Trustees Act

Semi-Annual Meeting Productive of Important Changes.

A most important meeting of the board of trustees was held on Thursday at the Fort Pitt hotel in Pittsburgh. This was the semi-annual meeting which the trustees decided last June to hold. A large proportion of the board was present and the meeting was solely for the transaction of business relating to the college. Reports were first read regarding the financial department. F. F. Brooks, of the Colonial Trust Company, financial trustee, made a full and detailed report showing the assets of the college, which showed the college to be in excellent condition. It was shown that the investments and securities of the present endowment fund now amounted to $500,000.

President Crawford created no little amount of enthusiasm by the announcement that fully one-half of the $500,000 which is being raised by 1915, had already been pledged. Of this amount a total of $93,000 has been pledged since last June. This practically assures the "million dollar endowment by 1915."

It was then reported to the board that J. F. Eberhardt, '53, of Chicago, who gave property valued at $35,000, had made another gift of real estate, worth about $33,000. Dr. J. E. Riggs, who went to Chicago to see these lots, predicted that within two years this property would be worth nearly $200,000. The trustees, on recommendation of the investment committee, voted to erect dwellings on these lots, the amount not to exceed $24,000. The settlement of the estate of Miss Irene Maitland, of New Castle, also gave $500 to the college.

Dr. A. C. Ellis, '78, of Oil City, and a former pastor at the Stone church, presented a set of resolutions regarding the death of Hon. William Reynolds, '37. They were an expression of the appreciation of the board for "his high character and the long years of friendly interest shown by him in all the affairs of the college."

On the recommendation of Dr. Crawford, Dr. Snively was made the head of the department of Romance

Hiram Team May Annex Victory Tuesday. Bradshaw to Play.

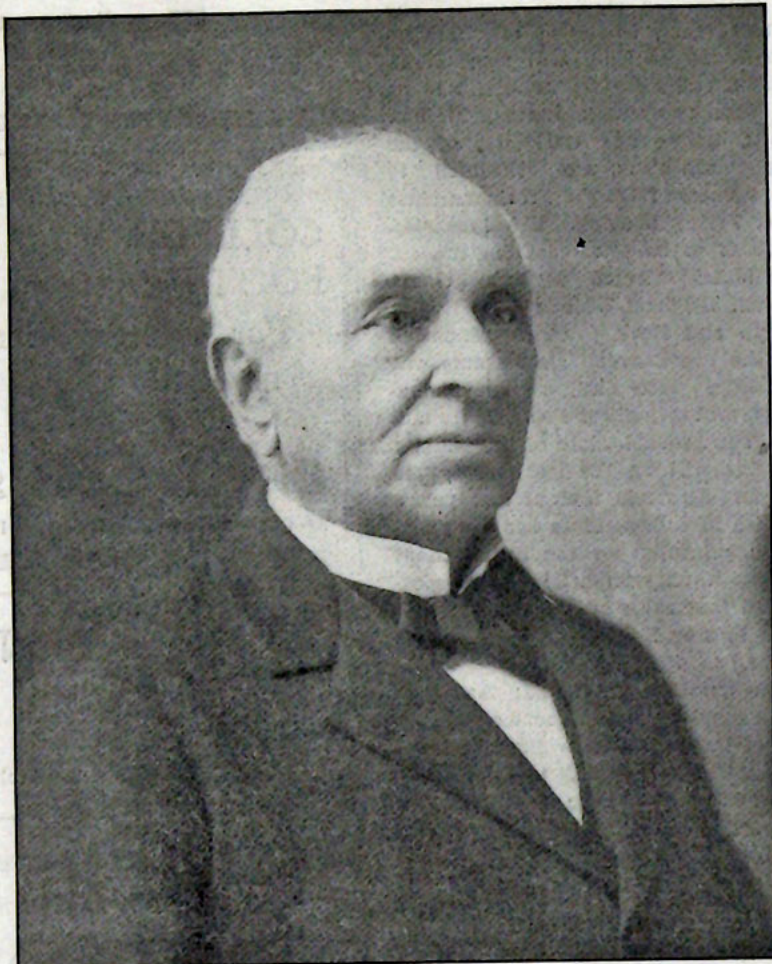

One of the hardest basket ball games of the season will be that with the Hiram five in the local gymnasium on next Tuesday evening. Hiram has made a remarkable record this year thus far, having won every game played and it is thought by many critics that their team is even stronger than last year at which time they gave Allegheny a hard fight, losing 44-16. Coach Stewart is very much afraid of losing the game.

