Mrs. W. L. Johnson,
Decatur, Ill.

My dear Mrs. Johnson:

When I had the pleasure of meeting you a few weeks ago at Mrs. Barnes' tea in Decatur, you gave me a bit of Lincoln reminiscence that particularly appealed to me, and gave your authority as Dr. R. L. Walston.

I understood that Dr. Walston was in Bloomington, but when there a few days ago could find no such name in the directory; and Mr. Carpenter and others of whom I inquired did not seem to know him. Was I wrong in my name or in my place? It was such a nice story that I don't want to lose it.

Very sincerely yours,
