Mr. Parker Speaks On U.S. Relations

Robert Parker, noted lecturer and correspondent, spoke last Monday evening to a near capacity audience in Ford memorial chapel on the question of United States relations with Great Britain and Russia. His topic was "America's Far-flung Responsibilities." The lecture was followed by a question-discussion period.

Mr. Parker pointed out that two friction points in our relations with Britain and Russia are the two areas, the Near East, or the Balkans, and the Far East. He painted many pictures of government in these two sections. Mr. Parker also feels that our relations with Russia should not be backsliding, but that the U. S. should be definite in its policies. The United States should have a "this far and no further" attitude.

In our relations with Britain he advocates an attitude of looking out for the U. S. first—an attitude that is devoid of sentimentality. He believes war is imminent within the next 12 months if the United States does not win the peace.

Mr. Parker is a graduate of Union college, Schenectady, N. Y. He was first connected with the "New York Journal" and then the Associated Press, for whom he worked in Paris from 1933 to 1939. He rode into Warsaw with Hitler's army and lived in Budapest for two years. Mr. Parker is the author of Headquarters Budapest and is now working on a book concerning relations between the United States and Russia.

A. C. C. Will Hold Theater Party On Friday

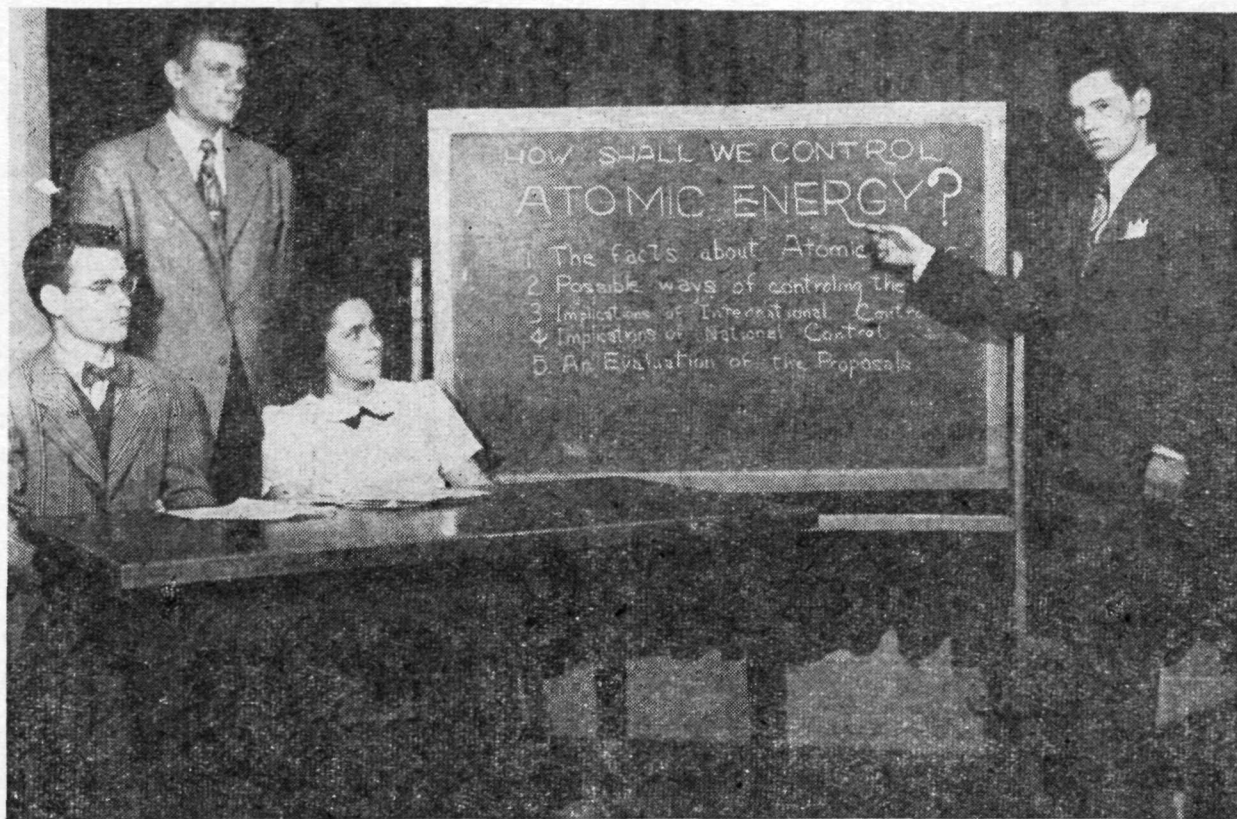

"Brigham Young", starring Tyrone Power, is the film for the all-college theater party sponsored by A.C.C. which will be held on Friday, March 1, at 7:30 p.m. in the Playshop.

Eltie Smith, '48, was named head of the A.C.C. carnival concession at a meeting in Cochran lounge last Sunday. The next A.C.C. meeting will be held on Sunday, March 10, at 3:15 p.m.

Miss Louise Young, field secretary of the American Friends service committee, was guest of the Christian Council last week. She talked to all interested Allegheny students about service projects of the organization she represents.

Service projects, held in the summer, include public health work in Mexico, inter-racial work camps in southern United States, student and industry groups, peace caravans, and work in mental hospitals in Philadelphia. In addition, there are projects for student speakers to travel from town to town during eight-week periods. Anyone interested who was unable to contact Miss Young during her visit here may contact either Joanne Rothrock, '46, or Rae Marsteller, '46, for further information.

Atomic Energy Will Be Discussed

"How Shall We Control Atomic Energy?" is the question to be discussed tonight at 8:15 in the Playshop at the Allegheny Speaks forum. Outstanding speakers from Geneva college and several members of Allegheny student body will lead this discussion, sponsored by the Philo-Franklin Union under the direction of Mr. Theodore F. Nelson.