The local team will be somewhat changed owing to the disability of several of the regular players. Leffel has left school and Croasmun is temporarily disabled. The coach said: "Hawk will be at center, Nichols at one forward, Mates and Lindberg at the other. Firestone will play one guard and 'Chuck' Dotterer and Ramsey will be seen on the other." Peckinbaugh, who refereed the Carnegie Tech game and will also officiate at the Hiram contest, said when last in the city that he was of the opinion that Hiram would win the game. He said that their team was considerably strengthened by the addition of several new men, in addition to whom they have Bradshaw, whose front appellation is said to be Methuselah because of the length of his days and the years of his life, and also Eberhardt, Hennessy and Rob'nette, all of the football team. Captain Brandt, of last year's team, is playing with the crack Central Y. M. C. A. team of Cleveland.

The Hiram team number among their vanquished, Buchtel, Heidelberg, Baldwin-Wallace and several others including a number of independent teams of Cleveland.

It seems that some Meadville people are tired of seeing Allegheny wallop their opponents and would be glad to see them defeated on their own floor. Reliable authority has invited all those people to come to next Tuesday's game.

MOURNED BY MANY

Hon. William Reynolds, '37.

SENIOR ALUMNUS DIES

Grim Reaper Claims Hon. William Reynolds, '37, Wednesday, After a Long and Honorable Career. Unusual Homage Paid His Memory

Allegheny lost her oldest living alumnus on Wednesday morning when Hon. William Reynolds, '37, passed away at his home on Terrace street. Owing to a severe illness he had been confined to his home for over a year and the announcement of his death did not come in the nature of a shock. He never lost interest, however, in the affairs of the town and college and was a strong supporter of both.

Mr. Reynolds was among the foremost in the business affairs of this city, and was a most generous contributor to worthy public enterprises. He was instrumental in bringing the first railroad to Meadville—the old A. and G. W., now a part of the Erie system. He was one of the founders of the Meadville Library, Art and Historical Association and was the first mayor of Meadville.

With the death of Mr. Reynolds, Allegheny loses one of its most interested alumni. Graduating as he did in the eighth class of the institution, he has seen its entire growth and development. Its advancement has been a source of pride to him all through his life. Not only was he the oldest graduate of Allegheny, but also the seventh oldest in the institutions of the United States. Several schools boast of men who graduated in the early thirties but these are indeed few. The death of Dr. Jonathan Hammett, '39, makes Mr. Johnson Pearson, '40, of Mercer, the oldest living alumnus.

The funeral services held yesterday at his late residence were noted for their simplicity. Friends of the family were invited to attend but no display was made. All the stores in town were closed from 2:30 until 3:30 yesterday during the hour of his funeral services. This is but one of the many tributes paid to his memory. Following is a brief biography of his active life.

Hon. William Reynolds was born in Meadville in April, 1820. His father, John Reynolds, was a native of England, coming to this country in 1795. In 1805 he moved to Meadville and became a teacher in what was then known as "Meadville Academy." His son, William, the subject of this sketch, attended the public schools and later entered Allegheny, from which institution he graduated in 1837, at the age of seventeen. He studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1841, but devoted most of his time to business enterprises. In 1852, Mr. Reynolds became interested in the project of bringing a railroad line through Crawford county, connecting the railroad systems of New York and Ohio. He was a delegate to a and later when work was begun meeting of railroad presidents in 1852 on the new road he was its first president. In 1865, he was elected burgess of the town and on its incorporation was made the first mayor of Meadville. In 1867, he founded the Athens Mills Company, which was one of Meadville's leading business projects.

Mr. Reynolds was also president of the Meadville Gas and Water Company. He was one of the incorporators of the Greendale cemetery and was for a number of years president of the Meadville Library, Art and Historical Association. On account of his failing health he was forced to retire from active business but was still connected with the various business enterprises of the town.

