

November 19, 1937

Dear Georgie Martin;

Your letter warmed my heart. It is surely worth being eighty to have so many kind messages from friends. It has been such fun and bewilderment to me that I want to pass on the condition to Viola Roseboro who will be eighty on December third. Won't you write her. Her address is 173 Rockland Avenue, New Dorp, Staten Island. And won't you ask Alice to write her. I think Alice knew her well although not as you did.

I would like to write you a long letter but at the moment I am rushing to get to the country for a few days where I want to put aside the remnants of a hateful cold that has been persuing me in spite of birthday greetings.

and Atwood

With love to you

Affectionately

1304 Eastern Parkway
Louisville, Ky.