Eugene Bray, president of the Geneva college student body and president of the Pennsylvania state association of college debaters, will be one guest speaker. John Budimir, a returned veteran and an outstanding Geneva speaker will also participate. The discussion will be presented in several sections. James Weber, '46, chairman, will open with facts about atomic power. Melvin Furman, '47, will summarize and evaluate the discussion. Raymond McCall, '49, will present the possible ways of controlling atomic power. Speaking in favor of national control of atomic power will be Eugene Bray of Geneva, with John Budimir upholding international control. Following the forum will be a discussion open to the audience.

Swomley Will Speak In Assembly, March 6

An expert on conscription and international relations, Mr. John Swomley will speak at the March 6 assembly at 11:00 a.m. in Ford memorial chapel.

As editor of Conscription News, he is well informed in political developments in relation to conscription. Mr. Swomley, the son of a Methodist minister, was educated at Dickinson college in Carlisle, Pennsylvania, and has received graduate degrees from Boston university and Boston School of Theology.

He is a former president of the National Council of Methodist Youth and is now associate secretary of the Fellowship of Reconciliation where, for the past six years, he has been working with the youth program.

A round table discussion in the English seminar room at 4:00 p.m. Wednesday, March 6, with Mr. John Swomley conducting, is being planned.

Music will be presented at the vesper program Sunday, March 3, at 4:30 p.m. Miss Dorothy Benfield, instructor in voice, will sing. Mrs. Margrethe Hokanson, instructor in music, will play the organ and a student choral group will participate.

Wings and Props Plans Survey

A survey to determine the interest of students in aviation instruction is being planned by the Wings and Props aviation club and the college administration.

Questionnaires will be given to dormitory proctors asking how many students would be interested in taking a course in flying, and the maximum amount they would be able to pay to obtain a pilot's license.

The present cost for the 35-hour pilot license requirement is about $270 at the Meadville airport. This could be reduced if a reasonable number of students took flying through Allegheny.

Andrew Mihalic, '46, president of Wings and Props stated that students interested in joining the club are invited to a meeting, Wednesday, March 6, on the second floor of Alden hall.

Wings and Props is planning a concession for the A.U.C. carnival on March 9.