Second Game

Mammoth Buchtelites Seen in Action Last Night.

Just as the Campus goes to press word comes of the exciting game played last night on the local floor with Buchtel College. The game was fast throughout and the accurate shooting of the blue and gold tossers was a very noticeable feature. Max Croasmun was cut of the game making it necessary to use subs.

The Akronites were all big "boys." Wilson was the only member of the team under six feet and the Allegheny five looked like "runts" when lined up against them. They are all football stars.

The final score was 47-20 for Allegheny.

New Captain

Harry Firestone, '11, Wins Well Deserved Honor of Leading Gold and Blue Five.

At a meeting of the athletic board held on Wednesday evening, Harry Firestone was appointed captain of the basket ball team for the remainder of the season. The appointment, made necessary by the withdrawal from school of Captain D. H. Leffel, was the result of a unanimous request of the players on the squad that such action be taken.

Firestone well deserved the honor. He is a Senior and during his entire course has been an athletic enthusiast, having won the block letter in football, basketball and baseball.

Tech Defeated

Plaid Five Put Up Stiff Fight, Losing 34-22.

Allegheny again carried off honors on the basketball floor last Saturday night when the fast Carnegie Tech five was defeated 34-22. From the very beginning the game was hard fought, although the local team seemed to have the advantage in getting away with the ball. When it came to shooting, however, the absence of "Dick" Baker was keenly felt and some excellent shots were missed.

Quite a little excitement prevailed on the hill last week as to the possible outcome of the game. Tech was reported to have a winning team and up to that time prospects were somewhat dim for the gold and blue artists. The large number of new men did not, however, prove a barrier to an Allegheny victory.

Soon after the beginning of the game, Hawk made the first basket following it with a foul. Tech had already made a basket and followed it with a second and a foul which served to arouse the locals, who pulled up and played fast until the half ended 17-8 for Allegheny.

The second half was not so fast as the first although the same number of points was scored. Individual playing and poor shots kept the score below the usual Allegheny record.

For Allegheny Firestone and Nichols were the stars. The former made three baskets and was speedy in his passing. Nichols, a Freshman who appeared in his first game, did some fine steady playing. His long suit seemed to be getting out of a crowd and dropping the ball in the basket. Croasmun and Hawk both played a good game although their shooting was not up to the standard. Captain Leffel, who made his last appearance in an Allegheny suit, also played a consistent game. Mates and Lindberg, subs, made themselves prominent on the floor.

The Tech team did some fine passing and guarding. Their ability, however, was seen in the fact that they scored twenty-two points, even though guarded very closely. Coach Stewart has predicted a successful season for them. Their star game was played by Jordan at forward who scored four out of the seven field goals. Keltz, at center, also played a noticeable game.

Following is the lineup and summary:

Allegheny, 34.	Tech, 22.

Annual Play

Duzer Du Selects "The School for Scandal." Mrs. Connor the New Coach.

At a meeting of the Duzer-Du Dramatic Club held last Thursday noon it was decided to have Mrs. Harry Dean Connor, of Oil City, coach the cast for "The School for Scandal," the immortal Sheridan comedy which will be staged by the club this year. All persons who intend to compete for parts in the cast are expected to be on hand at a mass meeting in the Duzer-Du room in Bentley Hall this afternoon at two o'clock.

The decision of the play for the annual production was practically made before the Christmas recess, but has never before been publicly and officially announced because of the incompleteness and indefiniteness of the plans of the club in regard to the production and also because of the faculty regulation which requires that it be ratified by that body before final plans are made. Now, however, preparations are being completed for the staging of the classic at the Academy of Music on March 17, which date has traditionally become the time for the annual Duzer-Du performance.

Mrs. Harry D. Connor, who is to have charge of the selection of the cast as well as the direction of the rehearsals is a woman of more than a little ability and reputation in dramatic work. She is a graduate of the Emerson School of Oratory in Boston and has also done post-graduate work at that institution. She has appeared extensively in concert and stage work, having made vaudeville her specialty for some time. She is at present occupied in giving private lessons in dramatic expression and has many students in this vicinity.

