Dear Katherine Lord:

As Mrs. Wolfe wrote you I was away when your letter of October 10th came to my desk. I am back again trying to work my way through a pile of accumulated mail.

It was good to hear from you. I wish I could help about the job. You are one of the people that ought to find a place without trouble because you are trained to do things and have experience back of you. I am convinced that it is the amateur that is doing more to choke recovery or effective reemployment than anything else. You have the equipment but of course the hitch is finding out where it is needed. If you were here I could give you the names of a few people to talk with. There is Adler who has the book shop and printing place in The Times Building; there is the Groller Club where there might be suggestions. But all of this means your being on the ground.

Of course the fact that you are available only in the winter months might be a handicap, yet again it might be an advantage.

At all events the best advice I can give you, my dear, is to come on and be sure if you do I shall make suggestions. The truth is, however, I expect you have a wider acquaintance than I have. You see I spend my days over my desk and do not too well know what is going on in the present days confused world.

You must have had a beautiful summer at Nantucket. The Fall has been marvelous in this part of the world but unfortunately I have missed most of it being tied here.

Let me know if you come on.

Miss Katherine Lord