Recently elected to membership in the Philo-Franklin union, honorary debate group, was Maxine Taylor, '48.

Twelve Graduate From Adult Speech Course

Twelve adult students from the Meadville area graduated recently from the second adult speech course offered by Allegheny college. Conducted by Mr. Theodore F. Nelson, the course cannot be continued this semester as formerly planned because of increased undergraduate enrollment.

Mr. Nelson reports that the adults were highly motivated, showed great interest in their work and compared scholastically with undergraduate students. Most of the adults did not have a college background, but all have received high school education. They felt the need of additional speech training to aid them in business, personnel work, industrial and religious pursuits.

The course was practical, concerned with delivering speeches, rather than theoretical. It is planned to continue the course next fall.

C. M. A. Presents Miss Heidt

Winifred Heidt, American contralto, recently returned from a successful opera season in Mexico City, will be presented by the Civic Music Association next Tuesday, March 5 at 8:15 p.m. in the Meadville high school auditorium.

With every appearance, this young artist continues to strengthen the excellent impression she made on her first appearance on the Metropolitan Auditions of the Air several years ago.

Before leaving for Mexico City, this past summer, Detroit-born Miss Heidt had concluded 60 operatic appearances in the United States, which included five consecutive performances in "Aida" in Pittsburgh with the Philadelphia La Scala opera company, and subsequently in "Carmen" in the Hollywood Bowl.

The attractive contralto has established something of a record during the past year by giving more than 100 volunteer concerts for the USO camp shows. She sang for soldiers, sailors, marines, nurses—every branch of the armed forces throughout the country. Moreover, she was the first volunteer artist from the concert field to go overseas to "sing for the boys", having made a two-months' entertainment tour of the Panama bases, as a member of a camp show variety unit.

After Miss Heidt's performance in New York City, a review for the New York Herald Tribune said:

"The finest single vocal achievement of the evening was indubitably that of Winifred Heidt. If there was a better voice around, I have not heard it. Miss Heidt poured forth sumptuous, flawlessly projected tones lavishly."

Her program for the evening is given below:

Plans Are Made For A. U. C. Carnival

Plans for the A.U.C. carnival are progressing rapidly. General chairman, Anne Hartman, '47, reports that the decorations committee, headed by Miss Dorothy Deach and Charles Elliott, '47, has chosen for a theme a gay and colorful Mexican fiesta.

The concessions committee under Miss Blair Hanson and Vera Lee Hampson, '47, has organized penny arcades, ball pitching, dart throwing, roulette wheels and all kinds of food booths to interest carnival-goers. Students interested in analyzing hand-writing are asked to see Anne Hartman.

It is requested that all financial reports be turned in immediately to Mr. Herbert S. Rhinesmith or Sophie Morrow, '46.

VESPER, ASSEMBLY POLL TAKEN

by Helen Creeger, '46

The desire of the chapel committee this year has been to make the new voluntary program work, and to give the student body what it wants, in so far as possible, both in Wednesday assemblies and Sunday vespers. The purpose of this article is to register the opinions of various students on the success or failure of the present program, both to create renewed interest in this phase of college life, and also to aid the chapel committee in making the program more appealing.

1. "I have not been a regular assembly-goer; somehow, I seem to migrate to the grill around 11:00 on Wednesdays. However, when I did go, I wasn't bored. Except for the musical part of vespers, I find them rather dull. A little more publicity wouldn't hurt—as a suggestion, how about a plug at the end of 'Arsenic' each week? Everybody reads that."—Doris Larsen, '46.

2. "I go to both assembly and vespers because I feel they are a necessary part of college life. We need a religious service on the campus; perhaps if we had better support, we wouldn't mind asking important men to come. At times, the assembly programs are inadequate; they should be something worthwhile, rather than merely entertaining. I advocate more faculty speakers."—Marian McKee, '46.

3. "As a returned Alleghenian who has seen both compulsory and voluntary chapel programs, I think we should go back to the old method. Not only should assembly programs be compulsory, but they should be more frequent—at least twice a week. I think the vesper program should be continued on Sunday on a voluntary basis, however."—Robert Johnson.

