Dear Miss Tarbell:

Please don't think of answering this note. I'm sure you will have many like it, and acknowledging them would turn you against birthdays!

This is to send you my love and best wishes, and to say that you can't possibly know all the separate bits of inspiration and good advice you have given us at the Pen and Brush. I often think of certain phrases and ideas in your talks at the Club - sometimes years back. They have stayed by me and meant something to me - and what is true for me must be true for so many others.

I doubt if I've ever really thanked you for all this. So on your eightieth birthday, I give you my thanks along with my congratulations.

Always affectionately yours,

Helen Ormsbee
