

March 2, 1921

Messrs. Payot & Cie,
106 Boulevard Saint-Germain,
Paris, France.

My dear Mr. Payot:

I was pleased and interested to receive this week the two copies of "La Règle d'or des Affaires" which you were good enough to send. I had begun to think that it was quite possible that you had decided not to publish the translation, so that the appearance of the book was all the more of a pleasure.

I am glad that Bertrand Thompson was good enough to write a foreword for the volume.

I think that before I left Paris I sent you three or four addresses of friends to whom I should like to have copies of the book go. Lest they have been overlooked, I am writing them and adding two. Will you not see that the books are sent and the bill mailed to me here? I will immediately send check for them.

M. Charles de Freminville
18, rue Pierre-Curie

M. Henri Le Chatelier
75, rue Notre Dame de Champ

M. Charles Siegnorbos
36, rue des Ecoles

M. Charles Borgeaud
University of Geneva,
Geneva, Switzerland

Mr. Wickham Steed
Editor of the London Times
London, England

Hoping that your faith in the book will be justified, believe me, my dear Mr. Payot,

Very sincerely yours,