4. "I go to vespers only when I don't go to church. For me it should take the place of church, and therefore, should be more like a regular church service. Too many of them have been cut and dried, hardly religious. I think we should have more music and more variety. I always go to assembly because I feel it should be supported as a part of Allegheny life."—Ruth Jones, '49.

5. "I go to assembly because it is voluntary, and I find myself enjoying it—I never did when it was compulsory."—Gerald Liebman, '48.

6. "I don't go to vespers because I go to my own church in the morning; if vespers are to be religious services, they should be held in the morning. I do go to assembly, because Pat tells me to, and partly because it's a good place for faculty and students to get together. I do think the programs could be made more worthwhile, however."—John Hawes, '46.

7. "I go to vespers occasionally, but I think they are too cold. I think they should be more like a worship service, more ritualistic. The assembly programs aren't bad this year, but there's always room for improvement."

—Marjorie Haslun, '46.

8. "I go to assembly and vespers to see who is with whom, and to see who isn't there—the latter is almost an impossible task to calculate."—Ellen Wiggins, '46.

9. "I go to assembly quite regularly and find it better than last year's on the whole. I might suggest we have more and better speakers, both for Wednesday and Sunday."—Gloria Keller, '46.

10. "Assembly is a worthwhile enterprise, if for no other reason than that it gathers together unfamiliar faces. Compulsory assembly used to assemble those who otherwise wouldn't have attended, resulting in uninterested, disturbing factors—N.G. (Translation: No Good)"—Paul McGrew, ex-'46.

11. "I go to assembly, but mostly it's a habit and I have a class immediately following it, so why go back to the dorm? I must admit that I'm not too enthusiastic, but the programs aren't bad. To make vespers work, however, we need super programs; habit won't work there."—Betty Crabbs, '47.

12. "I do not go to vespers because Sunday afternoon is an awkward time; that's a work day for me. I think another week-day program would be better."

—Eilanna Bent, '46.

GET BUSY OR GET OUT

A lot of horseplay and idleness go on behind the doors of most American colleges; Allegheny is no exception to the rule. In former days, perhaps, we could afford to wink at this and say that fun and good times are an important part of college life, as indeed they are if graduates are to be prepared to enjoy living. There is, however, no place for the time-waster.

First and foremost, colleges were founded with education as the aim in view. At present there is a priority on education. Neither Allegheny nor any other institution of higher learning can afford to be bogged down by pleasure-seekers and idlers. Perhaps, that is one reason why President Schultz in his recent message to welcome the new students placed so much emphasis on scholarship.

The number of students going to college from preparatory schools is increasing steadily. In addition, the program for veterans makes college education available to many men and women who would have not sought it without government aid.

A recent estimate submitted to the House of Representatives by the Committee on Education shows that by 1950, only four years from now, college enrollment will probably reach the four million mark, which is more than double the number of students attending in 1940. Thus, we see that with normal pre-war facilities colleges are not able to cope with the problem created by the increased demand for education.

To complicate matters even more, housing construction on most campuses has been at a standstill during the war and it is only recently that expansion has again become possible. Teaching staffs are taxed heavily because the inadequate number of graduate students in some fields in recent years has limited the supply of available young instructors. Many former college teachers, including several on leave of absence from our own campus, may remain in the service or in government work for several years to come. Allegheny, like most other colleges, is feeling the repercussions of this broad problem, and has been forced to close its doors to veterans and other prospective students who are seriously seeking a college education.

It hardly seems necessary to point out that those who are dilly-dallying with the great privileges of education—those who consider Allegheny primarily as a means of passing four years in pleasant indolence—are at least in a great part responsible for this huge backlog of men and women in whose faces the door of education is being slammed.

From a broader viewpoint, the potentialities for a better America would be most limitless if a way could be found to give higher education to this mass of youth who are seeking it. Appropriations have been made to assure the homecoming G. I. this privilege. But money is not all that is required. A place must be made in the classroom for the veteran and for the student from the preparatory school who are intent upon acquiring an education. A place must be made for them at Allegheny.

