My dear Miss Tarbell:-

I thought you might be interested in a synopsis of the book I am writing on Abraham Lincoln. You will find that the attached outline ~~gives~~ a complete summary of the contents.

The book is progressing nicely. Part one is practically complete, Part two is well under way, Parts three and four have received some attention and Part five is complete but not arranged in just the order desired for publication.

What I think will be a feature of the book will be a page of errata at the introduction of each chapter. You will find attached such a list of published errors which will appear at the beginning of Chapter one in Part two. In ~~thought~~ you would be interested in this list as you seem to have been the first author to try and correct the erroneous impression relative to the industry of Thomas Lincoln.

There are some portions of this book which would make excellent magazine material, and if some arrangement could be made whereby it could be used in this form and later, published in book form, I should be very glad.

The publishers of the "Louisville Lincoln Loop" advise me it will be mailed from ~~the~~ office this week.

Most sincerely yours,

Louis A. Warray
