Christmas Notes

"Just the thing for" pops into your head as you go about looking at the Christmas display. I didn't mean to send her a present, but you think she may send you one. But this does so belong to her. And that is part of the fun sending where nobody expects anything.

There is a cat. And you remember your cat lover. You don't ordinarily send them cards, but this is just a little extra fun for yourself. Those extras make a good deal of Christmas.

And there are the unnecessary things that you see yourself why should you pack this box if there is somebody to do it. No, but you want your fingers to have been on this little thing. Perhaps it would carry some little extra thought of your affection. And so you go about packing and tying and wearing yourself out, and unwilling to give it up.
