

103 EAST 19TH STREET
NEW YORK

Jan. 1, 1909.

My dear Miss Tarbell,
Have you time
to dip into the psychologie of the new suffrage movement in England? The slip which I enclose tells how you can do so.

Whether or not suffragists like the methods of the suffragettes,

on auto-suffragists
their aims, there the movement is living & vital, one of the most determined
revolutions our generation has seen.

I understand from all the critics that Elizabeth Robins
in "Votes for Women" sets at fundamental causes, and

Julia Marlowe says
of Mrs. Winstworth's rendering of the play
that it is "illuminates and illuminating."

Trusting that you may wish to see
the French night,

I am,

Very cordially yours,
Harriet Newton Black