At present, space is being filled by students who are merely dabbling in education. Those whose interest in the academic side of a college education is limited to sitting idly in class and absorbing the minimum amount of knowledge would be more usefully employed outside the walls of all colleges. The time has come to put scholarship first, fun second, and idleness outside the realm of college life.

Get busy, Alleghenians, or get out!

Review of Lincoln Speech

Dr. Louis A. Warren, who has spent many years in an extensive study of the life of Abraham Lincoln, spoke in the Craig room Sunday afternoon concerning the effect of Mary Todd on her husband, Abraham Lincoln.

Dr. Warren was aided and encouraged in his research by Miss Ida Tarbell who had corresponded with him since 1922. In his weekly publication, "Lincoln Lore", Dr. Warren paid tribute to her scholarship and her perseverance in the collection of Lincolnalia which is now on display in the Reis library.

According to Dr. Warren, Mary Todd was a lady of culture and exceptional brilliance. Dr. Warren traced her lineage back to Mr. John Todd of Virginia who was instrumental in establishing the Transylvania university, known as the "Athens of the West." Mary's father, Robert Todd, was a graduate of the university, and was also interested in education. Mary was a brilliant student and was given a careful education at Ward's school for girls and later at a French seminary, Madame Montell's select school for girls. Undoubtedly, the education which she acquired had a great effect on Lincoln's own learning, for it was Mary who "polished" him both culturally and intellectually. Henry Clay, who was a close friend of the Todds, greatly influenced Mary's political views. Through him, she became acquainted with the most influential men of the time, which may have enabled her to see early the qualities in Lincoln which became apparent in his career.

Mary Todd met Abraham Lincoln in 1839 when she decided to live with her sisters in Springfield, Illinois. Lincoln was impressed with her brilliance and after a brief courtship they became engaged. Here, Dr. Warren emphasized that the Ann Rutledge-Abraham Lincoln romance was absolutely fictional, and that Lincoln scholars regard the story as legendary. The Lincolns spent their first year at Globe tavern, paying $4.00 a week for accommodations. After the birth of their first son, Robert Todd Lincoln, they rented a cottage where their second son, William, was born. Dr. Warren stressed the fact that during this period before the presidency, Mary Todd brought to the Lincoln home an atmosphere of culture which had a lasting effect on the president.

Philippine Recollections

"Darn it! I knew that finesse wouldn't work. Sorry we went set, Pat: see you at Brooks at dinner."

Outside again, I find myself wading through drifts of snow and ice. The irony of it all—gripping because of snow and ice when three months ago I griped because of mud and rain.

"Yeah, it's quite a town", they would say. Everybody had talked of San Jose, Mindoro. "What's it got to offer?" you ask. Great day—a theater, a USO including white hostesses, and a Manila liquor shop! What more could you ask! Then and there I decided to include San Jose in my perambulations. A metropolis, no less, was my expectation.

Trudging into San Jose a few days after the representative of the chamber of commerce had duly introduced me to the locality, I was more than a little disappointed. My olfactory senses were attacked by the acme of all odors. Filipino sanitation methods aren't the most up-to-date. Life at the White House was not ancholy. After the death of William, her mental condition rapidly became worse. She was subject to frequent attacks of hysteria, and was not responsible for her actions. It is unfortunate that historians choose this period of her life to expose her as a wild creature who complicated Lincoln's too busy life. Dr. Warren feels that there is every indication that Lincoln enjoyed a happy home life, and that, until Mary Todd was actually declared a lunatic, she offered her husband sympathy and understanding, remaining as the greatest single factor in his development.

Dr. Warren concluded his talk with a story about a small girl who noticed a wedding ring of unusual size on her grandmother's finger. The child remarked that her mother had only a small band. The grandmother said that when she was married, wedding rings were made to last a lifetime. Such a ring was Mary Todd's, and inside was inscribed:

"From Abraham Lincoln to Mary; Love is Eternal."

