Boston, Mass.

Dear Mr. Reynolds:

In talking yesterday with Mr. Young on the Texas Public Utility Problems in his time he spoke of an article by Russell Robb, published probably twenty five years ago in the Stone & Webster magazine - the subject and I think he said the title was Zero Value Franchises. Mr. Young seemed to think that you would have the article in your files. If so, will you lay it out where I can have a look at it next week?

Mr. Young also suggested that I see Frank Stearns. You were good enough to say that you would make an engagement for me with anyone I wanted to see. Would it be convenient for you to ask Mr. Stearns to talk with me?

I am making this request because I do not know the day or hour when you may have arranged for me to see Mr. Tyler. I would not want to have a conflict.

I shall be in Boston by noon of Tuesday, the Seventeenth and remain until Saturday. I have made only one engagement that is for dinner on Thursday night, the Nineteenth with Mr. & Mrs. C. F. Weed.

I had an illuminating talk with Mr. Young yesterday. Into it the paragraphs which we selected from the letters will fit admirably. Mr. Young seemed gratified that you had found the correspondence and apparently saw no reason why the quotations should not be made under the restrictions under which we talked.

Very sincerely yours
