New York City.

Dear Miss Tarbell:-

I sent you copies of my letters to Mr. Lanier and Moffat, Yard & Co. I enclose you copies of the answers I received.

I will try to see you Monday ^{noon} ~~morning~~. If Mr. Lanier wants to have a talk with me, I think it would be a good deal better to have him come and see me, not that I feel at all punctilious about that kind of thing, but it puts the matter on a different footing. I do not understand Mr. Lanier's reference to "the subscription editions of two of the books". The little contract they ask Moffat, Yard to execute refers only to the "Life of Lincoln" and that is the only one I know about.

I wish you would let me have your McClure contracts again; I need them before me when I try to speak by the card.

Yours sincerely,

2 encs.