On display now at the Reis library is material written by Dr. Warren and the Lincoln room which contains Miss Ida Tarbell's collection, available to those who are interested in furthering the study of Lincoln.

easy for the First Lady. Her southern cousins promptly ostracized her as a traitor, and she was accused of spying for the Confederate army. She found herself devoid of friends, and grew increasingly melancholy. Pigs and chickens appeared in doorways as often as little children. The latter were so dirty that had they crawled on all fours, it would have been difficult to distinguish between them and animals.

On my right was a structure resembling a barn and half a would-be silo. The other half lay strewn about the area in pieces no larger than my mother would use in her food-chopper. A B-25 had overshot Murtha strip six months previously, but no repair had been contemplated, nor would it be for another six months.

"Gimmee chewin' gum, Joe?" Three little Flips confronted me, clad only in Navy T-shirts, reaching barely to their navels, sans shoes. Peering at the shack from which they had streamed, I noticed a crudely constructed sign over the door: "Justice of the Peace." Adjoining the Justice's hut was 30 by 50 stretch of barbed-wire, enclosing several lean-tos—the jug. Covered only with loin-cloth were Rudyard Kipling's original Fuzzie-Wuzzies. Actually, they were the less civilized Filipinos from the hills who had probably been a bit eager with the use of their bolo knives.

"Golly, what's this?" Five little natives, one degree cleaner than the rest and wearing klacks on their flat feet, filed by with school slates. "Cigarette, Joe?" one little urchin begs. From nine to ninety, both males and females cherish the American nicotine.

"Hi, Paul! Aren't you tired of this snow?" I say. "Huh? . . . No. I think it's great!"

Doris is on the Kaldron staff and the social committee of A.W.S. She belongs to Alpha Delta Gamma social sorority.

Departmental Close-ups

(Editor's note: This is the first of interviews of department heads at Allegheny, conducted by the feature staff of Campus to present the requirement and goals of the various departments.)

One of the busiest faculty members on campus is Mr. Charles S. Miller, head of the education department. Until very recently he served as alumni secretary, and until this year he and other members of the psychology department helped to interview returning servicemen.

Mr. Miller says that the primary interest of the department is to train the best teachers possible for the public schools. He thinks that all students who intend to teach should be required to have a good basic general knowledge, as well as a thorough knowledge of psychology and its application to teaching methods. Psychology is required of all Allegheny students who intend to teach, besides specialization in the particular field in which they intend to teach. Unless a student has a good foundation in psychology, a certificate for teaching will not be given to him.

The main purpose of including psychology in the education program is to show the student how to understand public school children.

He must know young people and how to manage them, as well as know his academic subject matter.

It is Mr. Miller's opinion that a liberal education is the best of all types of education. People who are narrowly educated do not see things in as good a perspective as do people who have a broad general background. A person who specializes in one small field cannot understand all phases of teaching and group education, he believes.

The education department is also preparing elementary school teachers. "Because Allegheny's standards are high, qualified students here are the kind who naturally make excellent contributions to the educational system," Dr. Miller said.

Future teachers serve a sort of internship here during their four years of study. At the first semester of their senior year they have seminar discussions with members of the faculty in which all loose ends are gathered up and a perspective of their knowledge, and what it means to them, and how they can use it, is developed. In the second semester of his senior year, the student teacher is required to go out and actually teach in the Meadville public schools. Students thus learn to understand the school system and what it is attempting to do.

HALLZAPOPPIN'

Well, that's over with for the season.

Rush week, I mean. We can carry on ungarded conversation again and can stop trying to read in between the lines of small-talk. It's quite a relief. It means that I won't be obliged to put into effect any of the plans which my fraternity wanted me to use. It seems that my brothers wanted me to capitalize on my resemblance to Buddy May in order to put his fraternity into disfavor. It would have been fairly easy—I was greeted incessantly at our frat club smoker by rushees saying brightly, "Hiyah, Buddy!" Although what May would be doing at our rush party, I'm not sure. Anyway, it was figured out that I ought to go about the campus tripping up and knocking down rushees, then announcing, "I'm Buddy May!" Supposedly, I would be able to outrun anybody on campus. Too, that would oblige me not to reveal myself in my true fraternity colors until after the pledge class, thus gained, was initiated. Another idea was to kidnap May before a basketball game, a la Frank Meriwell, and have me go in as he, once I got on the floor, there would be an overwhelming prejudice against May and his fraternity, so thought my brothers. I don't know though; I might have turned out pretty well and turned the odds in his favor. No one can say I'm not a hotrock on the basketball floor; no one has ever seen me on one.

