EDITORIAL ROOMS
THE LADIES' HOME JOURNAL
PHILADELPHIA

December 10, 1912.

Dear Madam :

We take pleasure in inclosing to you our check for three hundred dollars in payment for your March department.

Very truly yours,

THE CURTIS PUBLISHING COMPANY.

Miss Ida L. Turbell

SPECIAL NOTICE

IT should be expressly understood that this payment is made not only for the contribution here stated, but carries with it an understanding that the author will give prompt and conscientious attention and reply to all letters from the readers of THE LADIES' HOME JOURNAL that may result therefrom, irrespective of the time of receipt of such letters after the publication of the article. The editor of the magazine lays special value upon this service to his readers, and if this is not clearly understood the author should communicate with the editor of THE LADIES' HOME JOURNAL before the remittance is accepted and the understanding thereby mutually entered into.