At the mass meeting held this afternoon the candidates for parts in the play will be addressed by the officials of the club; the work of competing will be explained and the parts will be outlined, so that competition may be held next week before Mrs. Connor. It is the expectation of the club that an unusually large number of men will appear for places on the cast, since there will be places for twenty-five or thirty men, including the understudies.

There are sixteen characters in the play. The characteristics of the main roles are given here:

Sir Peter Teazle is a kind old gentleman, infatuated with his extremely young wife, who continually rouses his anger by her disregard of his authority. Yet he says: "I doubt I love her or I would never bear this."

Sir Oliver Surface is a shrewd uncle who, in the guise of a city broker, chooses his heir.

Sir Benjamin Backbite is an effeminate weakling who poses as a poet and falls vainly in love with Maria.

Sir Harry Bumper is the rousing, lively colleague of Charles, who is always in for the life of his friend.

Joseph Surface is a two-face, pretentious hypocrite who, by his sentiments, wins some and by his intrigues others, and whose real character is known only to a few until the intrigues are revealed.

Charles Surface is the younger brother, sowing his wild oats and yet is frank, honest and generous to a fault, through which traits he becomes the heir of the wealthy Sir Oliver and wins the fair Maria.

If you run a Christmas ad at Easter time, you are doing an injustice to yourself and to us. We not only believe that advertising pays. We believe that advertising in THE CAMPUS pays. We ask you to treat your investment in this paper with the same seriousness that you regard the placing of an order for goods. We try to make your ad attractive in appearance, to give it prominence and attract attention to it. ALMA MATER.

It is hard to conceive of a timelier message than that brought by Dr. Smith at the first chapel service of the new year. The Alma Mater ideal is one that should make an undeniable appeal to every Alleghenian. What is possible at Princeton is undoubtedly possible here. Our glorious successes in the past have been as Dr. Smith said due to the spirit of loyalty to Alma Mater. Any honor to come to Allegheny in the future must come from the realization of the claim of Alma Mater upon every individual student.

The spirit of Alma Mater is still dormant. It has possibilities yet undreamed of here. We want it in college politics so that non partisanship and good feeling will reign supreme; we want it in our outside relations in order that we may be feared and respected by our rivals; we want, in fact, the spirit of Alma Mater to transcend every other interest until our Allegheny is supremely great. In athletics, in oratory and debate, in dramatics, in religious work, in literary activity, everywhere we want the spirit of loyalty to Alma Mater to be a ruling passion.

Not only should Alma Mater dominate the aspirations of the undergraduate but it should direct the achievements of the alumnus. Only the truest realization of the ideals inculcated at college will suffice to bring honor to Alma Mater. A college is judged ultimately not by size of endowment or excellence of equipment, but by the type of manhood developed. Allegheny alumni are making enviable records for themselves in every field of achievement but the world needs many more. Those who do not prove their loyalty at college will hardly bring honor to their college after graduation. The bond of loyalty formed during undergraduate days should ever serve to cement all true sons of Allegheny in a fellowship for the common good.

THE WEARING OF THE GREEN.

There is no reason why Freshman girls ought not to wear green caps as well as their masculine class mates. Tradition demands that Freshmen of both sexes observe the upper class decree. But thus far, either the Freshman girls have not shown much disposal to wear the green, or our eyes have been dazzled into blindness by their radiant good looks. In short, the fair Freshies haven't worn the green caps and this is something they should do by all means if they are to preserve any semblance of respect for college tradition.

PASSING AWAY.

In less than six months the college has lost two men whose span of life covered nearly the entire period of her history. Dr. Hammett and Mr. Reynolds represented all that was best in the old Allegheny. They had, as it were, grown up with the institution and had been molded by her influence and had helped in turn to shape her destiny. Their death has left a vacancy which can never be filled and their names will be recorded in the front rank of Allegheny immortals.

"The old order changeth" but its influence abides with us. The Campus can have no better wish for the future generations of the college than that they prove true to the ideals of those who have gone and that they make their influence as potent for good as did the "grand old men" of former days.

Well Attended

Professor Swartley Leads Mission Study Class Thursday Evening.

