

New York, November 27, 1917.

My dear Mr. Turner:

I don't know what has happened to a letter sent you from the Hospital at least four weeks ago, in which I said that my engagements with the Alkahest ran up to the 9th or 10th, and that I must go back to Washington after that. I said that I would go to you in March as you wrote me, as you wrote me in October would be all right. I can go at any time after the 10th of March. I go to Mr. Morgan after leaving you. Will that be satisfactory?

Yours sincerely,

Mr. M. C. Turner,
