Dear J.M.T.

It was really good of you to tell me that my "elemental man" had not been forgotten! - I sent him to the Brooklyn Museum for the show they were to put on of 65 "small types" in bronze - or at the last moment I did not send the little group of the sea yearning "up the cliff to tell"

Something held it back - something wild & yet shy that remains deep down in my makeup - I cannot decide now if I could ever make that group in the large size - only if perhaps some bushy wooded pool would beckon to me when I was out alone, some night prowling under the moon! - I am grateful to the combat I had to make that man on the bank - & to you for writing me - Six weeks alone in these endless mountains has taught me a lot -
