Miss Edith Rowley,
Allegheny College,
Meadville, Pa.

Dear Miss Rowley:

I want to bother you for a little information. Do those first books which came to our library (they were from Bentley, were they not?) contain an edition of Dryden's Plutarch, or was there by any chance an edition of Dacier, a French edition? I am trying to find how early Plutarch found its way into American libraries.

I hope everything is going well with you. There was no chance at the Pittsburgh meeting to do anything about the library as I had hoped there would be, except in private where I had talked of what you had written me.

I am here for a month's work - a course on Biography in the University. It's a wonderful place and I know I am going to profit by this sunshine and air.

With all good wishes, believe me,

Sincerely yours,

Ida M. Tarbell