A well attended meeting of the Mission Study class was held in the chapel on last Thursday evening at which the chapter on "The Superhuman Factor" was expounded by Professor Swartley, in the absence of Dr. Coburn, the regular leader of the class. Miss Bess Emery sang a sacred solo which added greatly to the impressiveness of the meeting. The talk given by Professor Swartley was scholarly in nature and was delivered with force and convincing power. He showed that of all the forces at work in the missionary fields at present the one which we could the least do without is the divine influence of God.

Professor Swartley said: "What is the greatest force at work at present in the mission fields throughout the world? The churches and missionary societies all do very good work and their influence is felt; the missionaries themselves accomplish much toward furthering the Kingdom of God; and there are many other influences of greater or lesser power which are taking part in the reformation of the heathen countries; but of all the forces, the greatest is the spirit of God. God is preparing the people of the earth for the work of men among them and also preparing men to preach the gospel. The power of the spirit of the Master is necessary to the work. Men may talk and preach but unless the Spirit of God is within them their work is in vain.

"God rules at all times the facts of history in the interest of His cause. Diplomacy and commerce are not always in the hands of godly men, but are frequently in control of men of un-Christian character, so that the influence of God is needed. The result of the Russian-Japanese war was that Korea received greater spiritual enlightenment. There was a remarkable religious advance as a result of the Boxer rebellion in China. Men can preach or write a book, but neither their preaching nor their writing will accomplish anything of itself. They must have God's holy spirit working in their lives.

"Many lives are sacrificed annually throughout the whole world because men are true to God. Of course there are what is known as 'rice Christians' who follow Christ because of the selfish good derived, but there are many who are living lives of altruistic sacrifice for God because they find strength and character in Christ's living they can find nowhere else."

There will be no meeting of the class on next Thursday because of the Glee Club recital to be held at the Stone church on that evening.

THE BAZAAR.

Published By Special Request. With all bills settled the treasurer of the Y. W. C. A. reports a clear profit of $150 from the recent bazaar.

The Young Women's Christian Association wishes to take this opportunity to express publicly its appreciation to all who patronized the bazaar and to all who so kindly contributed articles and gave donations. Not only did the college people respond, but many town friends and Meadville merchants were generous in contributing. It is hoped that increased patronage of these firms will help to repay them for their generosity.

The following is a complete list of all firms which gave contributions. Those firms which used the bazaar to sell goods at a commission are not included:

Miller and Derfus, groceries; McMahon and Blair, groceries; Robinson, groceries; Starr, groceries; Harpst, groceries; Ballinger & Siggins, drugs; Easterwood, drugs; Burch's, confections; Frisk, confections; Yocum, art goods; Thompson, art goods; Sutton, dry goods; Fuller, dry goods; Meadville Dry Goods Co.; Eldred, leather goods; Brownell, shoes; Kirby's Department Store, The Tribune Publishing Co. and The Messenger Publishing Co.

Forensic Activity

Approach of Class Debates and Wakefield Contest Awaken Interest.

The forensic interests of the college are attracting a major portion of the attention of the college body at present on account of the nearness of the coming platform events. The Senior team, composed of Barkley, Small and Hillman will meet Hunt, Sheffer and Thomas, the Junior team, on Tuesday evening, January 24. Van Horn, Calvin and Galbraith, of the Sophomore class, are scheduled to meet a team from the Freshman class next Friday evening. The Freshman team is to be selected from the six candidates elected by the class: Wicks, Brigham, McGowan, Evans, Shoup and Beck. The preliminaries for the two intercollegiate teams will not take place until after examinations, probably about February 10 and 11. The probable date of the 'varsity' debates will be the last Friday in March. Although four of last year's six are in college there has been ample opportunity for the development of new 'varsity' material and it is expected that some of the old men will have to step lively for places on the teams.

The question, "Resolved: that Congress should adopt an income tax, not apportioned among the states according to the population," is a live subject and full of public interest at the present time. In previous years the question chosen has been one so full of technicalities that the average person is uninterested.