One cheerful note about rush week was the Beebe house upset. The Phi Gams and Phi Dels were crowding the Beebe house porch exchanging unpleasanties well before twelve o'clock Sunday. At the crack of noon all the Phi Dels and Phi Gams sinews tensed for the dash in, to be first at the rushees. At that crucial moment, Chuck Beisel of Phi Kappa Psi, opened the door (Continued on page 4)

by William Keener, 49

Leading the Gator parade this week are stellar guards Joseph "Rangy" McMillan and Frank Wigton.

Joe, a native of Ben Avon, where he starred on the Avonworth five for several years, is a member of Phi Gamma Delta social fraternity and is planning to major in finance and business administration. Before entering the naval air corps in 1943, McMillan led the Phi Gams to the intra-mural basketball crown. Returning to Allegheny in November of this year, he immediately proved himself to be the sparkplug of the Gator squad as well as an excellent point-maker. Small but aggressive, Joe has instilled fear in the hearts of all Allegheny opponents this season.

A constant threat to the scoreboard is lanky Tom Wigton. Entering Allegheny at semester, "Wiggie" displayed the fine basketball ability that amazed Gator spectators in his freshman and sophomore years. Tom was a member of the Frosh squad in '41, and was elevated to the varsity the next season where he continued until entering the army air corps in February of 1943. Discharged as a first lieutenant, he returned to Allegheny to continue his studies. Tom, a citizen of Butler, is following a pre-med course and plans to study optometry. He is a member of Phi Gamma Delta.

THE WOMAN'S SIDE

by Jean Foster

Although all you girls were miserable without males around the campus, you have to admit that they do cause complications. The men are once again to have an intra-mural basketball program which, coupled with varsity cage practice, will somewhat cripple W.A.A. plans for the women's basketball tournament. Practices for the women's contests may be cut down but games will be played if at all possible. All you cagers are urged to keep an eye on Brooks bulletin board for further developments.

New members of both minor and major Terrapin, who will be crowned either with glory or six feet of water in the annual water pageant which is to be put on some time in May, will be initiated on Thursday, February 28, at 7:00 p.m. in Montgomery pool.

New major Terrapin officers, elected at the last meeting, are: Tex Walters, '48, president; Carol Snell, '49, vice president; and Virginia Anderson, '48, secretary. Carol Snell will also act as the president of the minor Terrapins when the two groups don't meet together. The secretary of the minors is Hope Rowan.

GATORS CHALK UP TWO MORE WINS

Gators Soundly Defeat Thiel

Allegheny played host to a Thiel college basketball quintet last Wednesday night and promptly proceeded to trounce their visitors by a 51-37 score.

The Thiel aggregation really threatened but once, when in the last quarter Ed Suita and John Vitale put their team within three points of the Gators, whose attack was struck with temporary impency. It looked for a minute as if the Alleghenians were going to crack, but Bill Kirkpatrick suddenly got hot and the Thiel bid for supremacy was stifled. After that, the Garbark crew went on to run up a 14 point margin by the time the gun went off.

High scorer for the evening was wiry Bill Kirkpatrick whose 14 points in the second half broke a scoring slump of several games and enabled him to lead the field with 17 tallies on six buckets and five three throws. Following closely was the other forward, Dick Andres, whose six field goals and three fouls were good for an impressive 15 point total. Ed Suita (No. 6) was high point man for the visitors with 13 points.

Allegheny Swamps Grove City Quintet

Jumping off to an early lead, Allegheny's court quintet swamped an amazed Grove City club to the tune of 53-31 in a game played at Grove City before a full house last Saturday night.

