personnel

Dean McKean (in his purple and white tennis sweater) was a colorful figure on the court. Mr. Vance was a colorful figure, too, but not because of his attire, but rather because of his magnificent ball dribbling ability. Other stalwarts for the faculty were Fleischer, Stack and Chuckran. Chuckran was high scorer with 6 points and Garbark was second with 5.

For the student team, Chauncey Mann led the scoring with 5 points. Dunn, Williams, and Greer were next with 4 each. Greer, perhaps, could have scored more, except that Mr. Vance used a tackle on him as he drove for a shot.

The game netted $56 for the Block A Club and was viewed by some 224 people. The opportunity for laughter and cheering was well worth the $.25 admission fee.