Pitt and Wooster are sure to be alive to all the possibilities of the question and will prove dangerous rivals at all times. In all probability a team will be sent to Pittsburgh while Wooster will come here. Not only will the intercollegiate teams be well matched but the two class debates promise to be of sufficient interest to draw large crowds. The Junior and Senior teams are composed of two 'varsity' debaters and an alternate. Underclass spirit always runs high at the annual debate and this year when both teams are made up of men who have shown up strongly in Forum this should be especially marked. A small admission fee will be charged but the season tickets which will be put on sale this week will be honored. The proceeds go toward defraying the expenses of the debating trip and help buy books for the debaters.

Wakefield Oratorical Contest.

A notice has been posted by the secretary of the oratorical association that names of contestants for the Wakefield Oratorical contest should be handed in at once. The last day for submitting orations will be Thursday, January 26. The contest itself is scheduled for February 9. Each contestant is required to have three typewritten copies of his oration made and turned over to the secretary, F. H. Callahan. The winner of this contest represents the college in the intercollegiate contest to be held in April, and is also rewarded by a fifty dollar prize.

Whether this contest will be continued another year will depend on the interest shown by the students. For several years interest in oratory has been lagging and the Class of '90 contest has already been discontinued. Several good men have signified their intention of entering but the field is still open. There are a number of men in college who should submit orations. Not only is the future of the contest at stake but the honor of old Allegheny demands that the intercollegiate medal shall once more be captured by a local orator. The season Oratorical Association tickets will admit to the contest.

CALAMITOUS END.

A little roll of paper, neatly done up in black ribbon—indicative of the deep mourning—represented a vast bulk of Senior Treasuries and in representation of them was appropriately eaten up by flames at the Senior tea on last Thursday afternoon. The ceremony was attended by speeches commemorating the event. J. W. Barkley, president of the class, presided at the urn and applied the match. It might even be said that he "performed the last sad rites," for sad they were. What a mournful sight to see a cherished Senior thesaurus, the cause of much pleasure and days and nights of joy, consumed by fire!

Miss Spalding recited a clever parody poem composed for the occasion, while short speeches were made by Miss Saeger, C. E. Hilborn and A. N. Dunsmore.

Plans are being made by the different classes in college to have a complete interclass basketball schedule this year. It is the purpose to have each class play a series of games and thus to decide the championship. The Seniors have selected G. W. Mead as their manager, the Sophomores, S. S. Townsend and the Freshmen, Paul Johnston. The Juniors have failed to elect their manager, however, and it has been impossible so far to arrange the schedule. Practice has already been started by the Sophomore and Freshman teams.

The first meeting of the Mission Study class in the new year, Thursday evening, January 6, was addressed by Bishop M. C. Harris, of Japan and Korea. The chapter in the text book was visually outlined by Dr. Coburn at the beginning of the meeting after which Bishop Harris was introduced. He spoke at length on the life of missionaries in the Far East and told graphically of many experiences he had had in foreign fields. He impressed upon his hearers the significance of the rapidly with which Christianity is taking hold in heathen lands.

Bishop Merriman C. Harris, 74, of Japan, had charge of the first Student Volunteer meeting after vacation on Thursday afternoon, January 6. In line with the Band's study for this year, he gave a graphic account of the practical side of a missionary's life in Japan. His talk was exceedingly interesting, and was illustrated in a clever way either by some personal experience or by an anecdote. At the meeting this week the subject of "Missionaries and Their Associations" was discussed by Miss Katherine Wheeling. A letter from Miss Rachel Cousins was read.

Forum met last Thursday afternoon for an important session in Philo-Franklin Hall. Speaker Van Horn presided. Officers for the coming four weeks were elected as follows: Speaker, P. M. Hillman; Speaker pro-tem, C. L. Nevins; Secretary, P. A. Beck; Sergeant, W. H. Wells. The 'varsity question was enthusiastically debated, not only by the appointed speakers but by every one in the house, no impartial listeners remaining to vote at the close of the discussion. Dalzell and Wieler upheld the affirmative, while Shoup and Hillman spoke for the negative.

Opportune Visitors

An Unusual Series of Talks by Distinguished Visitors, Alumni and Professors.

