My dear Mr. Langsam:

Please do not think that I was not interested in your letter of July 29. I was, but at the time I was away and although I have been back in New York for a few days I have been so exceedingly busy that I have not had a chance to write you before.

Most certainly, I should like a copy of the Populist Poems which you report. I think you might send them all to me. They probably cannot be used in full but they may be in part, and, at all events, the book would make a worth while item in the bibliography.

The book is going - but going slowly, such have been the demands on me in other ways. I am just about off for a holiday and when I get back in September, I hope you will come down some afternoon for a talk.

Of course you will send me a bill for the poems.

Sincerely yours