Before game time, the Gators were rather doubtful as to the outcome of the evening's doings. Although potentially a superior ball club, they remembered being pushed for their five points to win over the Grovers a week before, and fully expected the going to be even tougher on the enemy court. However, it was evident soon after the opening jump that the boys were in for a good night as they racked up a ten point lead, thanks to excellent ball handling by the whole quintet and the scoring of the ram-paging Bill Kirkpatrick.

The Wolverines finally broke into the scoring column toward the end of the first period, but the quarter time layoff found them trailing by 16-4, a margin which the Gators improved on steadily as the game progressed. Andres, Kirkpatrick, Donaldson, Wigton, McMillan and Jack Beck played terrific ball all evening, and put on the best exhibition of shooting, passing and working the ball that Allegheny rooters have seen in many a day. They were really hitting on all cylinders, which was beautiful to watch.

One of the most interesting aspects of this struggle between rivals of ancient vintage was the personal note interjected by five boys from Butler. On the Allegheny team that metropolis (?) was represented by Tommy Wigton, Jack Beck and Bill Kirkpatrick, while the Grovers captain Carl Keifer and outstanding forward Kenny Myers are also Butler products. To make things even more interesting, Beck, Wigton, Keifer and Myers have been close friends from way back and have often played on the same ball club.

Individual scoring honors in the game again went to Bill Kirkpatrick who dumped in 15 points in the first half and ended up with a total of 18 on eight field goals and two foul shots. That made a total of 35 points in two games for Bill and brought his season up to 136 which is tops by far on the Allegheny squad. Tied for runner up honors were captain Lee Donaldson and guards Wigton and McMillan all of whom scored three buckets and one foul for seven points. Freshmen Bob Jack had five field goals to lead the Grovers with ten points.

from the inside and graciously invited the boys in.

Ever hear of Three Docs and a Dick? It's a morale quartet used to brace the basketball boys before the game. Dr. Byers, Dr. Edwards, Doc James and Dick Edwards comprise this outfit which harmonized the Gators to victory over Grove City last week-end. Available for private parties, lodge meetings and all functions where the best entertainment is desired. Remember the name Three Docs and a Dick—the quartet which put the harm in harmony.

The reconversion is a long and knotty problem, long after one has spent his bucks or exhausted his terminal leave. Len Komorny states, for example, that in the old days in the service he used his fountain pen only for writing letters, filling it once every six months. Now he takes business law and has to fill it every day.

I had thought that the G.I. blood had long since run thin in my veins until, just before exams, I saw a fellow going to class still wearing his uniform and gold leafs (until he could chase down some civies). I developed spasms in my saluting arm and found myself fighting to resist a greasy "Good morning, sir" smile. It was a close one! I could never face an alumnus again if I'd saluted a freshman!

A friend of mine, fresh out of the Air Force, wasn't too sure that this was still the Allegheny he used to know and found a number of fairly good indications of change. None too drastic, though, until he sat in on a discussion with his fraternity brothers concerning a dance at the house. He came out of the discussion in cold sweat, swearing that these were the words he had heard, "I think we ought to have the dance all right, but do we want a 'mixed' dance?"

Pass the reenlistment papers!

There will be no meeting of the History and Political science club this month. The next meeting of the club will be held in March at the regular time.

Well if you remember way back—in December—when you were first beginning to worry about exams, there were three teams, the Kappa Alpha Thetas, the Kappa Kappa Gammass, and the Alpha Gamma Deltas still fighting it out for this year's championship. The last week of January the play-offs were held with the Kappa Kappa Gammass defeating the Alpha Gamma Deltas in the semi-finals but losing to the Kappa Alpha Thetas by a close score in the finals.

Six members of Orchesis will put on a dance for the all-college carnival which is to be held on March 9. The dancers will be: Constance Cerman, '48; Geraldine Ware, '49; Elaine Nelson, '49; Joan Seigley, '48; Jane K. Miller, '48, and Patricia Perry, '47.