Chapel services last week were especially interesting on account of the number of visitors who attended and gave short talks. On Wednesday, Drs. Smith and Breed were both present. Dr. Breed returned to America for a short time during the holidays and stayed over for a chapel service. He gave a short talk on his experiences in Germany and Italy during the past winter and commented extensively on the different foods of the countries visited. He bewailed the fact that pie was so scarce. Dr. Breed presented a slightly different appearance than when last seen on the campus. A black mustache altered his facial expression to such an extent that many of his friends almost failed to recognize him.

Dr. Crawford introduced Dr. Smith to the new students and in a few words told of his desire to have him return next fall as the head of the history department.

Dr. Smith gave an interesting account of Peking Day at Princeton telling of John R. Mott and Woodrow Wilson. He dwelt on what Princeton means to the average student of that school. He compared the love of Alma Mater at Allegheny and Princeton, emphasizing the requirement that Princeton makes of its graduates. Every graduate feels it his duty to do something for his country and thus benefit his Alma Mater.

On Thursday, Bishop M. C. Harris, '74, gave a short talk on Korea. He is in this country at the present time preparing for a silver jubilee of the entrance of Christianity into Korea. Bishop Harris is one of Allegheny's favored alumni and one who never loses an opportunity to visit his old college.

Tuesday of this week, Rev. D. G. Latshaw, '95, was the visitor. He is international secretary of the railroad Y. M. C. A. He told of his work among the railroad men and of its allurements for college graduates. During the day several meetings were held at which he discussed his work more fully.

ANNUAL PLAY.

Crabtree is a social gentleman of the characteristic type and a member of the scandalous society.

Rowley is the faithful old servant of the Surface household, whose keenness and honesty make him a valuable asset to Charles and Sir Oliver.

Careless is another of the "good fellows" of Charles' society.

Moses is the Jew who does everything to bring Charles into the proper sense of his extravagance. He is a schemer and a money lender.

Snake is an intriguer with Joseph and Lady Sneerwell and is detected in a matter little short of forgery.

Lady Teazel, the hardest female role of the play, is a country girl who has become a woman of fashion through her marriage. She puts on all the airs and fopperies incumbent upon one entering upon society for the first time, mixes in the scandalous society, laughs at Sir Peter's attempt at authority, and puts him in a rage or in a high humor, as her mood desires.

Lady Sneerwell is an elderly woman of fashion, the entertainer and promulgator of the scandalous society and a clever artificer.

Mrs. Candour is another one of the set bent upon keeping all the scandals in circulation.

Maria is a modest young lady in love with Charles and disgusted with the talk and fashions of the society.

resentation on the board. No formal action was taken by the board but it was shown that that body was unanimously in favor of such a move.

President Crawford was also requested to make a trip to the Pacific coast in the near future to look after the interests of the college. In addition to the work of raising the endowment, he will meet the alumni, in the central west and on the coast, regarding alumni representation.

Perhaps the most important matter of business to come before the board was the question whether or not Alden Academy should continue. Dr. Crawford stated that during the year the attendance at the academy had decreased, particularly on account of the growing efficiency of the high schools throughout the state. The matter was discussed at length and it was brought out that other institutions were doing away with the preparatory work. A vote was taken at which it was decided to abolish Alden Academy after this year. The building will be used for the department of chemistry and will be known as Alden Hall. Arter House will be used as a college dormitory.

This meeting was practically open to the public and nothing was kept from the public. Several Pittsburgh newspaper reporters were present.

SENIORS VS. RAZORS.

One cold night last December when the much abused mercury was about as far down as it goes in this life, Hilborn was walking briskly across the campus cuddled up in an overcoat. He was on the way to Barkley's house and as he walked he longed for something in his college life to relieve his monotonous hum drum existence. What a cold night it was! And how the biting air did cut his face! Oh, for the warmth of the departed whiskers.

Barkley, too, wanted something to stir and thus the two decided that no longer would the Seniors endure the piercing pain of the north wind on their tender cleanly-shaven faces. And so the anti-barber paper appeared.

The girls say it is awful, perfectly horrid. It is further said—but as for the positive truth we cannot affirm—that the be-mustached men can get no dates for basket ball games or anything else. A terrible predicament! They like the girls but cannot part with the whiskers.
